Boundaries, Ray's Pay Hike Okayed

By HUGH REYNOLDS

New ward boundaries for the city and a new salary for the mayor were approved at last night's Kingston Common Council meeting.

As predicted in Friday's Freeman, the reapportionment vote went down party lines, passing 8-5. The salary increase for the mayor (from $10,000 per year to $15,000) went through smoothly, the only nay vote being John Naccarato's.

The Third Ward Republican said he felt a mayoral salary increase should be placed on the ballot for the voters to decide.

The Council also approved a resolution which called for the writing of a letter to the Kingston Urban Renewal Agency inquiring about the cost of three acres of land in Broadway East, presumably for the construction of a new city hall Downtown.

The Council failed to act on a resolution asking for a zoning change at 172 Pearl Street, site of the Hutton Nursing Home. The nursing home asked for the change in order to build an addition.

On this particular matter, Alderman Emillio Primo Jr. (D-Fourth Ward) made a motion that the Laws and Rules Committee be relieved of its duties. After conferring with Corporation Counsel Aaron E. Klein Primo withdrew his motion. The zoning was referred back to the Laws and Rules Committee for further study.

Two communications from Mayor Raymond W. Garraghan were read at the meeting. The first notified the council of the appointment of Mrs. Albert Cannon to the Kingston Landmarks Preservation Commission.

The second referred to the mayor's veto of the $7,500 planning study, passed unanimously by the Council. Garraghan wrote that he had vetoed the measure since there were differences between what he originally proposed and what the Council approved.

Alderman Joseph Epstein (D-Sixth Ward) offered a resolution asking for an inspection of the bridge over the Rondout Creek connecting Kingston and Port Ewen. Epstein's resolution was forwarded to Roger Mabie, Democratic supervisor of the Town Esopus.

The reapportionment bill went through smoothly, considering its importance to the future political structure of the city.

Republicans, for the most part, complained that they had not been given enough notice on reapportionment from committee chairman Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward).

Norton defended his committee's work as did other Democrats stating that the committee had reapportioned the city according to State Supreme Court dictates which called for the using of the 1960 census figures. He also noted that he had called a committee meeting two weeks ago and only four members of the seven-man committee attended.

Two aldermen have proposed a unique plan for a swimming pool in Kingston. See story Page 6.

Included among those members who did not attend that meeting was Clifford Sinsabaugh (D-Fifth Ward). Norton took the floor shortly after his statement of missing members and told the Council that Sinsabaugh had contacted him and offered a legitimate excuse for missing the meeting. Norton offered an apology to Sinsabaugh for giving the impression that he (Sinsabaugh) had been absent without sufficient reason.

According to Sinsabaugh this was the first time a public apology had been extended in the Common Council.

The Council also approved one-year terms for aldermen elected this November. They will be up for reelection next November and thereafter will be elected for two year terms.

The meeting adjourned in the Christmas spirit with Epstein making a motion to wish the news media and Kingston residents a happy holiday.

Dutchess, Columbia Fatals

Four Area Teeners Killed

Pre-Christmas traffic accidents in this area Friday night and early today crushed out the lives of four teenagers, including three who were killed in a spectacular crash at 4:10 a. m. on Route 9 in the Columbia County township of Stockport.

State Police and the sheriff's office investigated a rash of personal injury accidents and in some cases arrests were made for driving motor vehicles while intoxicated.

All Victims 18

A Pleasant Valley 18-year-old girl lost her life in a two-vehicle crash on Dutchess Turnpike east of Poughkeepsie last night.

Claverack State Police early today investigated a three-vehicle collision north of Hudson which claimed the lives of three 18-year-old boys, one a resident of Catskill. One car involved in that spectacular mishap was cut in two pieces when another vehicle rammed into it broadside.

The Dutchess County girl was fatally hurt at 7:25 p. m. Friday when the car in which she was a passenger was in collision with a pickup truck on Dutchess Turnpike about three miles east of Poughkeepsie.

Town Police Lt. Robert Hornick said Miss Cynthia Allen daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward C. Allen of Smith Road, Pleasant Valley, died in Vassar Hospital at 10:15 p. m. of multiple injuries.

Hornick said the victim was a passenger in a car operated by Frank Hallenbeck, 24, of 295 Anthony Avenue, Hudson, when the vehicle was in head-on collision with a truck driven by Daniel Magurno, 44, of 519 Dutchess Turnpike. The vehicles were traveling in opposite directions when Magurno attempted a turn into a private driveway and the crash occurred. The investigation continues.

Hallenbeck was admitted to Vassar Hospital after receiving treatment for scalp lacerations and contusions. Magurno received bruises of the abdomen but was not hospitalized.

Three-Car Collision

Three 18-year-old boys were killed and four others were injured in a grinding, spectacular three-vehicle collision on Route 9 at the intersection of County Route 25, Town of Stockport, Columbia County, at 4:10 a. m. today.

Claverack State Police said the dead were identified as James V. Manti, of Valatie; Michael J. Sandcomb, of 10 Clearview Boulevard, Castleton-on-Hudson and Raymond Rusself Jr., of Catskill.

Injured in the mishap and taken to Columbia Memorial Hospital were Stanley Russell, 17, Catskill; Carl Neal 18, and James Pope, 18, also of Catskill and Gilbert Ringwood, 65, of Niverville. Their condition was listed as critical, authorities said.

Troopers reported Manti was driving his car north on Route 9 north of Hudson at a high speed, when he lost control.

Pope Audience Next for Johnson

ROME (AP) — President Johnson headed today for an audience with Pope Paul VI, informed sources said, after telling American fighting men in Vietnam, "What you have done will not be in vain."

Johnson told the troops at the big Cam Ranh Bay base, "the enemy cannot win, now, in Vietnam. You have seen to that."

Now, reports in Rome and Washington said, he wanted to explain personally to the Pope why the United States is pursuing its course in Vietnam. The pontiff issued a fresh call Friday for the United States to suspend bombing of North Vietnam and for the Communists 'to give a sign of serious will for peace."

Word of Johnson's planned visit to the Pope came from both Italian and American government sources in Rome. Both, arrival was scheduled it was always possible Johnson might change his plans at the last moment.

Ground fighting in Vietnam sputters almost to a halt with holiday truce periods only hours away. See story on Page 24.

The American Embassy and the Vatican have been going ahead with plans on the assumption that the Johnson visit was set and Italian Communists prepared to stage anti-American demonstrations

Tillson Shootout, Man, 31, Serious

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

A 31-year-old man was in serious condition at Kingston Hospital today suffering bullet wounds he received when he was felled by State Police in a shootout at the Happy Hour Bar & Grill on Route 32 in Tillson.

Winfield Moore of River Road, R.D. New Paltz, was under police guard at the hospital where he was treated for bullet wounds of the leg and left side of his chest near the heart.

According to Senior BCI Investigator Edward Shannon, who was in charge of the investigation with Capt. N. G. Lecakes and Lt. A. F. Van Blarcum, Moore telephoned the state police barracks at Lake Katrine at about 4 a. m. and said he had broken into the Happy Hour tavern and he boasted that troopers would have to shoot him to take him in.

Within minutes 12 to 15 state troopers from the Kingston and Highland stations were on their way to Tillson. On arrival troopers cautiously surrounded the building and waited briefly. Suddenly, Shannon said, Moore armed with a .20 guage shotgun, smashed a window and began firing promiscuously at the troopers.

State police stood behind patrol cars for protection, while others moved around the building. Darkness provided a shield for the troopers as shots were fired in their direction, authorities said.

"We had a telephone line open for hours, but the man wouldn't talk," Shannon said. "We tried unsuccessfully to persuade him to give up until daylight. No one wanted to shoot the man."

According to state police, Moore continued to fire in the direction of the troopers after dawn.

Shannon said that shortly before 7:30 a. m. Moore appeared at the door with the shotgun aiming at troopers at the north and south of the tavern building. Armed troopers readied for any incident as they watched the man walk toward the highway.

Authorities tried to talk him into surrendering but Moore kept firing at the troopers, it was said. Shannon said Moore was about to fire point blank at a trooper when authorities he was shooting at returned the fire. A bullet hit Moore in the leg and as he whirled around and fell another bullet hit him on the left side of the chest near the heart.

Troopers rushed in and grabbed Moore's gun and arranged for his removal to the hospital here.

Shannon said at least 20 shells from the shotgun were found.

A state police official said, "It was an unfortunate incident. It could have developed into a serious Christmas tragedy, but the police withheld their fire as long as possible although they were fired upon for quite a while."

Moore was taken to the hospital by the owner of Don's Ambulance, Rosendale, and an attendant, Albert Morelli, local fire chief.

Enjoy the Spirit Of Christmas in CHURCH

A Beautiful Christmas Tapestry

By CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

Faith gets an added trust at this season of the year. In his book, "Days of Our Years," Pierre Van Paassen says that in Palestine "heaven seems so near you felt like reaching out and touching it with your fingers." Someway God seems nearer at Christmas-time. We lose the sense of distance and of strangerhood; and for a few short days we feel, in spite of ourselves, that He is somebody we really would like to know.

The matchless story of the birth of that Baby in a stable disarms us; and convinces us, if only for a little spell, that the great Ruler of the universe is not an austere monarch sitting upon His unapproachable throne—but rather a loving Father who seeks intimate communion with us. His children.

Then too, the kindlier impulses take over as the Christmas-tide approaches. During this segment of days which comes in December it is easier to be good and kind; and more natural to be thoughtful of others. No one would be so presumptuous as to pretend that we ever are quite as kind and thoughtful as we should be. But we do inch a little closer to that divine ideal of life during the Christmas season.

Hearts, just now, are a little more tender than usual. We give those inner impulses toward charity more of an opportunity to take charge of our actions as the day approaches which has been set apart for the celebration of the birth of the lowly Galilean. That indefinable Christmas Spirit works wonders with our attitudes and actions—if only for a brief span of days.

Someone has expressed well this transfiguration thus: "Christmas is a happy time, a time of joy and giving. It is a time for heartfelt renewal of old friendships and the creation of new ones. It is a time when family ties are strengthened and memories of past Christmases are kindled by the blazing hearth. It is a time for kindliness and brotherhood towards all our fellow creatures. It is a time when the innate goodness of man breaks through his worries and sorrows with a festive greeting of cheer. Christmas is like a beautiful tapestry, woven in the image of God. There is nothing more divine than Christmas, nothing more human."

Chanukah Reflects History

The Feast of Lights, as the holiday of Chanukah is called, will be observed by Jewish people over the world for eight days, beginning on Tuesday, Dec. 26, after sundown and ending at sundown Wednesday, Jan. 3.

Chanukah means dedication, and is observed as a remembrance of the dedication of the Holy Temple in Jerusalem, with a ritual of lighting candles, or oil, one light the first night, increasing an additional light each night, until eight lights on the eighth night. The holiday is observed as a season of thankfulness and joy for the victory of the Maccabees, the Jewish heroes who fought for the preservation of their faith, and the miracle of the burning of a one day's supply of oil for eight days.

Greek Era

This historic and miraculous event occurred in the year 165 BCE. It was an era that followed the conquests of Alexander the Great, Emperor of Greece. After his death, his successors not only subjected their conquered nations to their temporal power, but they brought about an indoctrination of Greek civilization to all the people of their domains, including its mythological creeds, and love of the body beautiful.

When this Hellenistic hedonism began to infiltrate the land of the Jews, many adopted Hellenism as a modern way of life, in imitation of the peoples around them. However, the idol worship of Zeus, and the culture of body over soul, came into direct conflict with the Monotheistic faith and practices of the Jewish people. Most of the Jews refused to surrender their beliefs and practices, and it was by force of arms, and the stationing of vast armies in the city of Jerusalem, that made it possible for Antiochus IV, the emperor of Syria, to set up a statue of Zeus, and to desecrate the holy objects, in the Holy Temple. Antiochus, to punish the Jews for their obstinacy, attempted to force them to desecrate their religious observances, and to accept a Grecian way of life.

Finally, in 168 B.C.E., there arose a band of religious zealots, first under Mattathias, the High Priest, and after his death, under his sons, with Judah Maccabeus as their general, and after three years of battle against overwhelming odds, drove the Syrian armies out of Judea, and cleansed the land of all idolatrous forms and practices. On the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev, according to the Apochryphal Book of the Maccabees, they came into the Holy Temple in Jerusalem, cleansed it of all idolatrous defilement, and dedicated it again to the God of Israel.

As they were about to kindle the light of the Eternal Light, they found all the oil in the cruises had been defiled by the idolators, except for one cruise which was still sealed. Each cruise of oil had a day's supply, but this oil burned for eight days, during which time they were able to replenish the supply.

Parties, Games

The 25th day of Kislev, which is a month in the lunar system, most always falls in the month of December. The holiday is enjoyed with parties, games and joyous affairs celebrated around the Chanukah lights, with songs and praises for the miracles and victories, shown unto our heroic ancestors. "This battle of the Maccabees is truly an historic event," remarks Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman of Congregation Ahavath Israel, "for it was the first time in the history of man that a nation fought for religious freedom. And even though Chanukah and Christmas have no relationship to each other," adds the rabbi, "either philosophically, theologically, or historically, one must realize that if the Jews had not been victorious in their battle to save Monotheism from being overpowered by Grecian idolatry, Christmas would never have become a reality, because without a God, there could never have arisen a faith that believed in a son of God."

At Congregation Ahavath Israel, the holiday will be observed with Latke parties, latkes being the symbolic dish for Chanukah, representing the food eaten by the Jewish victors, a form of pancakes, which was all they could take into the battle with them. Religious services commemorating the events of the season will be conducted.

Tuesday Plans

Tuesday night, Dec. 26, the USY, the youth organization of the congregation, will sponsor a Latke Lu-au and Chanukah Dance for all the Jewish youth groups in the community and have invited those of the surrounding towns. During the past week, the Sisterhood and the Talmud Torah of Kingston celebrated with Pre-Chanukah parties and entertainments. The gift shop of the Sisterhood is stacked with various types of Chanukah candelabra, candles and artistic works from Israel and gifts for the holiday.

Tuesday evening, the first night of Chanukah, a radio program depicting the Chanukah service, will be broadcast over WGHQ by Rabbi Schectman, assisted by Cantor L. Larry Jacobs, Mrs. Harry Z. Schectman and Mrs. Joe Colen.

A Beautiful Christmas Tapestry

By CLYDE HERBERT SNELL

Faith gets an added trust at this season of the year. In his book, "Days of Our Years," Pierre Van Paassen says that in Palestine "heaven seems so near you felt like reaching out and touching it with your fingers." Someway God seems nearer at Christmas-time. We lose the sense of distance and of strangerhood; and for a few short days we feel, in spite of ourselves, that He is somebody we really would like to know.

The matchless story of the birth of that Baby in a stable disarms us; and convinces us, if only for a little spell, that the great Ruler of the universe is not an austere monarch sitting upon His unapproachable throne—but rather a loving Father who seeks intimate communion with us. His children.

Then too, the kindlier impulses take over as the Christmas-tide approaches. During this segment of days which comes in December it is easier to be good and kind; and more natural to be thoughtful of others. No one would be so presumptuous as to pretend that we ever are quite as kind and thoughtful as we should be. But we do inch a little closer to that divine ideal of life during the Christmas season.

Hearts, just now, are a little more tender than usual. We give those inner impulses toward charity more of an opportunity to take charge of our actions as the day approaches which has been set apart for the celebration of the birth of the lowly Galilean. That indefinable Christmas Spirit works wonders with our attitudes and actions—if only for a brief span of days.

Someone has expressed well this transfiguration thus: "Christmas is a happy time, a time of joy and giving. It is a time for heartfelt renewal of old friendships and the creation of new ones. It is a time when family ties are strengthened and memories of past Christmases are kindled by the blazing hearth. It is a time for kindliness and brotherhood towards all our fellow creatures. It is a time when the innate goodness of man breaks through his worries and sorrows with a festive greeting of cheer. Christmas is like a beautiful tapestry, woven in the image of God. There is nothing more divine than Christmas, nothing more human."

Chanukah Reflects History

The Feast of Lights, as the holiday of Chanukah is called, will be observed by Jewish people over the world for eight days, beginning on Tuesday, Dec. 26, after sundown and ending at sundown Wednesday, Jan. 3.

Chanukah means dedication, and is observed as a remembrance of the dedication of the Holy Temple in Jerusalem, with a ritual of lighting candles, or oil, one light the first night, increasing an additional light each night, until eight lights on the eighth night. The holiday is observed as a season of thankfulness and joy for the victory of the Maccabees, the Jewish heroes who fought for the preservation of their faith, and the miracle of the burning of a one day's supply of oil for eight days.

Greek Era

This historic and miraculous event occurred in the year 165 BCE. It was an era that followed the conquests of Alexander the Great, Emperor of Greece. After his death, his successors not only subjected their conquered nations to their temporal power, but they brought about an indoctrination of Greek civilization to all the people of their domains, including its mythological creeds, and love of the body beautiful.

When this Hellenistic hedonism began to infiltrate the land of the Jews, many adopted Hellenism as a modern way of life, in imitation of the peoples around them. However, the idol worship of Zeus, and the culture of body over soul, came into direct conflict with the Monotheistic faith and practices of the Jewish people. Most of the Jews refused to surrender their beliefs and practices, and it was by force of arms, and the stationing of vast armies in the city of Jerusalem, that made it possible for Antiochus IV, the emperor of Syria, to set up a statue of Zeus, and to desecrate the holy objects, in the Holy Temple. Antiochus, to punish the Jews for their obstinacy, attempted to force them to desecrate their religious observances, and to accept a Grecian way of life.

Finally, in 168 B.C.E., there arose a band of religious zealots, first under Mattathias, the High Priest, and after his death, under his sons, with Judah Maccabeus as their general, and after three years of battle against overwhelming odds, drove the Syrian armies out of Judea, and cleansed the land of all idolatrous forms and practices. On the 25th day of the Hebrew month of Kislev, according to the Apochryphal Book of the Maccabees, they came into the Holy Temple in Jerusalem, cleansed it of all idolatrous defilement, and dedicated it again to the God of Israel.

As they were about to kindle the light of the Eternal Light, they found all the oil in the cruises had been defiled by the idolators, except for one cruise which was still sealed. Each cruise of oil had a day's supply, but this oil burned for eight days, during which time they were able to replenish the supply.

Parties, Games

The 25th day of Kislev, which is a month in the lunar system, most always falls in the month of December. The holiday is enjoyed with parties, games and joyous affairs celebrated around the Chanukah lights, with songs and praises for the miracles and victories, shown unto our heroic ancestors. "This battle of the Maccabees is truly an historic event," remarks Rabbi Harry Z. Schectman of Congregation Ahavath Israel, "for it was the first time in the history of man that a nation fought for religious freedom. And even though Chanukah and Christmas have no relationship to each other," adds the rabbi, "either philosophically, theologically, or historically, one must realize that if the Jews had not been victorious in their battle to save Monotheism from being overpowered by Grecian idolatry, Christmas would never have become a reality, because without a God, there could never have arisen a faith that believed in a son of God."

At Congregation Ahavath Israel, the holiday will be observed with Latke parties, latkes being the symbolic dish for Chanukah, representing the food eaten by the Jewish victors, a form of pancakes, which was all they could take into the battle with them. Religious services commemorating the events of the season will be conducted.

Tuesday Plans

Tuesday night, Dec. 26, the USY, the youth organization of the congregation, will sponsor a Latke Lu-au and Chanukah Dance for all the Jewish youth groups in the community and have invited those of the surrounding towns. During the past week, the Sisterhood and the Talmud Torah of Kingston celebrated with Pre-Chanukah parties and entertainments. The gift shop of the Sisterhood is stacked with various types of Chanukah candelabra, candles and artistic works from Israel and gifts for the holiday.

Tuesday evening, the first night of Chanukah, a radio program depicting the Chanukah service, will be broadcast over WGHQ by Rabbi Schectman, assisted by Cantor L. Larry Jacobs, Mrs. Harry Z. Schectman and Mrs. Joe Colen.

Catholic Center Makes Appeal to Swingers

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London's Roman Catholic Enquiry Center, after 14 years of angling for Protestants, has changed its tactics to aim for the millions in swinging Britain who profess no religion at all.

It still uses mass advertising techniques to put across its message. And the message is fundamentally the same. But Biblical texts and Gothic lettering are strictly out. Today's message is in the language of today.

Catholic Enquiry Center advertisements, shining amidst sex and violence from pages in the popular newspapers, used to show a priest holding aloft a chalice. Readers were asked if they knew what happened at a Catholic Mass.

'Live'

Now instead the advertisement is topped with a single word in heavy type. The word is live.

"The story of Christ is a love story," the hippies and flower children are told. "And Christianity is the religion of love. We all want to love and to be loved, to understand and to be understood."

The message invites those who want to bring happiness and purpose into their lives to write for booklets which tell clearly and frankly about the Catholic faith.

As in the old advertisements, discretion is assured. The free booklets will be sent at regular intervals "in a plain sealed cover" and "no one will call on you."

New Form

Another of the new advertisements takes this form:

"Born in poverty. Lived only 33 years. Spent most of his life in obscurity. Never wrote a book. Never had any position in public life. Was crucified with two thieves, and yet 2,000 years later, more than 950 million people follow Him."

The Catholic Enquiry Center has been operating from an anonymous-looking building in the fashionable suburb of Hampstead since 1954. It sends out its plain-wrapped booklets to about 25,000 people each year, about 1,000 of whom later write to say they have been received into the Church.

A sample survey has shown that 46 per cent of those answering the center's advertisements are between the ages of 18 and 25. This was a major factor in causing the center to update its approach.

The original set of 21 booklets, one sent by mail each week, was revised and condensed to 11.

"There seems to be a suspicion of all organized religion among the young," said the Rev. James O'Brien, the young priest who took over direction of the center in November. "There is a much greater questioning about everything. And there is more uncertainty than ever before. We have had the leaflets made more scriptural and ecumenical. In fact, we are in a state of continual experimentation."

Real Problem

The real problem, said Father O'Brien, was to make Catholicism intelligible to people who had little or no acquaintance with the Christian faith at all—its message or its language.

The Rev. Kevin O'Brien, superior of the Catholic Missionary Society in London and director of the center until handing over to his namesake last month, regrets the passing of the radio pirate stations. He called them "good friends"

Radio Caroline and Radio London broadcast pop music interspersed with advertising to the swinging set all day until banned for illegal operation by the govermnemt.

"They served us well and reached an audience even the newspapers do not seem to touch," said Father O'Brien. "Some day we hope they will come back to us and we can advertise on them again."

THE TWAIN SHALL MEET

East is East and West is West
Can the twain e'er meet?
Bethlehem, thou hamlet blest,
At thy crib they greet.

Every language, every race
Joins in adoration,
Every nation, every place,
Every age and station.

Shepherds, herald angels call,
Kings, heed faith star's leading,
Hasten to the stable stall
Each for peace is pleading.

Mary, Joseph, kneel and pray
On this Christmas morning,
East and West shall meet this way,
When God's peace is borning.

CHRISTMAS DECOR—The Christmas tree at Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers Streets, is decorated this year with symbols of the Christian faith. The decorations were made by women of the church and are an attempt to sanctify the pagan symbol of the Christmas tree. St. Paul's Lutheran Church of West Camp also used the Chrismon theme in its tree trim. (Freeman photo by Haines).

But, Gore Mountain Ski Center, North Creek, has merged the two in their recent announcement of "folk masses" scheduled each Sunday at the Commodious Adirondack ski center.

Gore Manager, Richard J. Brennan, announced that Father Alfred J. Ashline, pastor of North Creek's St. James Parish, will offer Mass for Gore skiers starting December 24.

The mountain ski lifts shut down in late afternoon and opportunity to attend Mass will be offered skiers in the main lodge each Sunday at 4:30 p. m.

Brennan said that Father Ashline will also hold special Masses at Gore's Main Lodge Dec. 25 and Jan. 1. Gore will open for skiers Christmas Day at 11 a. m.

Catholic Center Makes Appeal to Swingers

By GODFREY ANDERSON
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — London's Roman Catholic Enquiry Center, after 14 years of angling for Protestants, has changed its tactics to aim for the millions in swinging Britain who profess no religion at all.

It still uses mass advertising techniques to put across its message. And the message is fundamentally the same. But Biblical texts and Gothic lettering are strictly out. Today's message is in the language of today.

Catholic Enquiry Center advertisements, shining amidst sex and violence from pages in the popular newspapers, used to show a priest holding aloft a chalice. Readers were asked if they knew what happened at a Catholic Mass.

'Live'

Now instead the advertisement is topped with a single word in heavy type. The word is live.

"The story of Christ is a love story," the hippies and flower children are told. "And Christianity is the religion of love. We all want to love and to be loved, to understand and to be understood."

The message invites those who want to bring happiness and purpose into their lives to write for booklets which tell clearly and frankly about the Catholic faith.

As in the old advertisements, discretion is assured. The free booklets will be sent at regular intervals "in a plain sealed cover" and "no one will call on you."

New Form

Another of the new advertisements takes this form:

"Born in poverty. Lived only 33 years. Spent most of his life in obscurity. Never wrote a book. Never had any position in public life. Was crucified with two thieves, and yet 2,000 years later, more than 950 million people follow Him."

The Catholic Enquiry Center has been operating from an anonymous-looking building in the fashionable suburb of Hampstead since 1954. It sends out its plain-wrapped booklets to about 25,000 people each year, about 1,000 of whom later write to say they have been received into the Church.

A sample survey has shown that 46 per cent of those answering the center's advertisements are between the ages of 18 and 25. This was a major factor in causing the center to update its approach.

The original set of 21 booklets, one sent by mail each week, was revised and condensed to 11.

"There seems to be a suspicion of all organized religion among the young," said the Rev. James O'Brien, the young priest who took over direction of the center in November. "There is a much greater questioning about everything. And there is more uncertainty than ever before. We have had the leaflets made more scriptural and ecumenical. In fact, we are in a state of continual experimentation."

Real Problem

The real problem, said Father O'Brien, was to make Catholicism intelligible to people who had little or no acquaintance with the Christian faith at all—its message or its language.

The Rev. Kevin O'Brien, superior of the Catholic Missionary Society in London and director of the center until handing over to his namesake last month, regrets the passing of the radio pirate stations. He called them "good friends"

Radio Caroline and Radio London broadcast pop music interspersed with advertising to the swinging set all day until banned for illegal operation by the govermnemt.

"They served us well and reached an audience even the newspapers do not seem to touch," said Father O'Brien. "Some day we hope they will come back to us and we can advertise on them again."

THE TWAIN SHALL MEET

East is East and West is West
Can the twain e'er meet?
Bethlehem, thou hamlet blest,
At thy crib they greet.

Every language, every race
Joins in adoration.
Every nation, every place,
Every age and station.

Shepherds, herald angels call,
Kings, heed faith star's leading,
Hasten to the stable stall
Each for peace is pleading.

Mary, Joseph, kneel and pray
On this Christmas morning,
East and West shall meet
this way,
When God's peace is borning.

CHRISTMAS DECOR—The Christmas tree at Evangelical Lutheran Church of the Redeemer, Wurts and Rogers Streets, is decorated this year with symbols of the Christian faith. The decorations were made by women of the church and are an attempt to sanctify the pagan symbol of the Christmas tree. St. Paul's Lutheran Church of West Camp also used the Chrismon theme in its tree trim. (Freeman photo by Haines).

During his recent seminary years he has been active in inner-city and youth work on which topics he has published articles for national magazines.

He is known in the Mid-Hudson Valley as a lecturer, religion teacher in Kingston and Rosendale, and moderator and director of a Sunday morning radio program over WKNY.

Christmas Message

That small, faint voice you may have heard above the racket of the cash registers during the Christmas shopping rush was that of an infant hoping to be noticed amid the hurrying crowds.

Most people, if they listened, recognized the voice as that of the Christ Child, the Savior. His birth, His mission on earth, is what Christmas is all about.

For many others—of different religious persuasion, or lesser persuasion, or no persuasion—the voice may have had a different source.

But it was and is present nonetheless, and the message it speaks is the same for all men.

It is a message that echoes across the ages each year at this season—a message of hope, of belief in the essential worth of mankind, a rebounding faith that despite all the sorrow men visit upon themselves they are learning little by little how to live in peace with one another.

It is a message that has been relayed from one disillusioned frustrated, yet hopeful generation to another, and will go on being relayed until the allotted time for man on this planet runs out.

Man today has quite a bit to say about how long or short that time will be. For in this century he has discovered the power that can either reduce civilization to savagery, if not wipe it out altogether, or elevate it to heights undreamed of.

Yet it is not that power that needs controlling. It is man himself, just as it has always been.

That is why the Christmas message is as live and pertinent and hope-refreshing today as it was when it was first heard 2,000 years ago.

There CAN be peace on earth, if men will but have good will. There ARE tidings of great joy, if men will but unclog their ears of the noise an confusion they surround themselves with.

We will listen, for a time. For a brief moment, we will believe.

Then we will forget. We will carefully store away the precious, perishable joy of the holiday and again put on the tired old cynicism and selfishness of the everyday world.

We will forget Christmas — until another year, when its undying message comes ringing back again, as new and fresh and real as ever.

TV Commercials

A podiatrist has expressed concern that watching television can hurt a kid's feet because kids have a way of doubling their feet under them as they watch and watch and watch.

This just about completes the potential physical wreckage of kid television-watchers as proclaimed from time to time by viewers-with-alarm.

It has been claimed that sustained television watching is hard on the back, the legs, the eyes, the ears, the posture, grades, the attitudes and viewpoints of youngsters—and, at times, the child-parent relationship.

This, of course, is largely a matter for the experts to decide. But one thing even a non-expert knows:

These graphic commercials for deodorants, laxatives, bile-busters and acid-drip soaker-uppers are hard on the adult appetite when we are trying to eat our dinner.

And we don't need a doctor to tell us.

How To Break Gambling

This has been the year when commercial gambling in Arkansas all but disappeared. It has been the first year of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's drive against illegal gambling, which thrived in Litttle Rock and Hot Springs, a nearby resort town, for decades.

Since Rockefeller appointed Lynn A. Davis, a former FBI agent, as director of the state police August 1, the campaign intensified. Davis sought out stored gambling equipment in warehouses in the state and burned and pounded some $500,000 worth of them into uselessness.

"Before now, they've tried to go after people by making arrests," Davis said. "I just went after the equipment, and broke their back."

When Davis refused to reveal the sources of his information to the grand jury, he was jailed for contempt of court. Freed by the Arkansas Supreme Court while the case was investigated, Davis was defended by the Governor. Rockefeller said the arrest was a political maneuver that backfired.

In less than five months, the former FBI agent had shown how to break illegal gambling in a state that had been noted for it for years. His arrest even for one day brought statewide support for his crusade, a reaction the gamblers should have foreseen. Instead, a convict said he had been approached by gamblers to assassinate the Governor. They never learn that that would really kill illegal gambling in the state for good.

The Story of Christmas

David Lawrence Says

Johnson Doesn't Face Up to Crime Problem

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's "conversation" with three newsmen broadcast over the three national television networks on Tuesday night left a mixed impression. He spoke forcefully and clearly about the Vietnam War and its objectives. But he failed to come to grips with one of the biggest domestic issues in political history—violence and insurrection.

The President condemned those dissenters who help to cause riots. He said that violations of law are "going to produce Anarchy" and this "cannot be tolerated." He referred to riots of the past as if they were rather customary in times of stress, and declared that, while "we have more violence than we want," it "represents a very small minority" and "our big problem is to get at the causes."

In outlining the things the administration is doing to prevent riots next summer, Mr. Johnson mentioned the usual sociological proposals—"jobs, housing, education, health." But he did not explain why his own administration has failed to use maximum power and authority to deal with the disturbances or why there has been no action against dissenters whose speeches are, in effect treasonable.

Mr. Johnson's declaration that he is going to do what he thinks is best for the country, "at home and abroad, without regard for what effect it has on my future," would be more meaningful if the Department of Justice had started to prosecute the instigators of riots who have crossed state lines and have incited disorders that have led to the death and injury of many innocent citizens.

Despite Mr. Johnson's disclaimers, some members of Congress are privately saying that he is afraid of the "Negro vote" and that he also has been intimidated by the so-called "Liberals" who argue that the right of dissent is limitless.

There are more votes, however, to be gained by the President in 1968 by bringing about the punishment of those who incite riots than by ignoring the reckless "demonstrators" who make irresponsible speeches provoking disorders. While the Negro vote is sometimes spoken of as a solid bloc, it actually isn't. Most of the Negroes in this country deplore the violence as much as do their fellow citizens among the whites.

The newspapers have printed plenty of evidence that the riots were instigated by national organizations. "Target" cities have been publicly listed in advance. Mr. Johnson himself referred to "some who are sent to these campuses to incite folks," but declined to identify such individuals or organizations specifically. When asked who are the people "encouraging this sort of thing," he replied:

"You see them on every campus on your television every night. They are representatives of various groups."

There is a tendency also to "pass the buck" to the city and state authorities with the argument that maintenance of order is their responsibility. The federal government, on the other hand, has in recent years asserted an extensive power in regulating "interstate commerce" and has been upheld by the Supreme Court, even where individuals have been penalized for "discrimination" in the serving of meals in restaurants.

The nation, moreover, is confronted with a crime wave of unprecedented proportions. Yet the federal government has not joined with the states and cities to create an effective police instrumentality to safeguard the lives and property of American citizens.

Many members of Congress have been amazed at the indifference of the Department of Justice. The inclination has been to blame the attorney general. But after President Johnson's comments on television this week, it becomes apparent that the Chief Executive himself is reluctant to use federal power to punish those individuals who are conspiring to produce disturbances in American cities from coast to coast.

This is the biggest issue Mr. Johnson faces, and he evidently has not yet grasped its political significance, as indicated by his casual remarks in the television "conversation." Something more than platitudes will be necessary if the President is to tackle this problem effectively in time for the election campaign next year.

Communists in Indonesia Tread the Comeback Trail

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Reports brought out of Indonesia by men in close contact with the villagers, indicate the local Communists are not disheartened by the mammoth purges of their people.

The Indonesian Communists, in fact, are reported as extremely optimistic about a comeback.

A new Central Committee of the Indonesian Communist party has been formed underground in Djakarta.

That headquarters has already begun to send out agents to rebuild local Communist organizations and to spark subversive activities.

Old Indonesian Communist party affiliate organizations have begun to reform.

Former Communist party members have begun to infiltrate other political groups. The Indonesian National party seems to be a primary target.

By necessity, the Communists have reorganized their leadership. The new group seems to be moving with vigor. Indecision, so prominent in the old top Communist power structure, seems to have disappeared with the purge.

The new group, like the old, seems to have decided to tie itself to Peking. But this may be because the Soviet Union has been cautious in its approaches to the new Indonesian Communist leadership, while Mao Tse-tung's agents have been very active in operating underground activities in Indonesia in the past eight months.

One reason for the Communist optimism is the success their men seem to be having in recruiting converts and developing future junior leadership among the 115,000 or so men and women being held in Indonesian prisons.

Because there have not been adequate food, doctors or quarters for this great number of prisoners, many are hungry and ailing. Sizeable numbers presumably are not Communists. They were rounded up on accusation or because they belonged to labor or farmer organizations under Red control. The government gradually is sorting out these prisoners and freeing those against whom there is no real evidence. But the government is short of manpower and thousands wait in prison many months before they are freed or brought to trial.

These prisoners then are ripe for the Communist organizers locked up in these same prisons. Their bitterness at being jailed for reasons many of them do not understand, causes these men and women to listen to the fast-talking Red agents.

The Communists are counting on years of economic hardship ahead, brought on by the excesses and follies of the pro-Communist Sukarno regime, to keep sizeable numbers of the citizenry bitter enough to mistrust the present government.

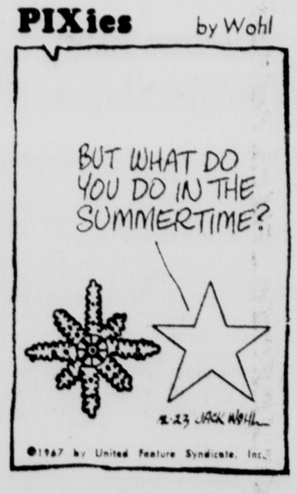

By creating a nationwide network of underground saboteurs, the Communist hope to intensify economic hardships and cause the government's economic reform measures to fail.

The present Suharto government has shown great courage in adopting strong measures to cut inflation—now down from 30 to 50 per cent a month to 5 per cent a month—and encourage trade, investment and sound fiscal policies.

These reforms are especially difficult to accomplish in a country that had been sliding downhill for more than a decade so steadily that for years American economists regularly predicted immediate economic collapse.

These are the reasons why increased help to Indonesia has been put in the U.S. aid program when most assistance programs are being cut heavily as a result of the slash in U. S. foreign aid in the present Congress.

Drew Pearson Says

White House Has Become More of a Tourist Mecca

WASHINGTON—The mantel in the East Room of the White House has held many Christmas stockings, ranging from the bleak celebration of John Adams in 1800 to the topsy-turvy celebrations of the two Roosevelt families when that august mansion was teeming with children.

For more than 150 years the first family always celebrated in the White House. It was their home. In recent years it has come to be something of a combined museum for tourists and an office for official business; so that the Kennedys never spent a single Christmas in Washington, and this is the first Christmas to be celebrated in residence by the Johnsons.

The absence of the Kennedys caused some wags to recall that the Kennedy family came from Boston where for years the Puritans outlawed Santa Claus. The law in 1659 read: "Whosover shall be found observing any such day as Christmas and the like, either by forebearing labor, feasting or any other way upon any such account as aforesaid, every such person so offending shall pay for each offense five shillings as a fine to the country." It was not until 1722 that the governor of Massachusetts gave public recognition to Christmas as a holiday.

This was not, however, why the Kennedys eschewed Christmas in the White House; rather it was because they liked the sunshine of Palm Beach, where the elder Kennedy entertained his large family at his winter residence.

First Lady's Problems

The Johnson family hitherto has spent Christmas in Texas; but this year, with the family expanded from 4 to 7, they will remain at home. The Robbs, the Nugents, and little Lyn will hang up their Christmas stockings before one of the 12 fireplaces which Abigail Adams, the second First Lady, complained were so difficult to supply with wood.

SATURDAY

"Surrounded with forests, can you believe that wood is not to be had because people cannot be found to cut and cart it!" Abigail wrote her daughter Nov. 21, 1800. "Briesler entered into a contract with a man to supply him with wood. A small part, a few cords only, has he been able to get. Most of that was expended to dry the walls of the house before we came in, and yesterday the man told him it was impossible for him to procure it to be cut and carted. He had recourse to coals; but we cannot get grates made and set in. We have indeed come into a new country.

"You must keep all this to yourself and, when asked how I like it, say that I write you the situation is beautiful, which is true. The house is made habitable, but there is not a single apartment finished . . . We have not the least fence, yard or other convenience, without, and the great unfinished audience room (the East Room) I make a drying room of to hang up the clothes in."

This is where the Johnson Christmas tree will stand and where so many Christmas ceremonies have taken place during the years that have passed.

Unfortunately the British burned the White House in the summer of 1814 so the Christmas which followed under Madison was not a happy one.

Unhappy Christmases

But probably the unhappiest Christmases in the White House were those spent by Lincoln during the Civil War; by Woodrow Wilson in 1917, during World War I; and by President Roosevelt during World War II.

Lincoln celebrated Christmas the first year of the Civil War by calling his Cabinet into special session to discuss the Trent Embargo. It looked as if there might be war also with Britain.

Troops were encamped throughout Washington, and the capital was packed with all sorts of people attracted by the army — contractors, inventors, cranks, correspondents, artists, Indians, pickpockets embalmers, and "women of the town."

The first Christmas following the Civil War was celebrated in 1865 with Andrew Johnson in the White House; though historians noted that it was Gen. U. S. Grant who got the presents and enjoyed the limelight. The New York Stock Exchange appropriated $5,000 for him as a Christmas testimonial fund which by New Year's Day had swelled to $100,000 in thanks for his victory over the Confederacy.

Christmas in the White House under Grover Cleveland in 1885 was somber. He was a bachelor. When he returned to the White House in 1893 he had married, and his family was enlarged to include a wife and two children. On Christmas Day he took them to the All-Washington annual football game in the baseball park at 7th and Florida Avenue, later to become Griffith Stadium. The All-Washingingtons won 6 to 0.

When Teddy Roosevelt spent his first Christmas in the executive mansion in 1901 he gave 87 fat turkeys to members of the White House staff—police, ushers, messengers, gardners, servants, and stablemen. This was the largest distribution of its kind until that time by any President. President William McKinley always gave turkeys as presents to his married employes, but his list was smaller.

My father-in-law, who was a cousin of Teddy Roosevelt's and served as his military aide, described the White House in those days as approaching bedlam. The Roosevelt children, six in all, had their toys all over the house, and once sneaked a pony up in the elevator to the third floor.

There was one thing about Christmas, however, that Teddy Roosevelt would not tolerate—namely, Christmas trees. He was such a conservationist that he objected to any Christmas tree being cut for official White House use—quite a contrast to the hundred-million-dollar Christmas tree industry of today.

Christmas Our Greatest Human Moment

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — This is the American home of the Christmas tree. It wasn't made the center of our yuletide until as late as 1842. Williamsburg's Rev. Charles Frederick Minnegrode, an utterly charming Bavarian immigrant who had an earthy humor very close to the land and to life, is authoritatively credited with the joyous tree's introduction at Tucker House here.

Pastor Minnegrode noted that an evergreen with sparkling candles and bits and pieces of colored glass had been introduced in England only a year earlier by Prince Albert, Queen Victoria's consort, on the second Christmas after their marriage.

Soon it meant to the whole Christian world what Christmas means—light and laughter, love and tenderness, sympathy and good impulses, dedicated to the well-being of all and especially to children.

Emerson said: "Write it in your heart every day is the best day of the year." This is not easy to do when we see on all sides a world divided by war and chaos. How much misery there is that man can cause! How little he seems to cure! But certainly Christmas is our greatest human moment, offering its simple, clear proof, and reaffirming in its instant that the basic elements of human goodness and affectionate impulse so often buried in the heart of man are nevertheless as universal as the light of the sun

Do you know anyone who would not help another to trim his Christmas tree?

And when we say, "Merry Christmas, Happy Christmas," you and I and all of us are born again in the spirit of these exalted words and of our Great Lord. For the amazing idea that man should be brother to man . . . that was the blazing star which dawned that first midnight . . . beautiful light, pointing the long hard, hopeful way to the better world we hope and pray for.

A nation's real home is its inner spirit. We hear of the war on poverty. But spiritual poverty is certainly America's No. 1 enemy. A country is the sum of its people. Our country will be precisely what we are—no more, no less. The Holy Lord on the Cross said: "I thirst." So must we — for spiritual improvement. The hour is late and the threat is great.

There are many dangers as discipline is eroded in our religious teachings and as the concept of divinity ceases to become what the Spanish call a cosa sagrada, a sacred thing.

We not only cannot "live on bread alone" we cannot even be truly progressive, regardless of our economic level, unless we have within ourselves a green pasture on which our souls can feed.

Many of our most dangerous problems—in our cities, in the family, in politics, in education and most certainly in our definitions of welfare—arise from the false assumption that the materal environment outside the American people has the power to create happiness. Nothing outside can do this if no spiritual reservoir is constructed and sustained inside.

When nations or individuals fix too exclusively on outside things they tip over and go down. And the Golden Rule—"Do unto others as you would have others do unto you"—goes down with them.

No nation in history has ever been saved by its gross national product. And until a man has studied the character of our Savior and the effect of His teachings, no other study and no other wisdom is worthwhile.

One object of the Bible, of course, is to teach us to live better as children of God—a little lower than the angels, but faithful, confident, unafraid..

We are the children our Savior never had.

As our hopes reach out on Christmas to all points of the earth—and beyond, into space—we need His teachings, He who founded all progressive thought, beyond any other conceivable need in our great and troubled country.

A merry, merry Christmas, one and all.

18 December 1967

Editor, The Freeman

I recently read a letter to the editor condemning Congressman Resnick's trip to Vietnam and am somewhat shocked at the lack of knowledge displayed on the part of the writer. Having returned from RVN less than a month ago, I feel just slightly qualified to speak of the feelings of the "American soldiers who return sick at heart" that Mister Resnick is supposed to be able to tell us about on his return. My privilege of serving in three organizations in a capacity as a helicopter pilot gave me a chance to talk to the average soldier and officer in many units other than my own. Not once did I hear bitter complaint about our national policy, nor about the visits of our duly elected representatives. The troops seemed to feel that their interest, however slight in a personal way, was appreciated.

It is not required that we agree with everything that our congressmen do or fail to do, but when our country is in conflict, we can either stand or fall as a nation. We have elections which are free and in which each person can make his preference known by voting. We have freedom of speech among other basic rights. These can either be used in a constructive manner or a destructive manner.

Failure to support our men with his M16 rifle, nibbling at our national policy during hostilities, and casting of doubt in general is shameful. So many people have become experts on this war without having been there or had access to files on the enemy and friendly activities, it is no wonder that the GI is in part returning sick at heart. It is from doing what he has done, not from wearing his uniform, but from the demonstrations and riots and publicized decent. Never before in our history has he been so heckled while serving his country.

The soldier that I saw was a credit to his state, nation, and himself. He is not the germ warfare or scorched-earth monster that some people would have us believe. Let's get behind him and then if we doubt our congressman's actions in this area, try writing a letter to him first for answers and not hurt that guy's morale who daily sticks his neck out for us. Thank God for the majority of people who are backing the GI in his task.

Sincerely,
FRANK H. BLOOM

Christmas Message

That small, faint voice you may have heard above the racket of the cash registers during the Christmas shopping rush was that of an infant hoping to be noticed amid the hurrying crowds.

Most people, if they listened, recognized the voice as that of the Christ Child, the Savior. His birth, His mission on earth, is what Christmas is all about.

For many others—of different religious persuasion, or lesser persuasion, or no persuasion—the voice may have had a different source.

But it was and is present nonetheless, and the message it speaks is the same for all men.

It is a message that echoes across the ages each year at this season—a message of hope, of belief in the essential worth of mankind, a rebounding faith that despite all the sorrow men visit upon themselves they are learning little by little how to live in peace with one another.

It is a message that has been relayed from one disillusioned frustrated, yet hopeful generation to another, and will go on being relayed until the allotted time for man on this planet runs out.

Man today has quite a bit to say about how long or short that time will be. For in this century he has discovered the power that can either reduce civilization to savagery, if not wipe it out altogether, or elevate it to heights undreamed of.

Yet it is not that power that needs controlling. It is man himself, just as it has always been.

That is why the Christmas message is as live and pertinent and hope-refreshing today as it was when it was first heard 2,000 years ago.

There CAN be peace on earth, if men will but have good will. There ARE tidings of great joy, if men will but unclog their ears of the noise an confusion they surround themselves with.

We will listen, for a time. For a brief moment, we will believe.

Then we will forget. We will carefully store away the precious, perishable joy of the holiday and again put on the tired old cynicism and selfishness of the everyday world.

We will forget Christmas — until another year, when its undying message comes ringing back again, as new and fresh and real as ever.

TV Commercials

A podiatrist has expressed concern that watching television can hurt a kid's feet because kids have a way of doubling their feet under them as they watch and watch and watch.

This just about completes the potential physical wreckage of kid television-watchers as proclaimed from time to time by viewers-with-alarm.

It has been claimed that sustained television watching is hard on the back, the legs, the eyes, the ears, the posture, grades, the attitudes and viewpoints of youngsters—and, at times, the child-parent relationship.

This, of course, is largely a matter for the experts to decide. But one thing even a non-expert knows:

These graphic commercials for deodorants, laxatives, bile-busters and acid-drip soaker-uppers are hard on the adult appetite when we are trying to eat our dinner.

And we don't need a doctor to tell us.

How To Break Gambling

This has been the year when commercial gambling in Arkansas all but disappeared. It has been the first year of Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller's drive against illegal gambling, which thrived in Litttle Rock and Hot Springs, a nearby resort town, for decades.

Since Rockefeller appointed Lynn A. Davis, a former FBI agent, as director of the state police August 1, the campaign intensified. Davis sought out stored gambling equipment in warehouses in the state and burned and pounded some $500,000 worth of them into uselessness.

"Before now, they've tried to go after people by making arrests," Davis said. "I just went after the equipment, and broke their back."

When Davis refused to reveal the sources of his information to the grand jury, he was jailed for contempt of court. Freed by the Arkansas Supreme Court while the case was investigated, Davis was defended by the Governor. Rockefeller said the arrest was a political maneuver that backfired.

In less than five months, the former FBI agent had shown how to break illegal gambling in a state that had been noted for it for years. His arrest even for one day brought statewide support for his crusade, a reaction the gamblers should have foreseen. Instead, a convict said he had been approached by gamblers to assassinate the Governor. They never learn that that would really kill illegal gambling in the state for good.

The Story of Christmas

Johnson Doesn't Face Up to Crime Problem

WASHINGTON — President Johnson's "conversation" with three newsmen broadcast over the three national television networks on Tuesday night left a mixed impression. He spoke forcefully and clearly about the Vietnam War and its objectives. But he failed to come to grips with one of the biggest domestic issues in political history—violence and insurrection.

The President condemned those dissenters who help to cause riots. He said that violations of law are "going to produce Anarchy" and this "cannot be tolerated." He referred to riots of the past as if they were rather customary in times of stress, and declared that, while "we have more violence than we want," it "represents a very small minority" and "our big problem is to get at the causes."

In outlining the things the administration is doing to prevent riots next summer, Mr. Johnson mentioned the usual sociological proposals—"jobs, housing, education, health." But he did not explain why his own administration has failed to use maximum power and authority to deal with the disturbances or why there has been no action against dissenters whose speeches are, in effect treasonable.

Mr. Johnson's declaration that he is going to do what he thinks is best for the country, "at home and abroad, without regard for what effect it has on my future," would be more meaningful if the Department of Justice had started to prosecute the instigators of riots who have crossed state lines and have incited disorders that have led to the death and injury of many innocent citizens.

Despite Mr. Johnson's disclaimers, some members of Congress are privately saying that he is afraid of the "Negro vote" and that he also has been intimidated by the so-called "Liberals" who argue that the right of dissent is limitless.

There are more votes, however, to be gained by the President in 1968 by bringing about the punishment of those who incite riots than by ignoring the reckless "demonstrators" who make irresponsible speeches provoking disorders. While the Negro vote is sometimes spoken of as a solid bloc, it actually isn't. Most of the Negroes in this country deplore the violence as much as do their fellow citizens among the whites.

The newspapers have printed plenty of evidence that the riots were instigated by national organizations. "Target" cities have been publicly listed in advance. Mr. Johnson himself referred to "some who are sent to these campuses to incite folks," but declined to identify such individuals or organizations specifically. When asked who are the people "encouraging this sort of thing," he replied:

"You see them on every campus on your television every night. They are representatives of various groups."

There is a tendency also to "pass the buck" to the city and state authorities with the argument that maintenance of order is their responsibility. The federal government, on the other hand, has in recent years asserted an extensive power in regulating "interstate commerce" and has been upheld by the Supreme Court, even where individuals have been penalized for "discrimination" in the serving of meals in restaurants.

The nation, moreover, is confronted with a crime wave of unprecedented proportions. Yet the federal government has not joined with the states and cities to create an effective police instrumentality to safeguard the lives and property of American citizens.

Many members of Congress have been amazed at the indifference of the Department of Justice. The inclination has been to blame the attorney general. But after President Johnson's comments on television this week, it becomes apparent that the Chief Executive himself is reluctant to use federal power to punish those individuals who are conspiring to produce disturbances in American cities from coast to coast.

This is the biggest issue Mr. Johnson faces, and he evidently has not yet grasped its political significance, as indicated by his casual remarks in the television "conversation." Something more than platitudes will be necessary if the President is to tackle this problem effectively in time for the election campaign next year.

Communists in Indonesia Tread the Comeback Trail

By RAY CROMLEY

WASHINGTON (NEA)—Reports brought out of Indonesia by men in close contact with the villagers, indicate the local Communists are not dishearted by the mammoth purges of their people.

The Indonesian Communists, in fact, are reported as extremely optimistic about a comeback.

A new Central Committee of the Indonesian Communist party has been formed underground in Djakarta.

That headquarters has already begun to send out agents to rebuild local Communist organizations and to spark subversive activities.

Old Indonesian Communist party affiliate organizations have begun to reform.

Former Communist party members have begun to infiltrate other political groups. The Indonesian National party seems to be a primary target.

By necessity, the Communists have reorganized their leadership. The new group seems to be moving with vigor. Indecision, so prominent in the old top Communist power structure, seems to have disappeared with the purge.

The new group, like the old, seems to have decided to tie itself to Peking. But this may be because the Soviet Union has been cautious in its approaches to the new Indonesian Communist leadership, while Mao Tse-tung's agents have been very active in operating underground activities in Indonesia in the past eight months.

One reason for the Communist optimism is the success their men seem to be having in recruiting converts and developing future junior leadership among the 115,000 or so men and women being held in Indonesian prisons.

Because there have not been adequate food, doctors or quarters for this great number of prisoners, many are hungry and ailing. Sizeable numbers presumably are not Communists. They were rounded up on accusation or because they belonged to labor or farmer organizations under Red control. The government gradually is sorting out these prisoners and freeing those against whom there is no real evidence. But the government is short of manpower and thousands wait in prison many months before they are freed or brought to trial.

These prisoners then are ripe for the Communist organizers locked up in these same prisons. Their bitterness at being jailed for reasons many of them do not understand, causes these men and women to listen to the fast-talking Red agents.

The Communists are counting on years of economic hardship ahead, brought on by the excesses and follies of the pro-Communist Sukarno regime, to keep sizeable numbers of the citizenry bitter enough to mistrust the present government.

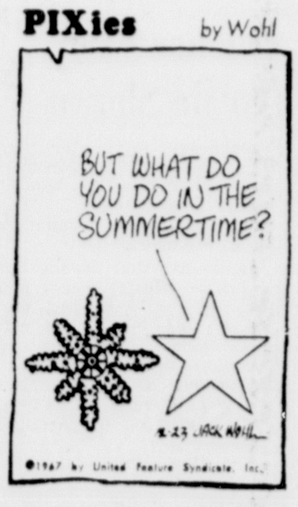

By creating a nationwide network of underground saboteurs, the Communist hope to intensify economic hardships and cause the government's economic reform measures to fail.

The present Suharto government has shown great courage in adopting strong measures to cut inflation—now down from 30 to 50 per cent a month to 5 per cent a month—and encourage trade, investment and sound fiscal pilicies.

These reforms are especially difficult to accomplish in a country that had been sliding downhill for more than a decade so steadily that for years American economists regularly predicted immediate economic collapse.

These are the reasons why increased help to Indonesia has been put in the U.S. aid program when most assistance programs are being cut heavily as a result of the slash in U. S. foreign aid in the present Congress.

White House Has Become More of a Tourist Mecca

WASHINGTON—The mantel in the East Room of the White House has held many Christmas stockings, ranging from the bleak celebration of John Adams in 1800 to the topsy-turvy celebrations of the two Roosevelt families when that august mansion was teeming with children.

For more than 150 years the first family always celebrated in the White House. It was their home. These can either be used in a constructive manner or a destructive manner.

Failure to support our men with his M16 rifle, nibbling at our national policy during hostilities, and casting of doubt in general is shameful. So many people have become experts on this war without having been there or had access to files on the enemy and friendly activities, it is no wonder that the GI is in part returning sick at heart. It is from doing what he has done, not from wearing his uniform, but from the demonstrations and riots and publicized decent. Never before in our history has he been so heckled while serving his country.

The soldier that I saw was a credit to his state, nation, and himself. He is not the germ warfare or scorched-earth monster that some people would have us believe. Let's get behind him and then if we doubt our congressman's actions in this area, try writing a letter to him first for answers and not hurt that guy's morale who daily sticks his neck out for us. Thank God for the majority of people who are backing the GI in his task.

Sincerely,
FRANK H. BLOOM

To Protect Motorists

Seeking Legislation

BY CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller said today he would ask the 1968 Legislature to enact new driver-training and licensing laws in an effort to protect the public from irresponsible motorists.

His announcement was the first in a series in which he will reveal portions of his legislative program. The program will be spelled out in his "State of the State" message to the Legislature's opening session, Jan. 3.

The key measure in his highway-safety program is a brand new proposal that would require all new drivers to complete at least three hours of classroom training as a prerequisite to licensing.

He said instruction would be offered in high schools, as part of the regular driver-education program, as well as licensed commercial driving schools.

Rockefeller also will renew five proposals he made to the 1967 Legislature, without gaining their acceptance. They would:

—Empower courts to sentence violators to attend driver-safety courses.

—Provide for automatic suspension of a driver's license for exceeding a speed limit by more than 20 miles an hour on roads with speed limits of 50 or more.

— Authorize a $15 fine against drivers who fail to surrender their permits after being notified that they have been suspended or revoked.

—Include out-of-state convictions in the so-called "point system" that determines whether disciplinary action should be taken because of repeated violations.

—Count bail forfeitures as convictions in the point system.

Rockefeller said his program also would recommend these new measures:

—Establishment of a pilot program that would require persistent violators to participate in special "rehabilitation courses."

—Creation of a special staff in the Education Department to supervise the content of driver-training courses.

—Authority for the motor vehicle commissioner to order re-examination of drivers. At present, re-examinations are permitted only to determine whether eyesight is adequate.

—Creation of medical advisory committees to recommend medical criteria for dtermining driver fitness.

—Technical, engineering assistance to communities seeking to improve local traffic safety.

—An improved program of record-keeping and research designed to determine the causes of accidents and the best ways of preventing them.

—Studies seeking to find out whether laws governing use of liquor or drugs by drivers are adequate to deal with the problem.

Rockefeller said his program was "designed to protect our general motoring public from drivers who are unwilling or unable to shoulder the responsibilities that come with motor vehicle use."

He said he would seek federal aid, under terms of the National Highway Act of 1966, to help pay for portions of the program.

Scholarship Fund To Honor DeWitt

A scholarship fund has been started to honor the memory of the late Macdonald DeWitt, trustee emeritus of Ulster County Community College, Dr. George B. Erbstein, the college president has announced.

"Some citizens already have sent in contributions for the scholarship," Erbstein said, "and we expect additional contributions in the coming weeks."

Dr. Erbstein said this scholarship, which will go to a UCCC student, is a fitting way to honor the memory of DeWitt, who had a lifelong interest in youth and education.

DeWitt, the president noted, was a prime mover in originating the proposal for a community college in Ulster County. In addition, he was an outstanding contributor to the ultimate establishment of the college, was an active member of the board of trustees, and gave a substantial gift for construction of the college library which bears his name.

DeWitt died Thanksgiving Day at the age of 89.

Anyone interested in contributing to the Macdonald DeWitt Scholarship may send contributions to Ulster County Community College, Stone Ridge, attention of President Erbstein.

WASHINGTON (AP) — If you're feeling a financial pinch these days the Christmas gift-giving tradition shouldn't catch all the blame-just about all the family goods and services Americans buy have jumped in cost.

The Labor Department reported Friday an increase of three-tenths of one per cent in living costs during November, and pointed to signs more of the same can be expected this month.

Only a drop of three-tenths of one per cent in grocery prices staved off a bigger increase in November and appeared likely to prevent this year's over-all jump from surpassing last year's 3.3 per cent annual rate, highest in 10 years.

The November figures pushed to 117.8 the government's consumer price index. That means it's $11.78 to buy products and services that cost Americans $10 in the 1957-59 base period.

Arnold Chase, assistant commissioner of the Bureau of Labor Statistics, reported a one-tenth of one per cent jump in wholesale prices last month. That increase is expected to show up soon in retail prices.

Chase described as "phenomenal" a six-tenths of one per cent increase in the cost of medical care services in November.

For the year, last month's surge pushed the cost of medical care nearly eight per cent above the November 1966 figures.

Hospital costs were up some 16 per cent over the same time last year. Fees for doctors and dentists were 6.4 per cent above the previous November's figures.

Other cost-of-living increases between October and November included housing, two-tenths of one per cent, and clothing and transportation, five-tenths of one per cent each.

Chase said more than 215,000 workers with contracts pegged to living costs will get pay raises because of the November jump.

Uses Grenade

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — Wielding a hand grenade, a bandit robbed a Bank of America branch of $23,800 in cash. All 16 employes lay on the floor, at his demand, and lending officer John Tornnessen emptied the cash into a duffel bag. Later, a grenade pin was found on the floor of the bank and police said the weapon probably was a dud.

Salvation Army Has Yule Party

The annual Christmas Cheer program of the local Salvation Army became a reality Wednesday night at the Citadel when over 200 people gathered to participate in the event.

Thomas Reynolds Jr., chairman of the Advisory Board, brought greetings on behalf of the board, and pupils from the accordion school under the direction of Clifford Scholl gave a musical rendition.

Toys, clothing and food certificates were given out under the direction of Brigadier Jacob Hohn. Members of the Advisory Board and their wives, Salvation Army corps members, and friends were available to help with the distribution.

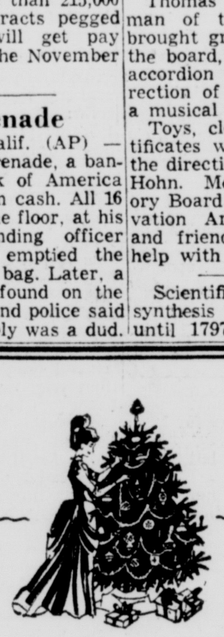

Scientific basis for diamond synthesis was not established until 1797.

City Swim Club Idea Studied by Aldermen

Two Kingston aldermen have come up with a unique idea to provide a swimming pool at no cost to the city.

The aldermen, Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) and Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) are studying the possibilities of a Kingston Swim Club.

Schantz said he got the idea from a visit to New Jersey where swim clubs of the type he and Norton are studying are quite popular.

According to Schantz, it works like this. The city takes out a bond, say for five years, and builds the swimming pool. The pool is paid for through membership dues.

Schantz said dues for the $300,000 pool in Cresskill, N. J. he recently visited are $40 each for adults and $5 each child per year.

The pool in Cresskill cost $300,000, is about the size of the Municipal Auditorium basketball court, is 12 feet deep at one end and has four diving boards. The $300,000 figure also includes separate bath houses and landscaping. The Cresskill Swim Club, recently opened, already has 1,000 members, Schantz said.

Schantz noted that the idea proved so popular in Tappan, N. J. that a second swim club has been started.

If the Norton-Schantz plan for a city pool is approved it would not exclude non-city residents. They would be allowed to join but at a higher fee, say $120 for parents and $10 for each child.

The two aldermen are now completing their plans and expect to begin formal action in February. There are two items to be cleared up: method of payment and location of the pool.

They are looking for an open site in the city, away from any heavily populated area. The urban renewal area Downtown has been mentioned.

As far as payments for each club member, Schantz would like to see dues included on the city tax bills (if a resident joined the club) so that members could pay their dues quarterly.

In conclusion, Schantz said, "We need a swimming pool in Kingston available to the public. Norton and I are fully aware of the pressing financial situation of Kingston, so the financing of the pool by the city is out of the question. However, I feel our plan has a great deal of merit and both Norton and I will be happy to discuss the plan with any interested parties."

Belgian Youngsters Welcome Yule Cards

Ellenville State Police today joined with agencies throughout the world in an effort to bring a small bit of happiness for the holiday season to two little children in Belgium who will live through their last Christmas on Monday.

The little youngsters, who are suffering from blood cancer and a brain condition, have but a few days, possibly a week, to live.

The message which has been broadcast by radio, television and newspapers throughout the world today, urges all people to send a Christmas card with a cheerful penned inscription and signature of the sender, to the following address:

De Teyter Elaine,
Oud St. Jans Hospital,
Mariastraat,
Brugge,
Belgium.

The message was relayed throughout this country after an Indianapolis Weather Bureau picked up the pathetic appeal from an overseas correspondent.

A BCI trooper from Ellenville said, "Let us all send a card to these little kiddies — they are nearing their last Christmas and their final moments of life on this earth."

12 Accidents Occur in City

Wet road surfaces and what police termed "a general holiday attitude" accounted for a total of 12 accidents within city limits Friday and early this morning.

Despite the number of collisions, police said no injuries were reported and that most of the mishaps were minor auto scrapes. However, several persons were ticketed on assorted charges, police said.

Accused of driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident is Clifton Longendyke of 14 Adams Street. He was arrested by police after allegedly hitting a parked auto on Washington Avenue.

Officers said that Longendyke was traveling south on Washington Avenue early today when he swerved into a car owned by Evelyn Weiner of 69 Washington Avenue. Police said the accused continued south and turning onto the Boulevard stalled where officers apprehended him.

Thirty-year-old Walter W. Petruski of 30 Emerick Street was accused Friday night of operating a vehicle without brakes following two accidents within 10 minutes.

Police said that Petruski first collided with a car of Joseph Vartanesian Jr of 278 Broadway on East Chester Street around 8:35 p. m. Moments later, 8:44 p. m., Petruski lost control of his auto on Clinton Avenue and smashed into a tree and utility pole, police said. Central Hudson Gas and Electric was summnoed to clear damaged wires, police added.

Early today two cars collided on Broadway near Liberty Street. Police said that Joan Glennon of 373 Abeel Street was ticketed for failing to keep right.

According to reports, the Glennon womar was traveling south on Broadway when switching lanes, she collided with a car of Walter Dirks of 17 Greenkill Avenue.

Police Raid Nets $200Gs In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Police claim they have struck a major blow to organized crime in the Buffalo area with a raid that netted about $200,000 in stolen property.

No arrests were made in the raid Friday on a West Side house and garage, but investigators said some could be expected "in the near future."

The loot included $55,000 in silverware and china stolen from a downtown shop last month, $15,000 worth of cigaretes and $45,000 in furs—including a full-length chinchilla coat bearing a $12,000 price tag.

State Police Capt. Henry Williams said "there is no question that the stolen property here is connected with the Cosa Nostra. The investigation is continuing and there will be arrests made in the near future."

The raid, Williams added "was a major blow to organized crime in this area. They'll miss the revenue from these items."

The invertigation was connected to the theft, and later recovery of another $100,000 in furs earlier this month, he said.

City and State police and FBI agents loaded the loot onto a rented van, which took it to State Police Troop A headquarters in Batavia for fingerprint checks and identification.

The goods were found in an unoccupied apartment, basement and garage.

The raid was staged at 315 Auburn Ave.

The vehicle fish-tailed back and forth across the highway when it was struck broadside in the southbound lane by the Russell vehicle.

Ringwood, riding alone, was unable to stop and his car was in collision with the Russell vehicle, troopers said. The force of the impact split the Manti car in two pieces, it was reported by investigating officers.

Sandcomb was a passenger in Mantis car. The other injured, with the exception of Ringwood were riding in Russell's car at the time of the triple-death crash.

George D. Dougherty, 24, of Highland, was injured Friday afternoon when the car he was driving was in collision on Tillson Avenue in that community with a parked car, owned by Thomas R. Russell, 31, also of Highland.

Dougherty was driving east when his car rammed into the rear of the other vehicle. He was taken to Vassar Hospital by Alamo Ambulance and treated for lacerations of the forehead. On his release he was arrested by Trooper P. A. Koenig on a charge of drunken driving.

Arraigned before Lloyd Town Justice Lewis DiStasi, Dougherty was released in $50 pending hearing. A plea of innocent was entered on his behalf.

Anthony Nicoletti, 27, of 1094 Codwise Street, was injured at 6:20 p. m. Friday when his car skidded out of control on Neighborhood Road near Boice's Lane and hit a utility pole. Trooper A. J. Scarselli said Nicoletti was taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for scalp lacerations and abrasions. He was cited by Trooper Carl Van Wagenen for driving while intoxicated, Scarselli said. A second charge accused the driver of operating a car at speed not reasonable and prudent.

At 5:45 p. m. yesterday, Edward M. Mayer, 48, of 114 Elm Street, Saugerties, was cited by Trooper James Fitzgerald for driving while intoxicated, according to Scarselli. Mayer was driving north on Route 9W two miles south of Route 32 when his car left the road and hit an embankment.

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—Gov. Rockefeller today appointed Raymond R. Murray of Coleskill to the Council of the State University Agricultural and Technical College at Cobleskill.

Murray was designated to the non-salaried post for a term ending July 1, 1976, to succeed Mrs. Margie Lee Johnson of Middleburg, whose term expired.

Eugene Just Wants Time To Answer LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by the major networks, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is asking the government to insure he gets radio and television time to answer statements by President Johnson.

The Minnesota Democrat, who says he'll challenge Johnson in several Democratic presidential primaries next year, asked Friday that the Federal Communications Commission order NBC, CBS and ABC to provide him air time.

His FCC appeal came shortly after ABC and NBC, following an earlier stand by CBS, rejected McCarthy's request for equal time to answer President Johnson's televised assertion Tuesday that the Minnesotan was working with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in a quest for the nomination.

Both McCarthy and Kennedy have repeatedly denied they're allied in an effort to oust Johnson.

The networks said McCarthy isn't entitled to equal time under laws governing broadcasting because Johnson is not a declared candidate for re-election.

Saying Johnson won't run next year denies "a fact which every American child knows," said Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager, in the appeal to the FCC.

"The people of the country have the right to know," Clark continued, "whether the FCC is going to permit a President who is obviously a candidate for re-election to use the powerful network TV and radio facilities without a right of response by other announced candidates."

Clark said the FCC should either order the networks to give McCarthy equal time or hold a hearing on the issue.

God on his throne in Heaven
Looked 'round at His flowers so fair,
And then sought a blossom on earth,
To add to those He had there.
To be part of such Heavenly company
The bloom must be pure and sweet.
And the little bud that was chosen,
Was the child who had played at our feet.

At the parting with one we love,
But the parting was made that our child might go

City Swim Club Idea Studied by Aldermen

Two Kingston aldermen have come up with a unique idea to provide a swimming pool at no cost to the city.

The aldermen, Robert Schantz (R-Second Ward) and Edward Norton (D-Seventh Ward) are studying the possibilities of a Kingston Swim Club.

Schantz said he got the idea from a visit to New Jersey where swim clubs of the type he and Norton are studying are quite popular.

According to Schantz, it works like this. The city takes out a bond, say for five years, and builds the swimming pool. The pool is paid for through membership dues.

Schantz said dues for the $300,000 pool in Cresskill, N. J. he recently visited are $40 each for adults and $5 each child per year.

The pool in Cresskill cost $300,000, is about the size of the Municipal Auditorium basketball court, is 12 feet deep at one end and has four diving boards. The $300,000 figure also includes separate bath houses and landscaping. The Cresskill Swim Club, recently opened, already has 1,000 members, Schantz said.

Schantz noted that the idea proved so popular in Tappan, N. J. that a second swim club has been started.

If the Norton-Schantz plan for a city pool is approved it would not exclude non-city residents. They would be allowed to join but at a higher fee, say $120 for parents and $10 for each child.

The two aldermen are now completing their plans and expect to begin formal action in February. There are two items to be cleared up: method of payment and location of the pool.

They are looking for an open site in the city, away from any heavily populated area. The urban renewal area Downtown has been mentioned.

As far as payments for each club member, Schantz would like to see dues included on the city tax bills (if a resident joined the club) so that members could pay their dues quarterly.

In conclusion, Schantz said, "We need a swimming pool in Kingston available to the public. Norton and I are fully aware of the pressing financial situation of Kingston, so the financing of the pool by the city is out of the question. However, I feel our plan has a great deal of merit and both Norton and I will be happy to discuss the plan with any interested parties."

Belgian Youngsters Welcome Yule Cards

Ellenville State Police today joined with agencies throughout the world in an effort to bring a small bit of happiness for the holiday season to two little children in Belgium who will live through their last Christmas on Monday.

The little youngsters, who are suffering from blood cancer and a brain condition, have but a few days, possibly a week, to live.

The message which has been broadcast by radio, television and newspapers throughout the world today, urges all people to send a Christmas card with a cheerful penned inscription and signature of the sender, to the following address:

De Teyter Elaine,
Oud St. Jans Hospital,
Mariastraat,
Brugge,
Belgium.

The message was relayed throughout this country after an Indianapolis Weather Bureau picked up the pathetic appeal from an overseas correspondent.

A BCI trooper from Ellenville said, "Let us all send a card to these little kiddies — they are nearing their last Christmas and their final moments of life on this earth."

Peekskill Woman Killed in Crash

PEEKSKILL, N.Y. (AP) — Mrs. Isabelle Emeny, 57, of Peekskill, was killed Friday in a four-vehicle collision, police said. Her car and another collided head-on.

The vehicles involved included an empty school bus. The accident occurred on Rt. 6 in the adjacent town of Cortlandt.

The driver of the other car in the head-on collision, Joseph Pelligrino, 51, of Yonkers, was treated for cuts and bruises at Peekskill Community Hospital and released, police aid.

Mrs. Emeny lived at 208 Locust Ave. Pelligrino lives at 74 Cerone Ave.

Case Put Over

William D. Fuller, 22, of 272 South Kingsboro Street, Gloversville, was arrested and charged with assault third degree on the complaint of a Fair Street woman, police said.

Appearing in city court today and pleading innocent, Fuller's case was adjourned until Dec. 26. He presently is in jail in lieu of $500 bail.

The woman, Carol Bechtold, told authorities that Fuller had hit her. He was arrested Friday night.

12 Accidents Occur in City

Wet road surfaces and what police termed "a general holiday attitude" accounted for a total of 12 accidents within city limits Friday and early this morning.

Despite the number of collisions, police said no injuries were reported and that most of the mishaps were minor auto scrapes. However, several persons were ticketed on assorted charges, police said.

Accused of driving while intoxicated and leaving the scene of an accident is Clifton Longendyke of 14 Adams Street. He was arrested by police after allegedly hitting a parked auto on Washington Avenue.

Officers said that Longendyke was traveling south on Washington Avenue early today when he swerved into a car owned by Evelyn Weiner of 69 Washington Avenue. Police said the accused continued south and turning onto the Boulevard stalled where officers apprehended him.

Thirty-year-old Walter W. Petruski of 80 Emerick Street was accused Friday night of operating a vehicle without brakes following two accidents within 10 minutes.

Police said that Petruski first collided with a car of Joseph Vartanesian Jr. of 278 Broadway on East Chester Street around 8:35 p. m. Moments later, 8:44 p. m., Petruski lost control of his auto on Clinton Avenue and smashed into a tree and utility pole, police said. Central Hudson Gas and Electric was summnoed to clear damaged wires, police added.

Early today two cars collided on Broadway near Liberty Street. Police said that Joan Glennon of 373 Abeel Street was ticketed for failing to keep right.

According to reports, the Glennon womar was traveling south on Broadway when switching lanes, she collided with a car of Walter Dirks of 17 Greenkill Avenue.

Police Raid Nets $200Gs In Buffalo

BUFFALO, N.Y. (AP)—Police claim they have struck a major blow to organized crime in the Buffalo area with a raid that netted about $200,000 in stolen property.

No arrests were made in the raid Friday on a West Side house and garage, but investigators said some could be expected "in the near future."

The loot included $55,000 in silverware and china stolen from a downtown shop last month, $15,000 worth of cigarettes and $45,000 in furs—including a full-length chinchilla coat bearing a $12,000 price tag.

State Police Capt. Henry Williams said "there is no question that the stolen property here is connected with the Cosa Nostra. The investigation is continuing and there will be arrests made in the near future."

The raid, Williams added "was a major blow to organized crime in this area. They'll miss the revenue from these items."

The investigation was connected to the theft, and later recovery of another $100,000 in furs earlier this month, he said.

City and State police and FBI agents loaded the loot onto a rented van, which took it to State Police Troop A headquarters in Batavia for fingerprint checks and identification.

The goods were found in an unoccupied apartment, basement and garage.

The raid was staged at 315 Auburn Ave.

The vehicle fish-tailed back and forth across the highway when it was struck broadside in the southbound lane by the Russell vehicle.

Ringwood, riding alone, was unable to stop and his car was in collision with the Russell vehicle, troopers said. The force of the impact split the Manti car in two pieces, it was reported by investigating officers.

Sandcomb was a passenger in Mantis car. The other injured, with the exception of Ringwood were riding in Russell's car at the time of the triple-death crash.

George D. Dougherty, 24, of Highland, was injured Friday afternoon when the car he was driving was in collision on Tillson Avenue in that community with a parked car, owned by Thomas R. Russell, 31, also of Highland.

Dougherty was driving east when his car rammed into the rear of the other vehicle. He was taken to Vassar Hospital by Alamo Ambulance and treated for lacerations of the forehead. On his release he was arrested by Trooper P. A. Koenig on a charge of drunken driving.

Arraigned before Lloyd Town Justice Lewis DiStasi, Dougherty was released in $50 pending hearing. A plea of innocent was entered on his behalf.

Anthony Nicoletti, 27, of 1094 Codwise Street, was injured at 6:20 p. m. Friday when his car skidded out of control on Neighborhood Road near Boice's Lane and hit a utility pole. Trooper A. J. Scarselli said Nicoletti was taken to Kingston Hospital and treated for scalp lacerations and abrasions. He was cited by Trooper Carl Van Wagenen for driving while intoxicated, Scarselli said. A second charge accused the driver of operating a car at speed not reasonable and prudent.

At 5:45 p. m. yesterday, Edward M. Mayer, 48, of 114 Elm Street, Saugerties, was cited by Trooper James Fitzgerald for driving while intoxicated, according to Scarselli. Mayer was driving north on Route 9W two miles south of Route 32 when his car left the road and hit an embankment.

Eugene Just Wants Time To Answer LBJ

WASHINGTON (AP) — Rebuffed by the major networks, Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy is asking the government to insure he gets radio and television time to answer statements by President Johnson.

The Minnesota Democrat, who says he'll challenge Johnson in several Democratic presidential primaries next year, asked Friday that the Federal Communications Commission order NBC, CBS and ABC to provide him air time.

His FCC appeal came shortly after ABC and NBC, following an earlier stand by CBS, rejected McCarthy's request for equal time to answer President Johnson's televised assertion Tuesday that the Minnesotan was working with Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, D-N.Y., in a quest for the nomination.

Both McCarthy and Kennedy have repeatedly denied they're allied in an effort to oust Johnson.

The networks said McCarthy isn't entitled to equal time under laws governing broadcasting because Johnson is not a declared candidate for re-election.

Saying Johnson won't run next year denies "a fact which every American child knows," said Blair Clark, McCarthy's campaign manager, in the appeal to the FCC.

"The people of the country have the right to know," Clark continued, "whether the FCC is going to permit a President who is obviously a candidate for re-election to use the powerful network TV and radio facilities without a right of response by other announced candidates."

Clark said the FCC should either order the networks to give McCarthy equal time or hold a hearing on the issue.

Killed in Collision

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — An automobile and a tractor-trailer collided late Friday outside the Hooker Chemical Co. plant here, fatally injuring the car's driver.

Joseph G. Winker, 39, of Niagara Falls, died three hours later in Memorial Hospital, police said. The truck driver, W.D. Shields, 40, of Hull, Ga. escaped injury, they said.

Winker's home was at 823 91st St.

Big Question: How Many Viet Cong Troops?

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We just don't know how many Viet Cong there are in South Vietnam" says a veteran military officer who holds a key Pentagon staff post and has seen both field and staff duty in Vietnam.

This officer, who asked that his name not be used, was long involved in the frustrating effort to get a reliable count of enemy strength in South Vietnam.

His view was echoed by other officers who have wrestled with the problem.

They acknowledged that some of the estimates boil down to educated guessing, based on analysis of intelligence gathered from captured documents, interrogation of prisoners and defectors, and reports from Vietnamese and U.S. sources.

Recent estimates have ranged from a low of 223,000 North Vietnamese and Viet Cong up to 400,000-plus.

Much depends on the terms of reference—whether those doing the estimating count only Communist soldiers or whether they add political cadre as well; whether they count regular and guerrilla soldiers or also include the much more shadowy "secret self-defense forces."

Reasonable Estimate

About a month ago, after better than a year of refining methods and studies, the U.S. intelligence community came up with what it regards as the most reasonable estimate of enemy strength.

The U.S. Command in Saigon announced Nov. 24 that it now calculates the Communist "order of battle" to range between 223,000 and 248,000 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese.

This was about 50,000 fewer than the figure used before that in official statements.

It also varied from Gen. William C. Westmoreland's estimate of 242,000 which he gave to a Pentagon news conference two days earlier.

Westmoreland's estimate and the Saigon command's figures later that week both left out the political cadre which, though important, they chose not to count as part of the fighting force faced by nearly 500,000 Americans and allied soldiers in South Vietnam.

The official Saigon estimate, which now is quoted at the Pentagon as well, omits the self-defense element of the Viet Cong, basically local Communists who are for the most part unarmed, U.S. officers say, and serves as a kind of manpower pool for Red forces.

The unofficial estimates published in some quarters include both the political cadre and the amorphous "secret self-defense forces."

Much Variation

While claiming U.S. intelligence has improved markedly, authorities concede there is still a considerable variation in the firmness of the data on which their judgments are made.

They claim U.S. intelligence is good when it comes to estimating the strength of North Vietnamese and Viet Cong regular units. The Nov. 24 official estimate placed this force, including Viet Cong local units, at 118,000 men. Since then, sources said, the estimate has declined to about 115,000.

Their estimate of 70,000 to 90,000 Viet Cong guerrillas is not as firm as in the case of the calculations of the enemy regulars.

This appears to be the trend as the analysts go down through the less identifiable levels of the enemy.

The current appraisal lists 35,000 to 40,000 Communists serving fulltime in noncombat roles such as military staffs, medical aides, supply, administration and other support.

While these do not fight, they are counted in with the "order of battle."

The self-defense elements, which the estimate no longer counts in the Communist "order of battle", are described as mainly part-timers of all ages with a high percentage of women.

It is difficult to get a handle on their numbers and nobody will vouch for any figures, although there is a general estimate that they totaled possible some 65,000 to 80,000 last year.

If the political cadre were added to the official U.S. estimate of the enemy strength, it would bring the total as high as 333,000, without including the self-defense group.

But a judgment was made that this political cadre is not military and "therefore we will no longer carry them in our military order of battle."

As the holy season arrives

Educated Guesses

Big Question: How Many Viet Cong Troops?

WASHINGTON (AP) — "We just don't know how many Viet Cong there are in South Vietnam" says a veteran military officer who holds a key Pentagon staff post and has seen both field and staff duty in Vietnam.

This officer, who asked that his name not be used, was long involved in the frustrating effort to get a reliable count of enemy strength in South Vietnam.

His view was echoed by other officers who have wrestled with the problem.

A Recommendation: Gift-Wrapped Shark

NEW YORK (AP) — 'Tis the season to be jolly, and what could be jollier than getting a gift-wrapped shark for Christmas?

Or Santa Claus playing accomplice to a pair of bank robbers?

Or a Christmas tree which grows its own ornaments?

Or take the little Jewish boy who informs the store Santa Claus in Omaha that while he does not celebrate Christmas he does observe Chanukah, the festival of lights. So Santa Claus asks him what would he like for Chanukah, and the kid says "A Christmas tree."

The Christmas shark bit was dreamed up by a pet dealer in Caracas, Venezuela. As the gift for the man who has everything, including an extra swimming pool, the dealer offered live sharks at $22 a head.

Innocent Stooge

Cincinnati was where Santa Claus turned up as the innocent stooge in a bank robbery. He was standing in front of the lens of a tell-tale camera intended to discourage holdups. So two gunmen clipped a teller for $4,200 and scrammed, unphotographed and unidentified.

The self-decorating Christmas tree? It has been developed in an arboretum at Placerville, Calif., by the Forest Genetics Institute of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The institute crossed two types of lodgepole pine and emerged with a tree which develops ornamental cones while still small enough to stand in a room.

In Portland, Ore., postal workers browsing through letters to Santa Claus ran across one from a little girl named Susan which contained a warning: "Santa, I want to tell you about our chimney. We haven't got one."

In Los Angeles, thieves marked up an assist for Christmas shoppers. The sheriff held a holiday auction of 500 unclaimed stolen articles retrieved from burglars and such.

In Des Moines, Iowa, a merchant cutely wrapped his front door to resemble a big Christmas present and pasted on a label saying "Please DO open before Christmas."

We Wish the Joys of Christmas to one and all . . . .

May the blessings of Christmas be bestowed on you this holy season.

Seal Campaign Tops '66

Ulster County's 1967 Christmas Seal Campaign is running ahead of last year, although returns have been slow, according to the announcement just released by Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., chairman of the 1967 Ulster County Christmas Seal drive.

Receipts as of Tuesday total $25,107.89, Dr. Holcomb reported, compared with $24,334.18 at the same date in 1966, thus placing the campaign level on this date $773.71 ahead of a year ago.

"The TB-RD Christmas Seal Association is highly gratified at the increase shown so far," Dr. Holcomb said. "Of course, it is important to emphasize that the campaign is far from over, and it's our hope and prayer that all those who haven't yet answered their Christmas Seal appeals will do so promptly and help maintain this lead right to the finish line. Our Ulster County TB-RD Association is anxious to continue the development of its county-wide activities aimed at wiping out TB and controlling the other Respiratory Diseases, which cause well over 300 million bed disability days each year in the United States. In order to make this hope an actuality our need for funds to serve Ulster County people is greater now than ever."

"As chairman of the Ulster County Christmas Seal fund" Dr. Holcomb continued, "I want to point out further to every one of our Ulster County people that the Christmas Seal dollars they give are used largely right here in Ulster County programs and for Ulster County TB patients. An annual 81 per cent total of our Ulster County dollars stay here in Ulster County with only one per cent going to the State TB-RD Association and to the National Tuberculosis Association, our State and National affiliates, toward state and national program and research."

Dr. Holcomb further noted that the Christmas Seal contributions of concerned and enlightened Ulster County people still remains the major source of income for the TB-RD Association which, year in, year out, wages the fight against pulmonary diseases. The Association is seeking adequate Christmas Seal support to carry out its program of X-rays, Tuberculin Tests, public education, air pollution, medical scholarships, professional education, medical research and legislation.

During the past year Christmas Seal X-ray programs were conducted by the Association at county schools, two communities, and industry and the many abnormalities discovered were placed under official study and follow-up. Considering the importance of early detection and diagnosis, it would be hard to overstate the value of this service.

Tuberculin Testing programs in the three hospitals will continue and the Air Pollution Action-for-Clean Air Program will be given added program emphasis.

The Ulster County Christmas Seals Compaign continues officially to Dec. 31, the chairman noted, though returns continue to arrive well into the New Year.

Has Revolver, Is Fined $100

For Joey Fay, Inman

Rocky's Yuletide Clemency

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The sentences of two men convicted of murder in the 1940s were commuted by Gov. Rockefeller Friday, permitting their release from prison.

The governor, exercising traditional Christmastime clemency, also acted to restore the voting rights of four New Jersey residents.

The group included Joseph (Joey) Fay, a former labor leader who was visited by political and labor leaders in 1953 while serving a prison sentence for extorting money from contractors.

The New York State Parole Board had recommended the governor's action in all six cases.

The convicted murderers are Lloyd G. Inman, 48, who has been serving a life sentence in Attica State Prison, and Herbert Boone, 44, serving 40 years to life in Wallkill Prison. Their sentences were commuted to time served, meaning they will be feed within the next few weeks.

Convicted in 1948

Inman was convicted for killing his father-in-law at Barre Center, Orleans County, in 1948. The governor's office said Inman had believed that his wife, the former Gladys Larson, was carrying on an incestuous affair with her father, William Larson.

Inman "devoted himself to a program of self-improvement" in prison, the governor said, and had become a qualified electrician and carpenter. He said Inman would be returned to Missouri and placed under supervision of the Missouri parole board.

Boone was convicted as an accomplice in the slaying of a Manhattan restaurant manager during a robbery in 1943. Rockefeller described Boone's prison record as "exemplary" and said he would be released on parole.

Action by the governor was required to restore the voting rights of the other four, since they are residents of another state. The New York parole board has this authority for state residents.

Rockefeller's office said action by New Jersey officials was contingent on his approval.

Fay, a former vice president of the AFL Operating Engineers Union, was convicted in 1945 of extorting $368,000 from contractors on the Delaware Aqueduct project, a part of New York City's water system.

He was transferred from Sing Sing Prison to Dannemora Oct. 3, 1953, by order of then Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, after disclosures that a number of prominent persons had called on him at Sing Sing.

Wicks Among Visitors

Among the visitors was the then State Senate majority leader, Arthur H. Wicks, a Kingston Republican.

Pressed by Dewey, Wicks explained that he had gone to Fay to ask him to avert labor disputes in Wicks' senatorial district—Ulster, Greene, Sullivan and Delaware counties.

Dewey said the explanation was not acceptable and moved to force Wicks out as majority leader.

Rockefeller's office said Fay now was leading a "quiet life" at Avon-By-The-Sea, N.J.

Besides Fay, the others are: Peter F. Thomsen, 37, of Fort Lee, who was convicted of robbery in 1952; Kenneth W. Robertson, 59, Caldwell convicted of grand larceny in 1942 and James V. Mendola, 56, Bricktown, convicted of grand larcency in 1934.

Political Winds

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

It was the night of July 10 of this year when, at 8:15 p.m. on the second floor of the County Court House, the action started and the maneuverings ended. The Ulster County Republican Committee chose John B. Sterley to take the wheel of leadership from outgoing Kenneth L. Wilson, the late Jesse McHugh was reelected as first vice-chairman, Mrs. Rose LeFever retained her position as second vice-chairman, and the new post of third vice-chairman was filled by Saugerties GOP Chairman Louis P. Francello.

The post of secretary was given to Clarence Anderson of West Hurley, a fact that many believed left Robert Snyder, long-time secretary, shocked and bitter.

Action Brewing

One could say that Snyder was not given adequate notice, but the desire to get him off the committee, and even his post as secretary of the Board of Supervisors, had been brewing for some time.

Insiders say that, as budget officer, he was not holding up his end and that Edward R. Mance, deputy chairman, had been doing most of the work.

Mance, town clerk of the Town of Wawarsing for about 15 years, and chairman of the Republican committee out there, is the new clerk of the board and budget officer.

A usually informed source claimed that so overwhelmed was Snyder with the 1967 budget, that a state employe had to be brought down from Albany and paid $1,500 to put the budget in order. The money was supposedly hidden in the '67 report.

Currently, according to Budget Officer Mance, outside help was brought in to complete work on the troublesome '68 financial report.

An organizational meeting between Ulster's Republicans will be held sometime after the first of the year to determine who will take over Jesse McHugh's old post.

It is difficult to say where third vice-chairman Francello stands now, what with that big defeat he suffered in Saugerties and the common assumption that Francello's rise meant Snyder's descent, in that both men hail from Saugerties.

It will be difficult for the ambitious Francello to smooth over his recent Saugerties losses, but it does not appear that he had anything to do with the Snyder ouster.

A Wait for Quilty

Now that Ken Wilson has announced he will again seek the assemblyman post, Larry Quilty will have to wait until after Wilson's next term if he wants that post.

As for who will oppose Wilson, some Ulster Dems are looking towards Roger Mabie of Esopus.

It does not appear that Mabie will be able to go for the congressional nomination, considering the tremendous costs involved.

The same consideration must be in the mind of Assemblyman Victor Waryas of Dutchess County, a man of modest means.

Dies in Hospital

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A 15-year-old boy died Friday night in Mount St. Mary's Hospital, Lewiston, nearly 24 hours after he was struck by an automobile here.

For Joey Fay, Inman

Rocky's Yuletide Clemency

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The sentences of two men convicted of murder in the 1940s were commuted by Gov. Rockefeller Friday, permitting their release from prison.

The governor, exercising traditional Christmastime clemency, also acted to restore the voting rights of four New Jersey residents.

The group included Joseph (Joey) Fay, a former labor leader who was visited by political and labor leaders in 1953 while serving a prison sentence for extorting money from contractors.

The New York State Parole Board had recommended the governor's action in all six cases.

The convicted murderers are Lloyd G. Inman, 48, who has been serving a life sentence in Attica State Prison, and Herbert Boone, 44, serving 40 years to life in Wallkill Prison. Their sentences were commuted to time served, meaning they will be feed within the next few weeks.

Convicted in 1948

Inman was convicted for killing his father-in-law at Barre Center, Orleans County, in 1948. The governor's office said Inman had believed that his wife, the former Gladys Larson, was carrying on an incestuous affair with her father, William Larson.

Inman "devoted himself to a program of self-improvement" in prison, the governor said, and had become a qualified electrician and carpenter. He said Inman would be returned to Missouri and placed under supervision of the Missouri parole board.

Boone was convicted as an accomplice in the slaying of a Manhattan restaurant manager during a robbery in 1943. Rockefeller described Boone's prison record as "exemplary" and said he would be released on parole.

Action by the governor was required to restore the voting rights of the other four, since they are residents of another state. The New York parole board has this authority for state residents.

Rockefeller's office said action by New Jersey officials was contingent on his approval.

Fay, a former vice president of the AFL Operating Engineers Union, was convicted in 1945 of extorting $368,000 from contractors on the Delaware Aqueduct project, a part of New York City's water system.

He was transferred from Sing Sing Prison to Dannemora Oct. 3, 1953, by order of then Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, after disclosures that a number of prominent persons had called on him at Sing Sing.

Wicks Among Visitors

Among the visitors was the then State Senate majority leader, Arthur H. Wicks, a Kingston Republican.

Pressed by Dewey, Wicks explained that he had gone to Fay to ask him to avert labor disputes in Wicks' senatorial district—Ulster, Greene, Sullivan and Delaware counties.

Dewey said the explanation was not acceptable and moved to force Wicks out as majority leader.

Rockefeller's office said Fay now was leading a "quiet life" at Avon-By-The-Sea, N.J.

Besides Fay, the others are: Peter F. Thomsen, 37, of Fort Lee, who was convicted of robbery in 1952; Kenneth W. Robertson, 59, Caldwell convicted of grand larceny in 1942 and James V. Mendola, 56, Bricktown, convicted of grand larcency in 1934.

Political Winds

By CHARLES BERMPOHL
Freeman Political Writer

It was the night of July 10 of this year when, at 8:15 p.m. on the second floor of the County Court House, the action started and the maneuverings ended. The Ulster County Republican Committee chose John B. Sterley to take the wheel of leadership from outgoing Kenneth L. Wilson, the late Jesse McHugh was reelected as first vice-chairman, Mrs. Rose LeFever retained her position as second vice-chairman, and the new post of third vice-chairman was filled by Saugerties GOP Chairman Louis P. Francello.

The post of secretary was given to Clarence Anderson of West Hurley, a fact that many believed left Robert Snyder, long-time secretary, shocked and bitter.

Action Brewing

One could say that Snyder was not given adequate notice, but the desire to get him off the committee, and even his post as secretary of the Board of Supervisors, had been brewing for some time.

Insiders say that, as budget officer, he was not holding up his end and that Edward R. Mance, deputy chairman, had been doing most of the work.

Mance, town clerk of the Town of Wawarsing for about 15 years, and chairman of the Republican committee out there, is the new clerk of the board and budget officer.

A usually informed source claimed that so overwhelmed was Snyder with the 1967 budget, that a state employe had to be brought down from Albany and paid $1,500 to put the budget in order. The money was supposedly hidden in the '67 report.

Currently, according to Budget Officer Mance, outside help was brought in to complete work on the troublesome '68 financial report.

An organizational meeting between Ulster's Republicans will be held sometime after the first of the year to determine who will take over Jesse McHugh's old post.

It is difficult to say where third vice-chairman Francello stands now, what with that big defeat he suffered in Saugerties and the common assumption that Francello's rise meant Snyder's descent, in that both men hail from Saugerties.

It will be difficult for the ambitious Francello to smooth over his recent Saugerties losses, but it does not appear that he had anything to do with the Snyder ouster.

A Wait for Quilty

Now that Ken Wilson has announced he will again seek the assemblyman post, Larry Quilty will have to wait until after Wilson's next term if he wants that post.

As for who will oppose Wilson, some Ulster Dems are looking towards Roger Mabie of Esopus.

It does not appear that Mabie will be able to go for the congressional nomination, considering the tremendous costs involved.

The same consideration must be in the mind of Assemblyman Victor Waryas of Dutchess County, a man of modest means.

It Was the South African Grocer Who Passed On, Not the Idea of the Unusual Heart Transplant

BY JOHN BARBOUR
AP Science Writer

In the end it was the man who died, but not the idea.

For a time a 53-year-old South African grocer with a failing heart had been given hope, indeed had lived 18 days with a strange new heart beating in his breast, and smiled and talked cautiously about the future.

Then he died, and with him the chance for success in this first attempt to transplant the human heart from one person to another.

The experiment was born out of the desperate frustration of doctors watching the whole man die for want of one healthy organ.

It will be tried again for the same reason.

In the last days, something began to accumulate slowly in the body, in the lungs, of Louis Washkansky. Perhaps it was the mysterious poison of rejection, or the subtle strands of an infection. Doctors are not sure which.

On Dec. 3 in daring surgery they had replaced Washkansky's sick heart with the more vital heart of Denise Ann Darvall, 25, an auto accident victim. But now they were powerless to stop the secret forces moving against Washkansky.

The failure points up the gaps in man's knowledge. The doctors know how the heart works, how the blood courses through this vital pump to the lungs to be refreshed, and back through the heart to carry food and to cleanse the distant cells of the body.

They know how to keep a man alive briefly with a heart-lung machine. They know how to take a heart out and place it in another body.

They know that a certain white blood cell called a lymphocyte is a keystone to the body's ability to fight off infection, to build immunity, to reject things foreign. They know that somehow the lymphocyte recognizes protein intruders, and mobilizes against them.

They know that the body produces antibodies against germs and against foreign tissues. They know these antibodies are designed to attack specific targets.

But no one knows just how the immunity forces, the rejection mechanism, work. No one knows just how the body recognizes a transplanted heart or kidney or liver or spleen as a stranger. No one knows for certain whether there are one or many systems at work to protect the body.

The doctors give transplant patients powerful drugs to drive down the immunity forces, to make the body more tolerant although they know that when they do this they are nearly stripping the body of its weapons against even normally harmlss infecion.
marmless infection.

Thus, the body may learn to tolerate its new kidney or heart only to die later of pneumonia.

The doctors see strange signs in the lungs and wonder if it is a bacteria they can fight with antibiotics, or a fungus, or a virus against which they are powerless.

The lungs, one of the body's filters, become the collecting point of trouble. Here doctors may find blood clots that form elsewhere, or clumps of cells, or slowly accumulating fluids when the heart shows signs of failure.

So it was with Louis Washkansky. If his lungs were infected, the infection did not respond to penicillin.

If it were some sign of rejection that showed in the lungs, the doctors could not recognize it.

From the beginning, Washkansky must have known the awful reality of his odds for survival. His was the first heart transplant, and the first of anything is the most risky.

He also must have known that his would not be the last. Even while he was recuperating, Dr. Adrian Kantrowitz, a Brooklyn heart surgeon, took the heart from a dead baby and transplanted it to the chest of a 2½ week old boy. For six hours the infant lived with his new heart, and then it failed, and the doctors did not know why.

Yet the men who pioneer transplants know they must try in humans, or never know the answers. They have not rushed to the surgical table. Dr. Kantrowitz said his hospital and his team felt they were ready to transplant a heart as early as mid-1966. Yet they did not attempt it until Dec. 6.

In the cases tried, death is first judged to be inevitable anyway for bothdonor and recipient, with or without the operation.

Surgeons also know that human heart transplants are not the answer for the half a million Americans who die each year of heart trouble. There would not be enough hearts to go around, even if doctors knew well enough how to make the heart last. The answer, almost everyone believes, is a truly artificial, man-made heart to replace those that become sick. Beyond that, the better answer is to prevent heart disease in the first place.

Yet perhaps a new heart could keep a person alive long enough for the artificial heart to become reality.

In any case, faced with a person 90 per cent healthy but dying for want of a heart or a kidney, doctors will take any reasonable step to thwart death.

AD MEN and VERTISERS NOTES

Brief items concerning regular local advertisers and national advertisers in

The Kingston Daily Freeman

Prepared By: WARREN W. SIMMONS, Adv. Director

SATURDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1967

from the Advertising Staff of The Kingston Daily Freeman

Down through the ages comes the happy message to stir the hearts of all men of good will. A very happy Christmas to you and yours!

W.W.S.

The exciting cresendo of Christmas has finaliy reached the peak of its intensity. As each merchant locks his door Saturday evening, a part of this pre-Christmas tension will cease. The hustle and bustle is over. The church bells will be ringing their welcome invitation to hear the joyful Christmas story. And, off yonder beyond the distant rooftops, the faint Ho-Ho-Ho of Santa can be heard drawing ever closer.

Everything seems to be in order, as well it should be, for the glorious advent of Christmas. There seems to be but one thing left to do . . . that is to wish you all a Very Merry Christmas!

Bob Saehloff

"The Lord bless thee, and keep thee: The Lord make His face to shine upon thee, and be gracious unto thee; The Lord lift up His countenance upon thee, and give thee peace" . . . . at this Holiday time and in the year to come.

Sherwood Lasher

A Christmas Wish for a Very Happy Holiday for you and yours.

Robert L. Bain, Jr.

The charm of Christmas lies in the thought that we live in the memory of our friends. Merrie Christmas to all.

Henry P. Eighmey

JOY AT CHRISTMAS
MY CHRISTMAS WISH TO ALL MY FRIENDS

That the peace, love and understanding of this Holy Season of Christmas will prevail throughout the land, bring contentment and a lasting joy to every heart.

John W. Davis

This is Christmas . . .

Christmas is treasured fragments of holidays past, gift wrapped in affection and gayly tied with the ribbons of time.

Christmas is a fragrance — the whiff of candles, the scent of spruce — the pungencies of spices — all blended in laughing bouquets of happiness.

Christmas is a light in the winter darkness—the glitter of tree lights — the flicker of fire light — the glow of lamplight — the radiance of eyes alight with love.

Christmas is being together — family and friendly gatherings with open hearts and simple joys and reverence.

Christmas is a time to appraise the past — risk a dream of the future and be grateful for the gift of friendship.

I take this opportunity to wish you the blesings of Good Health, Good Fortune, and Merry Christmas to one and all . . . and in the words of Tiny Tim, "God Bless us, everyone."

Donald H. Burgher

To all my friends and customers, sincere best wishes for the holiday season. May your Christmas be bright with good cheer, warm with the affection of those you love, and merry with the sound of laughter.

Bill Roosa

Children Will Love to Make Pomanders

Let children have the joy of giving a gift that they have made themselves. Be it for grandmother, a teacher, the scout leader or an aunt, there is a breathless hush during the opening of that special gift and then the explosive "I made it myself!" Your child will delight in making pomander balls. Made from bright holiday oranges or lemons, they have a festive look and their spicy odor gives closets or drawers an intriguing fragrance. All that one needs is a fresh orange or lemon, a box of whole cloves, powdered orris root (available at your local drug store), ground cinnamon and a foot of gay ribbon.

Select clean firm fruit. Prick holes in fruit with an awl or ice pick, being careful to stagger them to prevent the skin from splitting. Using a pair of old gloves to protect your finger tips, stick whole cloves into each hole until the fruit is covered. Roll the clove-stuck fruit in a mixture of equal parts of orris root and ground cinnamon. Pat in as much of the powdered mixture as will adhere to the fruit. Wrap the pomander in tissue paper or other soft paper to await Christmas. Remove the paper, shake off any loose powder and attach a gay ribbon for hanging. Wrapping their special gift is just as much fun for your small fry as the making of the pomander.

A wide-mouth vacuum jar is perfect for holding Hollandaise Sauce that is made a few hours before serving.

ORANGE BOWL QUEEN for 1968 is Patricia Taylor, a 20-year-old University of Miami junior from Fairfax, Va.

Metropolitan Opera Auditions Scheduled

District auditions for the Metropolitan Opera will take place at Harpur College in Binghamton Saturday, Jan. 29. Auditions will begin at 1:15 p.m. with warm-up sessions for all participants in the morning between 9 and 12 a.m. The auditions, sponsored by the Junior League of Binghamton, are under the auspices of the 1968 Metropolitan Opera National Council Auditions for the northwestern New York State District.

Singers from 19 to 35 years of age are eligible, in the following categories: sopranos must be 19 through 30 years old; altos 19 through 32; tenors 20 through 32; baritones 20 through 33; and basses 20 through 35 years of age. Each candidate must be sponsored by a voice teacher, school or musical organization. The competition will be judged by three persons nationally known in the music world.

Three prizes will be awarded at Binghamton with a $100 first prize, $75 second prize, and $50 third prize. The first and second prize winners go to the regional auditions.

Again this year there will be a six month delay between the National Semi-finals and the National Finals, in which regional winners will be given a stage audition before Met General Manager Rudolph Bing. The semi-finalists will be given awards to finance six months of voice lessons and coaching, generally in their hometowns, before they enter the National Finals.

For one month before the finals they will be brought to New York for further coaching by the Metropolitan's artistic staff. This is a wonderful opportunity for the semi-finalists.

National auditions winner will receive awards named for Lilliana Terruzzi and Stuart and Irene Chambers, and perhaps, the most coveted of all, a contract with the Metropolitan Opera and Metropolitan Opera National Company. In addition, participants may be selected for the Metropolitan Opera studio and the Kathryn Turner Long School.

Applications must be filed by December 31 with Mrs. Joseph P. Minnich Jr., 7 Johnson Avenue, Binghamton. Application blanks may be obtained by sending a self-addressed, stamped envelope to Mrs. Minnich.

An accompanist will be available to play the piano for singers who are unable to bring their own accompanists to the auditions.

Good Marinade

Salad oil (but not olive) mixed with soy sauce and sweet sherry make a good marinade for flank steak that is to be broiled. If you like, you can add a cut and slightly crushed garlic clove to the marinade.

Scenes That Made Auditorium Place to Be Last Night

Manhattan Captures CBT Title

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

In just five, final, frustrating and foul-ridden minutes, a bone crushing defeat descended upon Ulster County Community College's undefeated Senators last night at the municipal auditorium.

A fast closing, inspired Manhattan Community College quintet of New York had whipped the locals, 104-100, to snatch their own 2nd annual Christmas Basketball Tournament away from them.

A driving layup by Ulster's Frank Zilliox closed out the scoring at 104-100 a few seconds before the final buzzer. When it did sound, pandemonium broke loose around the Manhattan bench.

The players swarmed to the floor, snatched up their famous coach, Dolly King, like a sack of flour and paraded him on their shoulders like it must have been in the days of the gladiators.

King Is Happy

Dolly King, All-American out of Long Island and a famed referee in his own right, who throughout the bitterly fought contest had consistently berated officials Art Kalaka and Bob Magill, was at peace with the world.

While the on-floor vignette was unfolding, Ulster's Coach Mike Perry, battling a siege of the flu, sat slumped on the Senators' bench, seemingly oblivious of the surroundings.

He had seen UCCC's unbeaten season and 13-game winning streak go down the drain. He had watched as Ulster completed the contest with three of its Big Five—Joe Uhl, Leon Hanna and Frank Roselli—banished to the bench on fouls before the game ended.

Ephrain Steals Show

The fans, who jampacked the pleasantly air-conditioned auditorium had come to cheer Ulster's Joe Uhl and Manhattan's sensational Nep Rivera and they weren't disappointed. But it was a whirling dervish by the name of Fred Ephrain, who had really crushed Senator hopes.

Rivera led all scorers with a brilliant 39-point performance. Uhl finished with 34 after a 26-point first half, exhausted from the game's dizzy pace and an illness that had not been advertised.

But sophomore Ephrain was the sensational whole player. Rebounding, hawking, stealing and scoring clutch points (28 in all) he put on a scintillating show that many in the audience felt entilted him to the Most Valuable Player Award. It went to Uhl, with Rivera second in the balloting. He was named to the tournament's all-star five.

Ten free throw conversions in 12 attempts forced by Manhattan's alternating fast break, slowdown and pass-and-run strategy wrecked the Senators in the stretch.

With 8 minutes remaining, Ephrain's layup tied the score at 81-81 and the action was furious to the finish. Rod Chando, off balance, fell and took Rivera to the floor with him. The Manhattan bench yelled foul and a big rhubarb appeared in the making. After the storm subsided, Rivera showed how "injured" he was by converting 2 free throws to put Manhattan ahead, 83-81, and they never relinquished the lead. He followed with a side shot and it was 85-81.

Roselli Tremendous

Ulster called time with 7:50 remaining and Uhl, fouled by Ephrain, converted a foul. With 6:00 left, Frank Roselli, who played his heart out with a tremendous 24-point effort for UCCC, got two free throws to close the gap to 88-84 and followed with a layup to make it 90-86. Ulster again called time.

On resumption of play, Uhl blew a jumper and followup but picked up two fouls and it was 90-88. Coach King kicked up a storm on the foul call against Davis and Roselli got one on 1-and-1 to make it 91-88.

With all the marbles at stake, Dolly King ordered a slowdown. Henderson replaced Bill Boines for UCCC and Uhl drew his fourth foul on Ephrain who got both tries for 93-88 at the 3:20 mark.

Roselli, a man inspired at this juncture, missed a foul but hit with a jumper (93-90). Enter Mr. Rivera, cooled off in the first half of the second half with a jumper, Rod Chando with a followup and Rivera again a jumper and it was 97-92 with 2:00 remaining.

Steal for Roselli

Roselli stole the ball and soloed in for 97-94 at 1:30. Uhl fouled out with 1:26 left and was replaced by Mike Derrenbacher, who fouled Rivera, who got one for the 100th Manhattan point.

Roselli fouled Roethel, who made both tries for 102-96. Zilliox popped in a followup and Chando who shot before Roselli fouled out with 16 seconds remaining.

Felix Santiago cashed in on two free throws and Zilliox hit just before the buzzer to close it out 104-100.

UCCC suffered a bad blow when Leon Hanna, who had 12 points, fouled out with 12:15 still left on the clock. Ephrain's domination of the boards was painfully obvious after that.. Bill Boines failed to match his performance against Nassau but Chando (15), Roselli and Uhl didn't have to apologize for their stints.

Ulster had one brief moment of glory just before the first half ended when a 6-point spurt (Roselli 2 fouls, Chando and Uhl baskets) put them ahead, 57-51, with 30 seconds left. But the irrepressible Rivera stole a ball and sneaked in two quick baskets to cut the lead to 57-51. It was a sign of things to come.

Balloting for MVP Stirs Mild Dissent

The balloting for Most Valuable Player in UCCC's Christmas tournament last night elicited more than pasing interest among the two-night observers.

Had all the fans had a chance to vote, there is a strong suspicion the award might have gone to Fred Ephrain, Manhatan's spectacular, high leaping rebounder, scorer and ball mover deluxe.

Ephrain's teammate, flashy Nep Rivera and Uhl dominated the balloting . . . Uhl was Big Joe for three halves of the tournament, Roselli and Chando positively solid . . . Nassau's Bob Hennig and Hudson Valley's John Nazarian also eye-catchers.

Starter Bobby Lloyd of Manhattan found Uhl too much man-for-man on defense, but freshman Ken Roethel impressed against the tiring UCCC ace . . . Not lost on the trained eyes was Uhl's superb passing off in the first half when he racked up a half dozen assists . . . No doubt about it — fouls hurt Ulster in the second half.

UCCC president Dr. George Erbstein made the championship presentations . . . The game attracted old time pro basketball fans like Jack Haber and Bob Murray . . . Dolly King was sharply critical of the reffing throughout the game, but was all smiles when the boys carried him off the floor following the final buzzer.

The auditorium was jampacked, with a little standing room at the Broadway end of the court. It was much cooler than Thursday night but later heated up and doors were opened to let in the December air.

Manhattan players were thirsting for this one. They were absolutely jubilant when Felix Santiago, an all-star pick, made the two foul shots to ice the win at the end of the game.

The sportsmanship of some fans in the crowd left much to be desired. They began booing Manhattan foul tries, when it became clear that Ulster was really going to have to fight to overcome a 5-point deficit near the end of the game.

It's difficult to properly follow the progress of a game at the municipal auditorium. The wall clock operates only for the last eight minutes of the 20-minute college halves and blacks out when time is called leaving the spectator guessing. It gets red faced the last 60 seconds . . . Acoustics for the PA system are as horrible as ever.

With the pressure of the winning streak off their backs, UCCC should be a better team. The Senators won't lose too many more.

Uhl Is Voted Most Valuable

Jumpin' Joe Uhl, the UCCC star who scored 34 points in a losing cause, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Holiday Tournament. He received three of five first place votes and 47 total votes.

The all-star team:

	Votes
Uhl, Ulster	47
Rivera, Manhattaan	44
Ephrain, Manhattan	40
Chando, Ulster	33
Santiago, Manhattan	23

Other votes—Roselli, Ulster, 20; Nazarian, Hudson Valley, 18; Hennig, Nassau 15.

Who Won That Jayvee Game?

Who did win that Jayvee basketball game between Arlington and Kingston High Thursday night at Arlington.

Arlington claimed a 65-64 victory. That's what the scoreboard showed. A check of the Kingston book after the game put Kingston ahead, 66-65. But by that time the "official" Arlington book was not available.

According to Kingston calculations, Bill Brady led with 24 points. Jerry Barber had 14 and Rocky Johnson 13.

Pagonetti of Arlington talled 28 points, 14 from the foul line. The home club converted 31 free throws.

Scenes That Made Auditorium Place to Be Last Night

Manhattan Captures CBT Title

By CHARLES J. TIANO
Sports Editor

In just five, final, frustrating and foul-ridden minutes, a bone crushing defeat descended upon Ulster County Community College's undefeated Senators last night at the municipal auditorium.

A fast closing, inspired Manhattan Community College quintet of New York had whipped the locals, 104-100, to snatch their own 2nd annual Christmas Basketball Tournament away from them.

A driving layup by Ulster's Frank Zilliox closed out the scoring at 104-100 a few seconds before the final buzzer. When it did sound, pandemonium broke loose around the Manhattan bench.

The players swarmed to the floor, snatched up their famous coach, Dolly King, like a sack of flour and paraded him on their shoulders like it must have been in the days of the gladiators.

King Is Happy

Dolly King, All-American out of Long Island and a famed referee in his own right, who throughout the bitterly fought contest had consistently berated officials Art Kalaka and Bob Magill, was at peace with the world.

While the on-floor vignette was unfolding, Ulster's Coach Mike Perry, battling a siege of the flu, sat slumped on the Senators' bench, seemingly oblivious of the surroundings.

He had seen UCCC's unbeaten season and 13-game winning streak go down the drain. He had watched as Ulster completed the contest with three of its Big Five—Joe Uhl, Leon Hanna and Frank Roselli—banished to the bench on fouls before the game ended.

Ephrain Steals Show

The fans, who jampacked the pleasantly air-conditioned auditorium had come to cheer Ulster's Joe Uhl and Manhattan's sensational Nep Rivera and they weren't disappointed. But it was a whirling dervish by the name of Fred Ephrain, who had really crushed Senator hopes.

Rivera led all scorers with a brilliant 39-point performance. Uhl finished with 34 after a 26-point first half, exhausted from the game's dizzy pace and an illness that had not been advertised.

But sophomore Ephrain was the sensational whole player. Rebounding, hawking, stealing and scoring clutch points (28 in all) he put on a scintillating show that many in the audience felt entitled him to the Most Valuable Player Award. It went to Uhl, with Rivera second in the balloting. He was named to the tournament's all-star five.

Ten free throw conversions in 12 attempts forced by Manhattan's alternating fast break, slowdown and pass-and-run strategy wrecked the Senators in the stretch.

With 8 minutes remaining, Ephrain's layup tied the score at 81-81 and the action was furious to the finish. Rod Chando, off balance, fell and took Rivera to the floor with him. The Manhattan bench yelled foul and a big rhubarb appeared in the making. After the storm subsided, Rivera showed how "injured" he was by converting 2 free throws to put Manhattan ahead, 83-81, and they never relinquished the lead. He followed with a side shot and it was 85-81.

Roselli Tremendous

Ulster called time with 7:50 remaining and Uhl, fouled by Ephrain, converted a foul. With 6:00 left, Frank Roselli, who played his heart out with a tremendous 24-point effort for UCCC, got two free throws to close the gap to 88-84 and followed with a layup to make it 90-86. Ulster again called time.

On resumption of play, Uhl blew a jumper and followup but picked up two fouls and it was 90-88. Coach King kicked up a storm on the foul call against Davis and Roselli got one on 1-and-1 to make it 91-88.

With all the marbles at stake, Dolly King ordered a slowdown. Henderson replaced Bill Boines for UCCC and Uhl drew his fourth foul on Ephrain who got both tries for 93-88 at the 3:20 mark.

Roselli, a man inspired at this juncture, missed a foul but hit with a jumper (93-90). Enter Mr. Rivera, cooled off in the first half of the second half with a jumper, Rod Chando with a followup and Rivera again a jumper and it was 97-92 with 2:00 remaining.

Steal for Roselli

Roselli stole the ball and soloed in for 97-94 at 1:30. Uhl fouled out with 1:26 left and was replaced by Mike Derrenbacher, who fouled Rivera, who got one for the 100th Manhattan point.

Roselli fouled Roethel, who made both tries for 102-96. Zilliox popped in a followup and Chando who shot before Roselli fouled out with 16 seconds remaining.

Felix Santiago cashed in on two free throws and Zilliox hit just before the buzzer to close it out 104-100.

UCCC suffered a bad blow when Leon Hanna, who had 12 points, fouled out with 12:15 still left on the clock. Ephrain's domination of the boards was painfully obvious after that.. Bill Boines failed to match his performance against Nassau but Chando (15), Roselli and Uhl didn't have to apologize for their stints.

Ulster had one brief moment of glory just before the first half ended when a 6-point spurt (Roselli 2 fouls, Chando and Uhl baskets) put them ahead, 57-51, with 30 seconds left. But the irrepressible Rivera stole a ball and sneaked in two quick baskets to cut the lead to 57-51. It was a sign of things to come.

Balloting for MVP Stirs Mild Dissent

The balloting for Most Valuable Player in UCCC's Christmas tournament last night elicited more than pasing interest among the two-night observers.

Had all the fans had a chance to vote, there is a strong suspicion the award might have gone to Fred Ephrain, Manhatan's spectacular, high leaping rebounder, scorer and ball mover deluxe.

Ephrain's teammate, flashy Nep Rivera and Uhl dominated the balloting . . . Uhl was Big Joe for three halves of the tournament, Roselli and Chando positively solid . . . Nassau's Bob Hennig and Hudson Valley's John Nazarian also eye-catchers.

Starter Bobby Lloyd of Manhattan found Uhl too much man-for-man on defense, but freshman Ken Roethel impressed against the tiring UCCC ace . . . Not lost on the trained eyes was Uhl's superb passing off in the first half when he racked up a half dozen assists . . . No doubt about it — fouls hurt Ulster in the second half.

UCCC president Dr. George Erbstein made the championship presentations . . . The game attracted old time pro basketball fans like Jack Haber and Bob Murray . . . Dolly King was sharply critical of the reffing throughout the game, but was all smiles when the boys carried him off the floor following the final buzzer.

The auditorium was jampacked, with a little standing room at the Broadway end of the court. It was much cooler than Thursday night but later heated up and doors were opened to let in the December air.

Manhattan players were thirsting for this one. They were absolutely jubilant when Felix Santiago, an all-star pick, made the two foul shots to ice the win at the end of the game.

The sportsmanship of some fans in the crowd left much to be desired. They began booing Manhattan foul tries, when it became clear that Ulster was really going to have to fight to overcome a 5-point deficit near the end of the game.

It's difficult to properly follow the progress of a game at the municipal auditorium. The wall clock operates only for the last eight minutes of the 20-minute college halves and blacks out when time is called leaving the spectator guessing. It gets red-faced the last 60 seconds . . . Acoustics for the PA system are as horrible as ever.

With the pressure of the winning streak off their backs, UCCC should be a better team. The Senators won't lose too many more.

Uhl Is Voted Most Valuable

Jumpin' Joe Uhl, the UCCC star who scored 34 points in a losing cause, was voted the Most Valuable Player in the Holiday Tournament. He received three of five first place votes and 47 total votes.

The all-star team:

	Votes

Ephrain, Manhattan	40
Chando, Ulster	33
Santiago, Manhattan	23

Other votes—Roselli, Ulster, 20; Nazarian, Hudson Valley, 18; Hennig, Nassau 15.

Four Top Teams in High School Holiday Tourney

MAN IN DEMAND — Charles Dudish, perhaps the most sought after high school player in the country, shows off a few of his trophies in Atlanta. More than 100 college offers, some tentative and others extravagantly concrete, have come pouring in to the Avondale High School star who has yet to make up his mind which one he will choose. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Roosevelt High of the DCSL, White Plains and Albany High have accepted invitations to the fourth annual Kingston High School Awards Tournament slated for Dec. 28-29 at the Kate Walton field house.

The draw for first round play sends Albany against White Plains in the first game Thursday night at 7:30 p. m. Kingston and Roosevelt will fight it out at 9 o'clock.

Kingston is the defending champion, having downed Philip Schuyler High of Albany in last year's finals. Coach Gilligan's squad has three starters back from the championship team in Ken and Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy. Rounding out the starting team will be Ray Lindhorst and Ted Wood.

The Maroons host the annual classic with impeccable credentials. Not only are they defending champions but boast a carryover streak of eight straight wins. This season they have polished off Our Lady of Lourdes, Beacon and Arlington.

Backing up Kingston's starting five are Werner Kolln, Gene Bruno, Ed Byman and Jerry Corrado. A high pressure defense and well balanced scoring attack have characterized Kingston's play in the three games this season.

For Roosevelt, 2-3 on the season, Greg Kohls and Bobby O'Connor lead the attack. Kohls and O'Connor started on last year's President club. Roosevelt was 15-4 overall last year and 12-2 in the DCSL race, finishing second behind Beacon. Although eight squad members graduated from last year's varsity, president coach Gerry Marquardt is not enthusiastic about his chances. "If we shoot well," he said, "we could make a ball game out of it."

White Plains lost seven members of last year's squad, including three starters, but Coach Tom Jefferson has a High School All American in Freeman Bevel. Bevel is a great shooter, ball handler and jumps well, standing at 6-4. White Plains will have George Moss in the back court as a fine team leader. The squad has beaten Clarkstown, 84-73, this year.

Albany's top scorers are Charles Trayham, 6-3, and Eddie Fields, 6-2. Elijah Willingham figures to star in the back court. Albany is 5-1 this season, with the only loss being to Phillip Schuyler, runnerup in last year's tournament. Although they are not a physically big club, Coach Frank Restifo's Albany team has many good jumpers and runners.

Details of this year's tournament have been arranged by a tournament committee, consisting of Frank Koenig, Andy Murphy, Bing VanEtten, Ronnie Scheffel, Joe Esposito, Vince DeLucca, James Gilpatrick and John Johnson.

Beacon High school took the tournament the first two years.

Section 9 Open Tourney Proposed by Gilligan

Section 9 Athletic Council may stage its first open basketball tournament next March, if a proposal submitted by Coach Jack Gilligan of Kingston High is accepted by the athletic directors.

Gilligan, who will serve as Section 9 tournament chairman this season, proposed a format whereby the Class A B and C and D champions would play each other, following the regular Section 9 championships.

The Section 9 tournament committee is receptive to the idea, Gilligan said, and many coaches favor such playoffs. It remains for the committee to sell the idea to the ADs when they next meet at Newburgh in January.

Working with Gilligan on the tournament committee are representatives of the four areas embraced by Section 9: John McMahon, Tappan Zee, Rockland; Paul Zentel, Jefferson-Youngsville, Sullivan; Gerald Kaplan, Highland Falls, Orange; and Larry Johnson, New Paltz, Ulster County.

JACK GILLIGAN

"This is not a new or radical proposal," Gilligan explained. "Section I, which is Westchester, conducted an open tournament last season. Beacon High which won the A championship in that section went on to play in the Double A finals."

Gilligan said he felt the idea was popular with players, coaches and fans alike. He said that in many cases the disparity between the A and B champions is not as great as some fans think.

"Monticello and Liberty both have outstanding B teams this season," he added. "They would be a match for the A champions. The same situation exists between C and D teams."

State University New Paltz gym will be the locale for the Section 9 playoffs and the open, if it is played. A and B competition is tentatively scheduled March 5, 8 and 15; C and D on March 9 and March 16.

If the open competition is inaugurated, it would be played March 22, also at State U.

Braves Were Hurtin' Far More Than Mr. A

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA crushed previously unbeaten Bradley 109-73 for its 38th straight victory, but Coach Johnny Wooden of the National Collegiate Basketball Champions feared for a few minutes that he had lost towering Lew Alcindor.

Mr. A., as the agile 7-footer is known on the UCLA campus, was accidentally hit in the right eye soon after the start of the second half of the game in Los Angeles Friday night.

Wooden sent his collegiate Player of the Year to the sidelines within a few minutes rather than take any chances. The injury turned out to be minor and big Lew will be back in action tonight against Notre Dame.

Before he left with 13 minutes left to play, Alcindor had scored 13 points and more importantly blocked 11 shots. Wooden soon took out his other regulars, but the 10th-ranked Braves from Peoria, Ill., couldn't stop the subs either.

UCLA hasn't played in two weeks and Wooden said the regulars "got tired. We were rusty from our layoff and I was surprised we shot as well as we did." The Bruins made 50 of 99 shots from the field.

Praise From Foe

Before the game, Bradley Coach Joe Stowell said "eight straight home game wins and then UCLA on the road-wow." Afterwards he praised UCLA as the best team he has seen. "We got more open shots than we thought we would, but except for Allen missed most of them."

Joe Allen finished high for the game with 31 points. Mike Warren, with 24, and Mike Lynn, with 22, led UCLA in snapping Bradley's eight-game winning streak.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E, broke loose for 10 points in the last three minutes to pace unbeaten Houston, second ranked to UCLA in The Associated Press poll, to an 81-76 victory over Arizona at Tucson, Ariz. Hayes finished with 28 points in leading the Cougars to their ninth in a row.

Third-ranked Vanderbilt, paced by Tom Hagan's 22 points, whipped Seton Hall 85-67 in the first round of the Vanderbilt Invitational at Nashville, Tenn., after Oregon had downed Wake Forest 76-58.

Kentucky Survives

Seventh-ranked Kentucky, the only other team in the Top Ten to see action, blew an 18-point lead but came on again to beat Dayton 88-85 in the first round of the UK Invitational at Lexington, Ky. Two free throws by Dan Issel and a basket by Thad Jaraez in the last 18 seconds gave Adolph Rupp the 365th victory of his coaching career after Dayton, down 41-23, had rallied to tie at 83-83 with 90 seconds left.

Arizona State held off a late Michigan rally and beat the Wolverines 92-91 in the final of the Sun Devil Classic at Phoenix, Ariz., after Oregon State took third place with a 49-48 squeaker over Oklahoma State.

Pistol Pete Maravich, son of Louisiana State coach Press Maravich, set a season high of 58 points in leading the Tigers over Mississippi State at Baton Rouge. Maravich got 42 of his points in the second half and set an SEC record. Bob Pettit, LSU's All-American of 13 years ago, had set the previous SEC single-game mark of 57 points in 1954.

He was also the high scorer with 22 points. One Sawyer player broke into double figures, Bill Benham, with 11 points.

Four Top Teams in High School Holiday Tourney

MAN IN DEMAND — Charles Dudish, perhaps the most sought after high school player in the country, shows off a few of his trophies in Atlanta. More than 100 college offers, some tentative and others extravagantly concrete, have come pouring in to the Avondale High School star who has yet to make up his mind which one he will choose. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Roosevelt High of the DCSL, White Plains and Albany High have accepted invitations to the fourth annual Kingston High School Awards Tournament slated for Dec. 28-29 at the Kate Walton field house.

The draw for first round play sends Albany against White Plains in the first game Thursday night at 7:30 p. m. Kingston and Roosevelt will fight it out at 9 o'clock.

Kingston is the defending champion, having downed Philip Schuyler High of Albany in last year's finals. Coach Gilligan's squad has three starters back from the championship team in Ken and Bruce Gilligan and A. J. Murphy. Rounding out the starting team will be Ray Lindhorst and Ted Wood.

The Maroons host the annual classic with impeccable credentials. Not only are they defending champions but boast a carryover streak of eight straight wins. This season they have polished off Our Lady of Lourdes, Beacon and Arlington.

Backing up Kingston's starting five are Werner Kolln, Gene Bruno, Ed Byman and Jerry Corrado. A high pressure defense and well balanced scoring attack have characterized Kingston's play in the three games this season.

For Roosevelt, 2-3 on the season, Greg Kohls and Bobby O'Connor lead the attack. Kohls and O'Connor started on last year's President club. Roosevelt was 15-4 overall last year and 12-2 in the DCSL race, finishing second behind Beacon. Although eight squad members graduated from last year's varsity, president coach Gerry Marquardt is not enthusiastic about his chances. "If we shoot well," he said, "we could make a ball game out of it."

White Plains lost seven members of last year's squad, including three starters, but Coach Tom Jefferson has a High School All American in Freeman Bevel. Bevel is a great shooter, ball handler and jumps well, standing at 6-4. White Plains will have George Moss in the back court as a fine team leader. The squad has beaten Clarkstown, 84-73, this year.

Albany's top scorers are Charles Trayham, 6-3, and Eddie Fields, 6-2. Elijah Willingham figures to star in the back court. Albany is 5-1 this season, with the only loss being to Phillip Schuyler, runnerup in last year's tournament. Although they are not a physically big club, Coach Frank Restifo's Albany team has many good jumpers and runners.

Details of this year's tournament have been arranged by a tournament committee, consisting of Frank Koenig, Andy Murphy, Bing VanEtten, Ronnie Scheffel, Joe Esposito, Vince DeLucca, James Gilpatrick and John Johnson.

Beacon High school took the tournament the first two years.

Section 9 Open Tourney Proposed by Gilligan

Section 9 Athletic Council may stage its first open basketball tournament next March, if a proposal submitted by Coach Jack Gilligan of Kingston High is accepted by the athletic directors.

Gilligan, who will serve as Section 9 tournament chairman this season, proposed a format whereby the Class A B and C and D champions would play each other, following the regular Section 9 championships.

The Section 9 tournament committee is receptive to the idea, Gilligan said, and many coaches favor such playoffs. It remains for the committee to sell the idea to the ADs when they next meet at Newburgh in January.

Working with Gilligan on the tournament committee are representatives of the four areas embraced by Section 9: John McMahon, Tappan Zee, Rockland; Paul Zentel, Jefferson-Youngsville. Sullivan; Gerald Kaplan, Highland Falls, Orange; and Larry Johnson, New Paltz, Ulster County.

JACK GILLIGAN

"This is not a new or radical proposal," Gilligan explained. "Section I, which is Westchester, conducted an open tournament last season. Beacon High which won the A championship in that section went on to play in the Double A finals."

Gilligan said he felt the idea was popular with players, coaches and fans alike. He said that in many cases the disparity between the A and B champions is not as great as some fans think.

"Monticello and Liberty both have outstanding B teams this season," he added. "They would be a match for the A champions. The same situation exists between C and D teams."

State University New Paltz gym will be the locale for the Section 9 playoffs and the open, if it is played. A and B competition is tentatively scheduled March 5, 8 and 15; C and D on March 9 and March 16.

If the open competition is inaugurated, it would be played March 22, also at State U.

Braves Were Hurtin' Far More Than Mr. A

By TED MEIER
Associated Press Sports Writer

UCLA crushed previously unbeaten Bradley 109-73 for its 38th straight victory, but Coach Johnny Wooden of the National Collegiate Basketball Champions feared for a few minutes that he had lost towering Lew Alcindor.

Mr. A., as the agile 7-footer is known on the UCLA campus, was accidentally hit in the right eye soon after the start of the second half of the game in Los Angeles Friday night.

Wooden sent his collegiate Player of the Year to the sidelines within a few minutes rather than take any chances. The injury turned out to be minor and big Lew will be back in action tonight against Notre Dame.

Before he left with 13 minutes left to play, Alcindor had scored 13 points and more importantly blocked 11 shots. Wooden soon took out his other regulars, but the 10th-ranked Braves from Peoria, Ill., couldn't stop the subs either.

UCLA hasn't played in two weeks and Wooden said the regulars "got tired. We were rusty from our layoff and I was surprised we shot as well as we did." The Bruins made 50 of 99 shots from the field.

Praise From Foe

Before the game, Bradley Coach Joe Stowell said "eight straight home game wins and then UCLA on the road-wow." Afterwards he praised UCLA as the best team he has seen. "We got more open shots than we thought we would, but except for Allen missed most of them."

Joe Allen finished high for the game with 31 points. Mike Warren, with 24, and Mike Lynn, with 22, led UCLA in snapping Bradley's eight-game winning streak.

Elvin Hayes, the Big E, broke loose for 10 points in the last three minutes to pace unbeaten Houston, second ranked to UCLA in The Associated Press poll, to an 81-76 victory over Arizona at Tucson, Ariz. Hayes finished with 28 points in leading the Cougars to their ninth in a row.

Third-ranked Vanderbilt, paced by Tom Hagan's 22 points, whipped Seton Hall 85-67 in the first round of the Vanderbilt Invitational at Nashville, Tenn., after Oregon had downed Wake Forest 76-58.

Kentucky Survives

Seventh-ranked Kentucky, the only other team in the Top Ten to see action, blew an 18-point lead but came on again to beat Dayton 88-85 in the first round of the UK Invitational at Lexington, Ky. Two free throws by Dan Issel and a basket by Thad Jaraez in the last 18 seconds gave Adolph Rupp the 365th victory of his coaching career after Dayton, down 41-23, had rallied to tie at 83-83 with 90 seconds left.

Arizona State held off a late Michigan rally and beat the Wolverines 92-91 in the final of the Sun Devil Classic at Phoenix, Ariz., after Oregon State took third place with a 49-48 squeaker over Oklahoma State.

Pistol Pete Maravich, son of Louisiana State coach Press Maravich, set a season high of 58 points in leading the Tigers over Mississippi State at Baton Rouge. Maravich got 42 of his points in the second half and set an SEC record. Bob Pettit, LSU's All-American of 13 years ago, had set the previous SEC single-game mark of 57 points in 1954.

Extends Peace Force in Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After two weeks of haggling, the U.N. Security Council has agreed on a resolution aimed at keeping peace on Cyprus by extending the life of the U.N. peace force there for three more months.

But members warned that long-range problems plaguing the troubled Mediterranean island still must be settled.

The resolution, adopted unanimously Friday by the 15-nation council, called on Greece, Turkey and Cyprus to show the "utmost moderation and restraint and to refrain from any act that might aggravate the situation."

Thant told the council he would act at once to make arrangements with the countries, contributing troops to permit the force to remain on Cyprus. Its mandate, in effect since March 1964, would have expired next Tuesday.

Ambassador Orban Eralp of Turkey clled for increased authority for the U.N. peacekeeping force on the island to prevent attacks on Turkish Cypriot villages.

Eralp recalled the attacks last month which he said killed 29 Turkish Cypriots. After the fighting, Turkey threatened to invade the island, but Greece later gave in to Turkish demands, including withdrawal of 12,000 Greek troops illegally on Cyprus.

The two sides have been deadlocked over what troops should remain on Cyprus in addition to the U.N. force.

Eralp said the 650 Turkish soldiers allowed to remain on the island under the 1960 Cyprus independence agreements should not be withdrawn.

Kyprianou insisted that except for the U.N. peace force, all non-Cypriot troops should be removed including both the Turkish force and the 950-man Greek force.

Kyprianou has said that if the Turkish and Greek units are pulled out, his government would agree to disband the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot National Guard.

Extends Peace Force in Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — After two weeks of haggling, the U.N. Security Council has agreed on a resolution aimed at keeping peace on Cyprus by extending the life of the U.N. peace force there for three more months.

But members warned that long-range problems plaguing the troubled Mediterranean island still must be settled.

The resolution, adopted unanimously Friday by the 15-nation council, called on Greece, Turkey and Cyprus to show the "utmost moderation and restraint and to refrain from any act that might aggravate the situation."

It called on the three disputants to avail themselves promptly of the "good offices" offered by Secretary-General U Thant.

Thant told the council he would act at once to make arrangements with the countries, contributing troops to permit the force to remain on Cyprus. Its mandate, in effect since March 1964, would have expired next Tuesday.

Sharply divergent resolutions had been offered by Turkey and the Greek Cypriot government of Archbishop Makarios.

Ambassador Orban Eralp of Turkey cited for increased authority for the U.N. peacekeeping force on the island to prevent attacks on Turkish Cypriot villages.

Eralp recalled the attacks last month which he said killed 29 Turkish Cypriots. After the fighting, Turkey threatened to invade the island, but Greece later gave in to Turkish demands, including withdrawal of 12,000 Greek troops illegally on Cyprus.

The two sides have been deadlocked over what troops should remain on Cyprus in addition to the U.N. force.

Eralp said the 650 Turkish soldiers allowed to remain on the island under the 1960 Cyprus independence agreements should not be withdrawn.

Kyprianou insisted that except for the U.N. peace force, all non-Cypriot troops should be removed including both the Turkish force and the 950-man Greek force.

Kyprianou has said that if the Turkish and Greek units are pulled out, his government would agree to disband the 10,000-man Greek Cypriot National Guard.

Rocky Appoints Manley To State Tax Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A. Bruce Manley, a former Republican leader in the Assembly, was chosen by Gov. Rockefeller today to fill one of the two vacancies on the State Tax Commission.

Manley, a resident of Fredonia, Chautauqua County, was designated to succeed James R. MacDuff of Schenevus, who died last month. He will fill the unexpired portion of MacDuff's six-year term, which runs to Dec. 31, 1968.

The post pays $26,890 a year.

Manley, 46, a lawyer, served in the Assembly from 1956 to 1967. In 1964 and 1965, he was the Republican whip. He also served as a delegate to the recent Constitutional Convention.

The three-member commission, headed by Joseph H. Murphy, is the policy-making body that runs the State Tax Department. A second vacancy was created Dec. 4 when Walter M. Conlon resigned after he was indicted on bribery charges in a land-zoning scandal in Suffolk County.

Another Warning On Decorations

ALBANY — Operators of motion picture theaters, halls and other places of public assembly were given a holiday reminder by the State Labor Department recently to comply with the safety rules relating to Christmas trees and other flammable decorations.

In a letter sent to the operators, the department emphasized some of the provisions of Industrial Code Rule 36, which pertains to places of public assembly.

Regarding decorations, the department said that no wall, ceiling, floor or seat covering or decoration having a pyroxylin (flammable plastic) base is permitted. Also prohibited are dry vegetation and trees or greens containing pitch or resin.

An exception, the department pointed out, is that one nonflameproofed resinous Christmas tree is permitted in a place of public assembly where exits are in full compliance with the Industrial Code. The department said that those using such a tree must observe the following conditions: The tree shall be set up only between Dec. 23 and Jan. 2, it shall be fresh and not dry and its base must be immersed in water.

Also, an approved two and one-half gallon soda-acid or loaded, stream fire extinguisher shall be kept in sight and within 15 feet of the tree. In addition, no lighted tree shall be set up at the bottom of a stair well nor within 25 feet of an exit. No flammable decorations and no lights other than electric bulbs shall be used on the tree.

Approves Bill

DOVER, Del (AP) — The Delaware legislature has approved a bill to pay a $300 bonus to Delawareans who serve in the military during the war in Vietnam.

Charge Woman With Leaving Child in Car

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A young woman who deputy sheriffs say, abandoned her 8-hour-old son in a parked automobile, has been charged with endangering the welfare of a child.

Mrs. Sandra J. Huggins, 23, of Niagara Falls, was arrested Friday after deputies said they received a tip from an informant. She was arraigned before a peace justice and freed on $500 bond for a hearing Jan. 3.

Deputies said Mrs. Huggins, also the mother of 7- and 5-year-old girls, gave birth to the 6-pound, 15½-ounce boy in her home early Thursday without assistance. Eight hours later, they said, she placed the infant in a man's car, parked at a discount store near here.

Deputies said the woman has been separated from her husband for about four years and went to work Thursday after leaving the baby.

The infant was reported in good condition Friday at Mount St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston.

Mrs. Huggins' address is 1343½ Whitney Ave.

Plucked From Ocean

HONOLULU (AP) — Capt. Eugene S. Swanson plucked two-gallon cans from the ocean fronting his home. They were painted red and yellow, and carried these instructions: "please post...mail inside."

Appparently the containers had been 'mailed" by crewmen aboard the SS Mobil Meridian as it was passing about 250 miles off Honolulu. The return address on the cans indicated that the ship's home port is Beaumont, Tex.

Rocky Appoints Manley To State Tax Commission

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — A. Bruce Manley, a former Republican leader in the Assembly, was chosen by Gov. Rockefeller today to fill one of the two vacancies on the State Tax Commission.

Manley, a resident of Fredonia, Chautauqua County, was designated to succeed James R. MacDuff of Schenevus, who died last month. He will fill the unexpired portion of MacDuff's six-year term, which runs to Dec. 31, 1968.

The post pays $26,890 a year.

Manley, 46, a lawyer, served in the Assembly from 1956 to 1967. In 1964 and 1965, he was the Republican whip. He also served as a delegate to the recent Constitutional Convention.

The three-member commission, headed by Joseph H. Murphy, is the policy-making body that runs the State Tax Department. A second vacancy was created Dec. 4 when Walter M. Conlon resigned after he was indicted on bribery charges in a land-zoning scandal in Suffolk County.

YULE CHEER — Captain and Mrs. Ted Bentley, Volunteers of America, stand amidst a few of the more than 80 food baskets collected for distribution to the county's underprivileged. The food was collected at the Community Theafter, Dec. 2, when area youngsters brought the various items for admission to view cartoons. (Freeman photo by Haines).

Another Warning On Decorations

ALBANY — Operators of motion picture theaters, halls and other places of public assembly were given a holiday reminder by the State Labor Department recently to comply with the safety rules relating to Christmas trees and other flammable decorations.

In a letter sent to the operators, the department emphasized some of the provisions of Industrial Code Rule 36, which pertains to places of public assembly.

Regarding decorations, the department said that no wall, ceiling, floor or seat covering or decoration having a pyroxylin (flammable plastic) base is permitted. Also prohibited are dry vegetation and trees or greens containing pitch or resin.

An exception, the department pointed out, is that one nonflameproofed resinous Christmas tree is permitted in a place of public assembly where exits are in full compliance with the Industrial Code. The department said that those using such a tree must observe the following conditions: The tree shall be set up only between Dec. 23 and Jan. 2, it shall be fresh and not dry and its base must be immersed in water.

Also, an approved two and one-half gallon soda-acid or loaded, stream fire extinguisher shall be kept in sight and within 15 feet of the tree. In addition, no lighted tree shall be set up at the bottom of a stair well nor within 25 feet of an exit. No flammable decorations and no lights other than electric bulbs shall be used on the tree.

Approves Bill

DOVER, Del (AP) — The Delaware legislature has approved a bill to pay a $300 bonus to Delawareans who serve in the military during the war in Vietnam.

Charge Woman With Leaving Child in Car

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) — A young woman who, deputy sheriffs say, abandoned her 8-hour-old son in a parked automobile, has been charged with endangering the welfare of a child.

Mrs. Sandra J. Huggins, 23, of Niagara Falls, was arrested Friday after deputies said they received a tip from an informant. She was arraigned before a peace justice and freed on $500 bond for a hearing Jan. 3.

Deputies said Mrs. Huggins, also the mother of 7- and 5-year-old girls, gave birth to the 6-pound, 15½-ounce boy in her home early Thursday without assistance. Eight hours later, they said, she placed the infant in a man's car, parked at a discount store near here.

Deputies said the woman has been separated from her husband for about four years and went to work Thursday after leaving the baby.

The infant was reported in good condition Friday at Mount St. Mary's Hospital in Lewiston.

Mrs. Huggins' address is 1343½ Whitney Ave.

Plucked From Ocean

HONOLULU (AP) — Capt. Eugene S. Swanson plucked two-gallon cans from the ocean fronting his home. They were painted red and yellow, and carried these instructions: "please post...mail inside."

Appparently the containers had been 'mailed" by crewmen aboard the SS Mobil Meridian as it was passing about 250 miles off Honolulu. The return address on the cans indicated that the ship's home port is Beaumont, Tex.

Dear Abby

How to Handle Visitor

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN
(© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-News Synd., Inc.)

DEAR ABBY: How does a girl entertain a visiting male from out of town without getting stuck with the check?

We live in San Francisco, which seems to be the crossroads of the world, and someone is always calling me to say "hello" from a friend, and I feel that I am expected to entertain him in some way.

I never know if he can afford to take me out, and if so, where he can afford to take me. An out-of-town visitor usually likes to see the sights, and it's up to the "native" to suggest places to go, but I hate to suggest a place that may be too expensive for him.

And since I'm showing him around, there's always the chance that he thinks I am treating HIM, and I don't want to get stuck with the check. How does one get around this? I can't keep driving around the city. SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR SAN FRANCISCAN: You could save yourself a lot of speculating by simply asking the visitor exactly what he had in mind. If he indicates that he would like to sample one of the better restaurants, recommend one, and let him be the host. If he says he just wants to "see the sights," show him Chinatown, Alcatraz, and the Golden Gate bridge. But eat first!

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on something that I consider to be very poor taste and lack of judgement. Why do they play our National Anthem at a meal where 90 per cent of the people are in their seventies and eighties?

Most of them have had to be brought there in wheelchairs, and the others could hardly make it with their walkers, canes and crutches, yet when they played The Star Spangled Banner many of them struggled to get on their feet to show respect. ALMOST EIGHTY

DEAR ALMOST: Unless there is a reason for playing our National Anthem at such a gathering, another patriotic song, which does not require the listeners to stand, should be substituted.

DEAR ABBY: I recently found a big box of old postcards and envelopes that already had the stamps on them. Can I cut the stamps off and use them for postage on other things, such as packages.

I don't see why I can't, as the stamps are unused and good as new. Please answer in your column as my husband opens all the mail if he gets it first, and I don't want him to know how dumb I am.

"44-YEAR-OLD DUMMY"

DEAR "44:" First, I think your question is a good one and I do not consider you a "dummy." Postal regulations prohibit using stamps cut from postcards, envelopes, and aerograms.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ABE: I'm with you. I've always been just a little wary of people who treat dogs like people and people like dogs.

To a rubber bridge player, 10 points means nothing at all. Once in a while, if he is playing for money and scoring a rubber to the nearest hundred, it may mean an extra point, but, all in all, he pays no attention to such trifles.

To a duplicate player it may mean the difference between a top score and an average, and many duplicate players will play a slam in no-trump in an effort to get the extra 10 points.

South was one of that type. He decided that he would make just as many tricks at no-trump as at hearts and that he wanted those 10 points.

South was right from the first standpoint. The hand did produce as many tricks at no-trump and when West failed to cash his ace of spades at trick one, South made a grand slam and got the top score he was trying for.

From a practical standpoint it turned out that his six no-trump call was totally unnecessary. It seems that at all other tables, North checked for aces with four no trump and then, carried away by his own 20 points, bid the six no-trump himself.

Invariably, East led a spade. Some North players put in the 10 spot and managed to get out for down one. A couple of hardy souls went up with the king in the hope that East had underled an ace and went down three.

We take no stand on South's final bid of six no-trump, but we do take a real stand in favor of North's bidding. North was Roger Stern, the newly elected president of the Greater New York Bridge Association, and Roger was well aware that a spade would be led if he were declarer and a spade lead might be disastrous. Furthermore, he knew that Paul Trent, his partner, was well aware of all duplicate potentialities.

The young engineer, a man whose many moods would constantly vacillate, could not understand why he had lost so many friends.

It is not considered wise to purchase stock certificates which have the tendency to vacillate in value each week. After listening to the vacillating conversation of his cute secretary, the annoyed director wondered why he had agreed to take her to lunch in the first place.

Dear Abby

How to Handle Visitor

[© 1967 by Chicago Tribune-News Synd., Inc.]

DEAR ABBY: How does a girl entertain a visiting male from out of town without getting stuck with the check?

We live in San Francisco, which seems to be the crossroads of the world, and someone is always calling me to say "hello" from a friend, and I feel that I am expected to entertain him in some way.

I never know if he can afford to take me out, and if so, where he can afford to take me. An out-of-town visitor usually likes to see the sights, and it's up to the "native" to suggest places to go, but I hate to suggest a place that may be too expensive for him.

And since I'm showing him around, there's always the chance that he thinks I am treating HIM, and I don't want to get stuck with the check. How does one get around this? I can't keep driving around the city. SAN FRANCISCAN

DEAR SAN FRANCISCAN: You could save yourself a lot of speculating by simply asking the visitor exactly what he had in mind. If he indicates that he would like to sample one of the better restaurants, recommend one, and let him be the host. If he says he just wants to "see the sights," show him Chinatown, Alcatraz, and the Golden Gate bridge. But eat first!

DEAR ABBY: I would like your opinion on something that I consider to be very poor taste and lack of judgement. Why do they play our National Anthem at a meal where 90 per cent of the people are in their seventies and eighties?

Most of them have had to be brought there in wheelchairs, and the others could hardly make it with their walkers, canes and crutches, yet when they played The Star Spangled Banner many of them struggled to get on their feet to show respect. ALMOST EIGHTY

DEAR ALMOST: Unless there is a reason for playing our National Anthem at such a gathering, another patriotic song, which does not require the listeners to stand, should be substituted.

DEAR ABBY: I recently found a big box of old postcards and envelopes that already had the stamps on them. Can I cut the stamps off and use them for postage on other things, such as packages.

I don't see why I can't, as the stamps are unused and good as new. Please answer in your column as my husband opens all the mail if he gets it first, and I don't want him to know how dumb I am.

"44-YEAR-OLD DUMMY"

DEAR "44:" First, I think your question is a good one and I do not consider you a "dummy." Postal regulations prohibit using stamps cut from postcards, envelopes, and aerograms.

CONFIDENTIAL TO ABE: I'm with you. I've always been just a little wary of people who treat dogs like people and people like dogs.

To a rubber bridge player, 10 points means nothing at all. Once in a while, if he is playing for money and scoring a rubber to the nearest hundred, it may mean an extra point, but, all in all, he pays no attention to such trifles.

To a duplicate player it may mean the difference between a top score and an average, and many duplicate players will play a slam in no-trump in an effort to get the extra 10 points.

South was one of that type. He decided that he would make just as many tricks at no-trump as at hearts and that he wanted those 10 points.

South was right from the first standpoint. The hand did produce as many tricks at no-trump and when West failed to cash his ace of spades at trick one, South made a grand slam and got the top score he was trying for.

From a practical standpoint it turned out that his six no-trump call was totally unnecessary. It seems that at all other tables, North checked for aces with four no trump and then, carried away by his own 20 points, bid the six no-trump himself.

Invariably, East led a spade. Some North players put in the 10 spot and managed to get out for down one. A couple of hardy souls went up with the king in the hope that East had underled an ace and went down three.

We take no stand on South's final bid of six no-trump, but we do take a real stand in favor of North's bidding. North was Roger Stern, the newly elected president of the Greater New York Bridge Association, and Roger was well aware that a spade would be led if he were declarer and a spade lead might be disastrous. Furthermore, he knew that Paul Trent, his partner, was well aware of all duplicate potentialities.

Movies Are TV Workhorses

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

David Sarnoff once said that television ultimately would become a movie house in the home. The vision of the chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America has been borne out many times, and this particular prediction of things to come seems no less probable.

Indeed, if this generally sorry television season has proved anything, it is the enduring popularity of movies. Despite the fall-off in their latest ratings, movies are the most dependable fare on the network schedules. The ratings have dropped only because the networks shot their best wads in the initial weeks. Of the eight new series to be canceled at midseason, five compete against movies.

Most Significant Development

Movies also are the workhorses of the TV industry. There are six feature film nights now, and ABC is expected to schedule movies on the remaining bare night, Monday, in 1968.

The increased dependence on movies by TV is probably the most significant economic development in show business today; certainly it is in the television business.

On the carpeted floors of the executive suites, a gigantic corporate struggle is now evolving between the television networks and the major motion picture producers. Its ramifications eventually will be reflected both on the home tube and on the moviehouse screen.

The Motion Picture Assn. of America (MPA) already has protested to the U. S. Justice Department about the expansion of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co into the movie-making business. The Justice Department has said nothing, but it has hired Robert W. Crandall, assistant professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to make a long-range study of network programming, including the production of moves by CBS and ABC.

The MPA represents such major studios as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Columbia, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists and Warner Brothers-Seven Arts. Essentially they argue that the networks will ruin their business because they can tie up theaters and TV showings of films.

The producers met concerted opposition from the National Assn. of Theater Owners, who have cheered the entry of the networks into film production, and even have chided the National Broadcasting Co. for not joining TV's challenge to Hollywood.

NBC Probing Possibility

NBC meanwhile is studying the possibility of film production, but no commitment has been announced. The network already contracts with Universal Pictures for world premiere movies—for—TV which have been substantial ratings successes since their introduction last year.

Because of NBC's success, CBS this month also signed a deal with Universal to produce movies-for-TV, to begin in the 1970 season. CBS also is talking with other producers, including Warner Brothers-Seven Arts, Harold Goldman and Levy-Gardner-Lavin as additional suppliers of movies.

At the heart of the issue is the dwindling number of feature films available for TV. The networks have adequate inventories for the next few years, but not for the decade ahead.

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of the American Broadcasting Companies, parent of several entertainment enterprises including ABC-TV, and 400 theaters, cited the drop of Hollywood film production from 333 films in 1956-57 to only 162 last year. The three networks can use 156 movies a year.

Goldenson denied that ABC's entry into film production constitutes an anti-trust violation or will endanger present studio filmmakers.

"It is an incontestable fact that motion picture theaters throughout the nation still need more quality products," he said. "Overloading the summer months and holiday seasons with choice pictures is still the general practice. As a result, orphan periods still exist and some theaters have considerable difficulty in meeting expenses during those relatively unattractive box-office weeks and months."

He said this "peak and valley" situation will get worse unless the market becomes more competitive. Goldenson said ABC's movies would be distributed by Cinerama Releasing Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cinerama Inc.

Goldenson disputed the charge and fear of the movie producers that ABC is interested in producing films for TV and eventuallywould erase other film productions from the air.

"We are in the motion picture production business to increase the availability of feature films for theatrical use. We want to attempt to establish theatre exhibition, our own included, on a more profitable year-round basis.

"If we come up with a number of hit movies, they will probably be seen, in time and if they are suitable, on our television network. But only after they have run their course in theatrical showings. We want to get the last dollar out of theatrical bookings before we—like any other producing company—offer a movie to television."

For its initial ventures, ABC is planning to make 10 to 12 movies in 1968 at a cost of about $30,000,000. Among the projects are the film versions of "The Killing of Sister George," and "The Song of Norway;" a couple of movies with Claire Bloom; a western "Shalako," with Sean Connery and Brigitte Bardot, and "For Love of Ivy" with Sidney Poitier.

CBS has established CBS theatrical films and promptly hired Jack Lemmon and Doris Day for a series of movies. Miss Day also may do a regular TV series. To avoid monopoly problems, both ABC and CBS would make their films open to competitive bidding by all exhibitors.

Clearly, television's entrance into film production would seem to offer profit and financial security for the TV business, as it now operates. A two-hour movie can fill up the time occupied by four of TV's old fashioned half-hour series. The long form simply reduces the need for more program ideas. This does not spell the end of the 30 or 60-minute series but there certainly will be—and already are—fewer than in recent years.

a Woman."

Aesthetically, the gap between the new Hollywood and TV seems to be narrowing. It will be interesting to see if television's challenge to the movie-makers results in further artistic vigor or—perish the thought—the movie-makers decide to conform to television's usual artistic standards.

Movies Are TV Workhorses

By DEAN GYSEL
(Chicago Daily News Service)

David Sarnoff once said that television ultimately would become a movie house in the home. The vision of the chairman of the board of Radio Corporation of America has been borne out many times, and this particular prediction of things to come seems no less probable.

Indeed, if this generally sorry television season has proved anything, it is the enduring popularity of movies. Despite the fall-off in their latest ratings, movies are the most dependable fare on the network schedules. The ratings have dropped only because the networks shot their best wads in the initial weeks. Of the eight new series to be canceled at midseason, five compete against movies.

Most Significant Development

Movies also are the workhorses of the TV industry. There are six feature film nights now, and ABC is expected to schedule movies on the remaining bare night, Monday, in 1968.

The increased dependence on movies by TV is probably the most significant economic development in show business today; certainly it is in the television business.

On the carpeted floors of the executive suites, a gigantic corporate struggle is now evolving between the television networks and the major motion picture producers. Its ramifications eventually will be reflected both on the home tube and on the moviehouse screen.

The Motion Picture Assn. of America (MPA) already has protested to the U. S. Justice Department about the expansion of the Columbia Broadcasting System and the American Broadcasting Co. into the movie-making business. The Justice Department has said nothing, but it has hired Robert W. Crandall, assistant professor of Economics at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, to make a long-range study of network programming, including the production of moves by CBS and ABC.

The MPA represents such major studios as Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Paramount, Columbia, 20th Century-Fox, United Artists and Warner Brothers-Seven Arts. Essentially they argue that the networks will ruin their business because they can tie up theaters and TV showings of films.

The producers met concerted opposition from the National Assn. of Theater Owners, who have cheered the entry of the networks into film production, and even have chided the National Broadcasting Co. for not joining TV's challenge to Hollywood.

NBC Probing Possibility

NBC meanwhile is studying the possibility of film production, but no commitment has been announced. The network already contracts with Universal Pictures for world premiere movies—for—TV which have been substantial ratings successes since their introduction last year.

Because of NBC's success, CBS this month also signed a deal with Universal to produce movies-for-TV, to begin in the 1970 season. CBS also is talking with other producers, including Warner Brothers-Seven Arts, Harold Goldman and Levy-Gardner-Lavin as additional suppliers of movies.

At the heart of the issue is the dwindling number of feature films available for TV. The networks have adequate inventories for the next few years, but not for the decade ahead.

Leonard H. Goldenson, president of the American Broadcasting Companies, parent of several entertainment enterprises including ABC-TV, and 400 theaters, cited the drop of Hollywood film production from 333 films in 1956-57 to only 162 last year. The three networks can use 156 movies a year.

Goldenson denied that ABC's entry into film production constitutes an anti-trust violation or will endanger present studio filmmakers.

"It is an incontestable fact that motion picture theaters throughout the nation still need more quality products," he said. "Overloading the summer months and holiday seasons with choice pictures is still the general practice. As a result, orphan periods still exist and some theaters have considerable difficulty in meeting expenses during those relatively unattractive box-office weeks and months."

He said this "peak and valley" situation will get worse unless the market becomes more competitive. Goldenson said ABC's movies would be distributed by Cinerama Releasing Corp., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Cinerama Inc.

Goldenson disputed the charge and fear of the movie producers that ABC is interested in producing films for TV and eventuallywould erase other film productions from the air.

"We are in the motion picture production business to increase the availability of feature films for theatrical use. We want to attempt to establish theatre exhibition, our own included, on a more profitable year-round basis.

"If we come up with a number of hit movies, they will probably be seen, in time and if they are suitable, on our television network. But only after they have run their course in theatrical showings. We want to get the last dollar out of theatrical bookings before we—like any other producing company—offer a movie to television."

For its initial ventures, ABC is planning to make 10 to 12 movies in 1968 at a cost of about $30,000,000. Among the projects are the film versions of "The Killing of Sister George," and "The Song of Norway;" a couple of movies with Claire Bloom; a western "Shalako," with Sean Connery and Brigitte Bardot, and "For Love of Ivy" with Sidney Poitier.

Vietnam Action Sputters to Halt

SAIGON (AP) — With holiday ruce periods only hours away, ground fighting in the Vietnam war sputtered almost to a halt today and U.S. fighting men received a surprise Christmas season visitor—President Johnson.

Then the President took off for an undisclosed destination - 14½ hours before the hour the Viet Cong said it would begin a three-day truce.

The guerrillas declared they would stop fighting at 1 a.m. Sunday (noon today EST).

Raids Continue

Air raids kept up, meanwhile. Aiming at suspected Red artillery positions and supply lines northeast of the U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien, the high-altitude, eight-engine B52s returned to the demilitarized zone for the second straight day despite the threat of SAM missiles. The North Vietnamese fired three SAMs at B52s Wednesday night but the big bombers escaped, the U.S. Command said.

The command reported two Navy fighter-bombers were shot down by ground fire Friday while flying missions over North Vietnam and both pilots are missing.

The locations were not revealed but among Navy pilot's targets Friday were the northern area of the demilitarized zone and a cargo transfer point near Thanh Hoa, about 80 miles south of Hanoi.

One of the planes was an A7 Corsair II,—the first new attack bomber to be shot down since the model went into combat earlier this month.

The two fighter-bombers brought to 769 the announced number of U.S. plane losses over North Vietnam.

Christmas Is Goal

Hope to Reach Navajos

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — Rescue forces move out again today across the snow-bogged Navajo reservation with Christmas day as their target for completing a relief operations network across almost 16 million acres.

"If we don't get any more bad weather, we'll be able to make it a little brighter Christmas for some of the people," a Navajo tribal police official said.

Air and ground teams braved sub-zero temperatures and deep snow drifts to reach Navajos believed still trapped, and possibly hungry and sick, after eight days of winter storms which have claimed at least six lives.

Frank Chambers, assistant Navajo tribal police superintendent, said 20 helicopters would operate today out of bases in Arizona and from Gallup, N.M., to carry food, medicine, coal, hay, clothing and wood for fires.

At Hamilton Air Force Base Calif., Air Force Col. Tracy J. Petersen, a 25-year flying veteran, says efforts he is heading to help snowbound Indians in northern Arizona is "one of the most difficult operations I have seen."

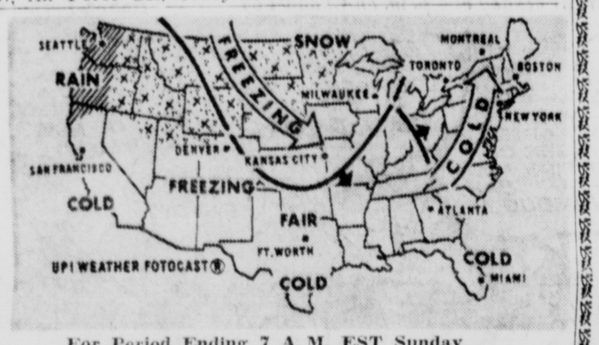

For the past week he has been directing a small army of men, aircraft and equipment to keep hundreds of Indians from perishing in one of Arizona's coldest winters.

"Most of northern Arizona is covered with 84 inches of snow," Petersen said. "The runways that are open are usually covered with ice and snow."

Since the Navajo operation started Dec. 15, more than 513 sorties have been flown by helicopter and transport pilots from 10 Air Force, Navy and Army bases in California, Nevada and New Mexico, he said. The mission includes 300 men.

Killed Near Utica

BRIDGEWATER, N.Y. (AP) — David H. Gould, 25, of Bridgewater, and Charles H. Wolfe, 23, of nearby Cassville, were killed Friday night when, State police said, the automobile in which they were riding struck a tree beside Route 8 near this village south of Utica.

For Period Ending 7 A. M. EST Sunday

Tonight, rain is expected along the North Pacific Coast changing to snow and snow flurries from the Rockies through the Northern Plains to the Upper Mississippi Valley. Fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail elsewhere. Cold weather will continue over the eastern third of the nation, with little change forecast elsewhere. Vietnam Action Sputters to Halt

PINS MEDALS—President Lyndon Johnson pins medals on U.S. fighting men during his tour of the sprawling U.S. military installation at Cam Ranh Bay, South Vietnam. The chief exetcutive made a whirl-wind, hour and 45 minutes tour of the base enroute from Australia via Korst, Thailand. (UPI TELEPHOTO).

SAIGON (AP) — With holiday truce periods only hours away, ground fighting in the Vietnam war sputtered almost to a halt today and U.S. fighting men received a surprise Christmas season visitor—President Johnson.

Then the President took off for an undisclosed destination—14½ hours before the hour the Viet Cong said it would begin a three-day truce.

The guerrillas declared they would stop fighting at 1 a.m. Sunday (noon today EST).

Raids Continue

Air raids kept up, meanwhile. Aiming at suspected Red artillery positions and supply lines northeast of the U.S. Marine outpost at Con Thien, the high-altitude, eight-engine B52s returned to the demilitarized zone for the second straight day despite the threat of SAM missiles. The North Vietnamese fired three SAMs at B52s Wednesday night but the big bombers escaped, the U.S. Command said.

The command reported two Navy fighter-bombers were shot down by ground fire Friday while flying missions over North Vietnam and both pilots are missing.

The locations were not revealed but among Navy pilot's targets Friday were the northern area of the demilitarized zone and a cargo transfer point near Thanh Hoa, about 80 miles south of Hanoi.

One of the planes was an A7 Corsair II,—the first new attack bomber to be shot down since the model went into combat earlier this month.

The two fighter-bombers brought to 769 the announced number of U.S. plane losses over North Vietnam.

Christmas Is Goal

Hope to Reach Navajos

WINDOW ROCK, Ariz. (AP) — Rescue forces move out again today across the snow-bogged Navajo reservation with Christmas day as their target for completing a relief operations network across almost 16 million acres.

"If we don't get any more bad weather, we'll be able to make it a little brighter Christmas for some of the people," a Navajo tribal police official said.

Air and ground teams braved sub-zero temperatures and deep snow drifts to reach Navajos believed still trapped, and possibly hungry and sick, after eight days of winter storms which have claimed at least six lives.

Frank Chambers, assistant Navajo tribal police superintendent, said 20 helicopters would operate today out of bases in Arizona and from Gallup, N.M., to carry food, medicine, coal, hay, clothing and wood for fires.

At Hamilton Air Force Base Calif., Air Force Col. Tracy J. Petersen, a 25-year flying veteran, says efforts he is heading to help snowbound Indians in northern Arizona is "one of the most difficult operations I have seen."

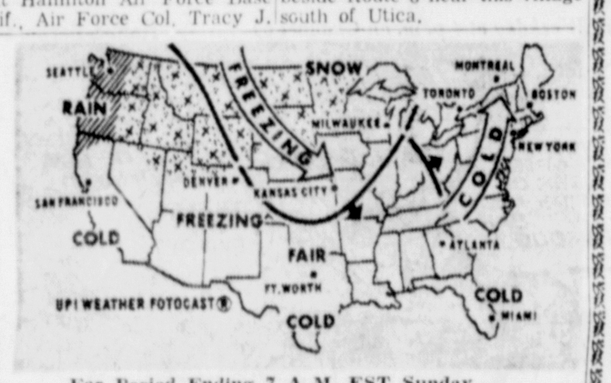

For the past week he has been directing a small army of men, aircraft and equipment to keep hundreds of Indians from perishing in one of Arizona's coldest winters.

"Most of northern Arizona is covered with 84 inches of snow," Petersen said, "The runways that are open are usually covered with ice and snow."

Since the Navajo operation started Dec. 15, more than 513 sorties have been flown by helicopter and transport pilots from 10 Air Force, Navy and Army bases in California, Nevada and New Mexico, he said. The mission includes 300 men.

Killed Near Utica

BRIDGEWATER, N.Y. (AP)—David H. Gould, 25, of Bridgewater, and Charles H. Wolfe, 23, of nearby Cassville, were killed Friday night when, State police said, the automobile in which they were riding struck a tree beside Route 8 near this village south of Utica.

For Period Ending 7 A.M. EST Sunday

Tonight, rain is expected along the North Pacific Coast changing to snow and snow flurries from the Rockies through the Northern Plains to the Upper Mississippi Valley. Fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail elsewhere. Cold weather will continue over the eastern third of the nation, with little change forecast elsewhere. Minimum temperature forecasts include: Atlanta 24; Boston 23; Chicago 20; Cleveland 12; Denver 20; Duluth 6; Ft. Poinsettas & Glow of Colors

HOMAGE TO BOTH THE GAY AND INSPIRATIONAL facets of Christmas is paid to the holiday in decrations arranged around the Quarryville home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Potter. The double-split level house and terraced grounds on High Falls Road, off Route 32, lend themselves well to twinkling lights in vast array and elves climbing ladders roofward. Among the myriad attractions are a large Nativity scene adjacent to the driveway, two sets of Santa Claus arriving by sleigh, dozens of merry elves, angels by the score, and a choral singer caroling. The entire display takes up more than 100 feet in width in front of the house and many local residents drive considerable distances to view the spectacle each night before the Potters signal lights off at 10 p. m. Most who have seen it agree it's a winter wonderland par excellence (Freeman photo by Haines)

TRADITIONAL TO CHRISTMAS is one of the most beautiful of all flowers, the poinsetta. Potted, planted or arranged in a vase, the poinsetta has become an integral part of holiday home decorating, and its brilliant red hue is attuned to the season of mirth, merriment and remembrance. For TEMPO's photo, Freeman photographer Robert Haines had to journey no further than the florist shop of Eugene J. Dauner in Port Ewen, where poinsettas by the dozen made a pretty picture, enmeshed blossom-to-blossom as they awaited a doting purchaser or a hostess who recognized their intrinsic value in her December decor plans.

When Quail in Aspic Meant Yule

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

There was—until the most recent of years—a distinguished and elderly gentleman who resided in the West Saugerties area in what we came to consider total genteel and bachelor grandeur. Before he moved away to Florida to spend his declining years in the sun and surf, we visited him often . . . for he could tell tales of the past that held our absorbed attention for hours on end.

The product of a once well-to-do family, he could remember in unbelievably minute and accurate detail many of the foibles of the wealthy gentry of yore. He could also summon up visions of feasts and pageants he had witnessed as a small child in the mansions of Saugerties' more prosperous citizens. Most of these events, he told us, took place just before or shortly after the turn of the 20th Century—and the one which always seems to stand out in our mind is a Christmas dinner he once recalled from the past for our edification.

This was a gilded gala in the grand style and our friend looked back upon it fondly as a panoplied and many-splendored party. It took place, of course, long before America became calorie-conscious and prior to the renunciation of 7, 8 and even 10 course meals. This was the period when feasting took on the trappings of legend and gastronomy was an art unto itself, wherein cognac was sprinkled liberally throughout every menu.

Who Ate What

Our Saugerties gentleman friend reminded us that the rich were judged by what they ate and were almost forced to eat richly in return in order to maintain their aura of affluence. No dinner, he ever attended, he said, was c o m p l e t e without lambpie of a vastness unknown today. The ladies attending wore evening dress of brocade, watered silk or cut velvet, cloaks, and buckled pumps . . . and they shimmered with jewels and stomachers. Fans and opera-length gloves were also much in evidence. The gentlemen sported silk hats and canes, tailcoats and cloaks of their own.

Our Saugerties narrator dwelt frequently on the popularity of champagne during that period and said that, being young and curious, he often wondered at its effect on the elderly gentlemen present and pondered how they managed to consume so much through their ample beards and moustaches. He recalled, too, that there was often memorable entertainment of some sort provided at these functions, mostly in the form of musicales.

The particular Christmas feast that impressed us intrigued for the fact that the culinary hospitality included lobster, as well as a hot bird and cold bottle (probably because all three are favorites of ours when it comes to the business of eating). The eight or more courses, he said, were served up by waiters with graying sideburns in a private dining room lit by an uncountable number of candles. The pet dogs of the family were chained to a stately buffet and, occasionally, the hostess would rise from her seat to tender one of these animals a morsel of foul or beef.

It was his recollection that life among the haut monde of Saugerties was much the same as it was elsewhere, in spite of the fact that it was removed some distance up river from the Manhattan ballrooms and lobster palaces. Remembering the butlers of his parents' friends always brought a smile to his face, for he recalled them as bearing more physical resemblance to Marine recruits standing at attention than to uniformed domestics.

Time at Table

Of course it goes without saying that long hours were required at the table in order to consume the many courses, each served with the appropriate wine. The extravagant Christmas dinner to which we referred earlier, for example, had taken the 20 invited guests more than four hours to eat. This seemed logical enough to us since it had included bouillion, consumme, terrapin, foie gras, truffles, canvasback duck, the aforementioned l o b s t e r, roast suckling pig, quail in aspic, fish cakes, mousses, souffles, p a s t r i e s, spiced walnuts, cheeses, ices of every hue . . . and indigestion on a grand scale.

During this marathon, our friend remembered he had occupied much of his time gazing at the Italian paintings on the wall, staring into the many mirrors which graced the dining room and which were garlanded in holly and greenery for the holidays, and craning his neck upward in an effort to count the crystal beads on each chandelier. He also recalled a great many hot house flowers in the room and the fact that there was much to look forward to after the magnificent meal. The host and hostess had promised a band of musicians would perform, that guests would have the opportunity to participate in hymning, and that an ample buffet would be served afterwards. When we suggested this seemed like downright gluttony inasmuch as it followed so swiftly on the heels of the previous gorging, he said it was simply a matter of custom. Such an explanation did little to erase our vision of guests staggering out the front door in mid-afternoon a n d finding that climbing into their two-horse carriages was both an inconvenience and pure torture. Still, we suppose their coachman took pity upon them and helped them aboard.

Social upheaval has written finis to such scenes, fortunately or unfortunately. Today's Christmas diners settle for one ham, or one turkey or one goose, two vegetables at the most, potatoes and/or stuffing and maybe a fruit cake or pie. The cut velvet, floor-length gowns of the ladies have given way to micro-mini skirts and few of us have even seen a silk hat on a gentleman in years. Vinyl and aluminum Christmas trees and wreaths do well enough as substitutes for garlanded mirrors, and boiled shirts have been replaced by turtlenecks.

No Porte-Cochere

If our Saugerties friend once stood in eager anticipation under a porte-cochere, today's Christmas dinner guest rarely finds so much as a front porch on which to stamp the snow from his stretch boots . . . and, if there is dancing later, it is certainly not the gavotte.

Ah, well, who are we to say that it is not all to the good? There is no arguing that the lap of luxury once played havoc with the fit of a waistcoat over a stomach. Today, at least, we have made a stopgap compromise.

In retrospect, we suppose, it was all pretty theatrical and certainly it was g a s t r o n o m i c. Still, we could never bring ourselves to feel so in the company of our elderly friend. For his memories remained extravagant and glamorous and we had no desire to make them less so. If his recollections were perhaps given over to the grandiose, they were a part of that elegant era when custom-built yachts sailed the Hudson, out-of-season strawberries and Scotch grouse could be had by anyone willing to pay the freight, and parlors were used for polite conversations instead of endless football games on television. They were part of that era when mansions were taken up as hobbies, salt cellars cost more than air conditioners do today, and palatial hospitality was the keynote.

It was an age of gusto—gone but not forgotten—at least not by us or by our friend, even though he has moved south and far from the scene of the marshmallow world of his youth.

Faithfully Following the Established Tradition

Christmas concerts, it seems to us, offer some of the finest and most ingenious music in the composing catalogue. And very often the words and music of the holidays come through most clearly at school concerts.

Few things can return Christmas to non-commercialism as can the sight of pretty little blondes in frilly white blouses and holy corsages. Or little boys, their hair slicked down, their ties in place, and their grins hidden behind their music stands. The total and unwavering solemnity of all student soloists and the unuttered hopes of the music teacher who has been instructing his chorus or his band for this yuletime debut before the assembled parents is always more than slightly evident. It is his silent prayer that no horn will emit an out of tune squeak and that no singer will go flat before the curtain falls.

And it is mainly for these reasons and for the fact that it was a prototype for all such programs, that we thoroughly enjoyed the Onteora Junior High Band and Chorus Christmas Concert recently.

It was a virtual potpourri of international holiday music and it poured into the school auditorium with youthful enthusiasm. First on stage was the Junior High School Orchestra (augmented, we were told, by some Senior high school musicians) and this group was neat and precise. The strings were excellent and the percussive transformations fine on a piece called "Legend of the Bells," and, dwelling on "The Peace of Christmas," orchestra members worked well together on a quietly moving arrangement of several numbers. Perhaps these musicians, directed by Frederick Wolf, took on more professional coloration as they were led through "Snow White Dancing," a well-executed overture of such standards as Whistle While You Work, Someday My Prince Will Come, Heigh-Ho and others.

In offering its symbolic wreath to the audience, the Junior High Chorus, conducted by Earl Proper and accompanied by pianist Beatrice Bright, was unforced, unhurried, unflustered and lyric. Their contribution included three spirituals including "It Was Poor Little Jesus," with Pamela Allison as soloist. Rhythmic and palatable were the chorus' versions of The Blessings of Mary, The Angel Band, Happy Sounds Everywhere . . . and a special group of 40 choral members were especially listenable in Lo, How a Rose.

To the Junior High School Band fell the task of closing concert and members delivered a subtle rendition of Christmas greetings in a medley of Yule tunes, among them "Deck the Halls" and "Tannenbaum."

"G r e e n s l e e v e s" (retitled "What Child Is This?" for the season) was a model of delicacy and nuance . . . and the band finished its appearance with "Oh, Lord, Most Holy," under the direction of Ronald Westervelt.

All in all, it was an outstanding student program in its leisurely way and, we are sure, has been repeated in school after school around the county during the past month. (T.G.)

When Quail in Aspic Meant Yule

By TOBIE GEERTSEMA

There was—until the most recent of years—a distinguished and elderly gentleman who resided in the West Saugerties area in what we came to consider total genteel and bachelor grandeur. Before he moved away to Florida to spend his declining years in the sun and surf, we visited him often . . . for he could tell tales of the past that held our absorbed attention for hours on end.

The product of a once well-to-do family, he could remember in unbelievably minute and accurate detail many of the foibles of the wealthy gentry of yore. He could also summon up visions of feasts and pageants he had witnessed as a small child in the mansions of Saugerties' more prosperous citizens. Most of these events, he told us, took place just before or shortly after the turn of the 20th Century—and the one which always seems to stand out in our mind is a Christmas dinner he once recalled from the past for our edification.

This was a gilded gala in the grand style and our friend looked back upon it fondly as a panoplied and many-splendored party. It took place, of course, long before America became calorie-conscious and prior to the renunciation of 7, 8 and even 10 course meals. This was the period when feasting took on the trappings of legend and gastronomy was an art unto itself, wherein cognac was sprinkled liberally throughout every menu.

Who Ate What

Our Saugerties gentleman friend reminded us that the rich were judged by what they ate and were almost forced to eat richly in return in order to maintain their aura of affluence. No dinner, he ever attended, he said, was c o m p l e t e without lambpie of a vastness unknown today. The ladies attending wore evening dress of brocade, watered silk or cut velvet, cloaks, and buckled pumps . . . and they shimmered with jewels and stomachers. Fans and opera-length gloves were also much in evidence. The gentlemen sported silk hats and canes, tailcoats and cloaks of their own.

Our Saugerties narrator dwelt frequently on the popularity of champagne during that period and said that, being young and curious, he often wondered at its effect on the elderly gentlemen present and pondered how they managed to consume so much through their ample beards and moustaches. He recalled, too, that there was often memorable entertainment of some sort provided at these functions, mostly in the form of musicales.

The particular Christmas feast that impressed us intrigued for the fact that the culinary hospitality included lobster, as well as a hot bird and cold bottle (probably because all three are favorites of ours when it comes to the business of eating). The eight or more courses, he said, were served up by waiters with graying sideburns in a private dining room lit by an uncountable number of candles. The pet dogs of the family were chained to a stately buffet and, occasionally, the hostess would rise from her seat to tender one of these animals a morsel of foul or beef.

It was his recollection that life among the haut monde of Saugerties was much the same as it was elsewhere, in spite of the fact that it was removed some distance up river from the Manhattan ballrooms and lobster palaces. Remembering the butlers of his parents' friends always brought a smile to his face, for he recalled them as bearing more physical resemblance to Marine recruits standing at attention than to uniformed domestics.

Time at Table

Of course it goes without saying that long hours were required at the table in order to consume the many courses, each served with the appropriate wine. The extravagant Christmas dinner to which we referred earlier, for example, had taken the 20 invited guests more than four hours to eat. This seemed logical enough to us since it had included bouillon, consumme, terrapin, foie gras, truffles, canvasback duck, the aforementioned l o b s t e r, roast suckling pig, quail in aspic, fish cakes, mousses, souffles, p a s t r i e s, spiced walnuts, cheeses, ices of every hue . . . and indigestion on a grand scale.

During this marathon, our friend remembered he had occupied much of his time gazing at the Italian paintings on the wall, staring into the many mirrors which graced the dining room and which were garlanded in holly and greenery for the holidays, and craning his neck upward in an effort to count the crystal beads on each chandelier. He also recalled a great many hot house flowers in the room and the fact that there was much to look forward to after the magnificent meal. The host and hostess had promised a band of musicians would perform, that guests would have the opportunity to participate in hymning, and that an ample buffet would be served afterwards. When we suggested this seemed like downright gluttony inasmuch as it followed so swiftly on the heels of the previous gorging, he said it was simply a matter of custom. Such an explanation did little to erase our vision of guests staggering out the front door in mid-afternoon a n d finding that climbing into their two-horse carriages was both an inconvenience and pure torture. Still, we suppose their coachman took pity upon them and helped them aboard.

Social upheaval has written finis to such scenes, fortunately or unfortunately. Today's Christmas diners settle for one ham, or one turkey or one goose, two vegetables at the most, potatoes and or stuffing and maybe a fruit cake or pie. The cut velvet, floor-length gowns of the ladies have given way to micro-mini skirts and few of us have even seen a silk hat on a gentleman in years. Vinyl and aluminum Christmas trees and wreaths do well enough as substitutes for garlanded mirrors, and boiled shirts have been replaced by turtlenecks.

No Porte-Cochere

If our Saugerties friend once stood in eager anticipation under a porte-cochere, today's Christmas dinner guest rarely finds so much as a front porch on which to stamp the snow from his stretch boots . . . and, if there is dancing later, it is certainly not the gavotte.

Ah, well, who are we to say that it is not all to the good? There is no arguing that the lap of luxury once played havoc with the fit of a waistcoat over a stomach. Today, at least, we have made a stopgap compromise.

In retrospect, we suppose, it was all pretty theatrical and, certainly it was g a s t r o n o m i c. Still, we could never bring ourselves to say so in the company of our elderly friend. For his memories remained extravagant and glamorous and we had no desire to make them less so. TV's Highlights and Sidelights

Holiday viewing on TV, it seems to us, has not been better than ever, even though the week preceding St. Nick's climb down the chimney brought a gala pack of specials. Trouble was you probably saw most of them last year or the year before, since the homescreen was virtually inundated with seasonal repeats.

The younger generation was treated yet again to a sing-in with Lorne Greene, the big pappa of the Ponderosa, and the UNICEF Choir; Mr. Magoo for the umpteenth time as Ebenezer Scrooge; Boris Karloff for another year round, narrating "How the Grinch Stole Christmas; and a rerun of The Nutcracker, which hardly could be called an old chestnut since it was a very beautifully produced rerun. Adults, too, often had to settle for repeats, one such being A Christmas Memory, the second Truman Capote story telecast in three days . . . and all about a coy spinster (Geraldine Page) and the lonely, backwoodsy Alabama child that was Capote several decades ago (Donnie Melvin).

Still, there was a welcome reversal from yesterday's rehashes in the vocalizing of Danny Thomas and daughter, Marlo, Ed Ames and Abbe Lane, who combined for the Thomas Hour's animated adaption of Charles Dickens' "Cricket on the Hearth," an appealing cartoon combination of drama, comedy and music. Excellent, too, was At The Drop of Another Hat, the celebrated and veddy, veddy British two-man musical satire with bearded, burly lyricist Michael Flanders and his slight, sophisticated pianist-partner Donald Swann, who had a lark roasting a few sacred cows. And old pro Red Skelton came up with a pleasant Yule interlude on his CBS hour this week when, as Freddie the Freeloader, he found a waif (appealing Linda Sue Risk) in his shack and saw to it that she and her widowed mother had a memorable Christmas. Not a repeat, but original and imaginative was The Mitzi Gaynor Christmas Show on Kraft Music Hall. It was a wholesome "ball of wax" featuring cute and charming Mitzi, Cyril Ritchard as Scrooge, Ed McMahon as Santa, and Tonny Tanner (who stole the show) as Bob Cratchit.

DEANA AND DEAN MARTIN, and Frank and Tina Sinatra helped to make Christmas family time on the Dean Martin Show over NBC-TV this past Thursday evening.

GIRL WATCHERS had a field day watching Star Trek, over NBC-TV last night. Among the bevy of beauties featured was Tania Lemani, who's preparing for a pleasurable evening with William Shatner.

Heavier Viewing

And, if one tired of the Christmas chain, there was a break in all the holly and mistletoe when Walter Cronkite and Charles Collingwood put Secretary of State Dean Rusk and lame duck Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara on the CBS griddle; when Nicolai Gogol's "The Diary of a Madman" proved to be a challenge for the audience, equal to the challenge for the actor (Roger Coggio as the one-man cast); and when NBC observed the 25th anniversary of World War II's North African campaign with Alamein: A Monty Memoir, all about the German desert defeat.

If there are any of you there in TEMPOLAND who can squeeze TV into your harried schedule of last minute shopping, present wrapping and goose roasting, you'll find the following programs slated for Christmas week:

MID-HUDSON REGIONAL BALLET COMPANY brought its "Christmas Ballet" to stage of Saugerties High School, where it played to SRO audience this month. Standees lined the walls; some were lucky enough to find folding chairs; and all enjoyed the filmy spectacle.

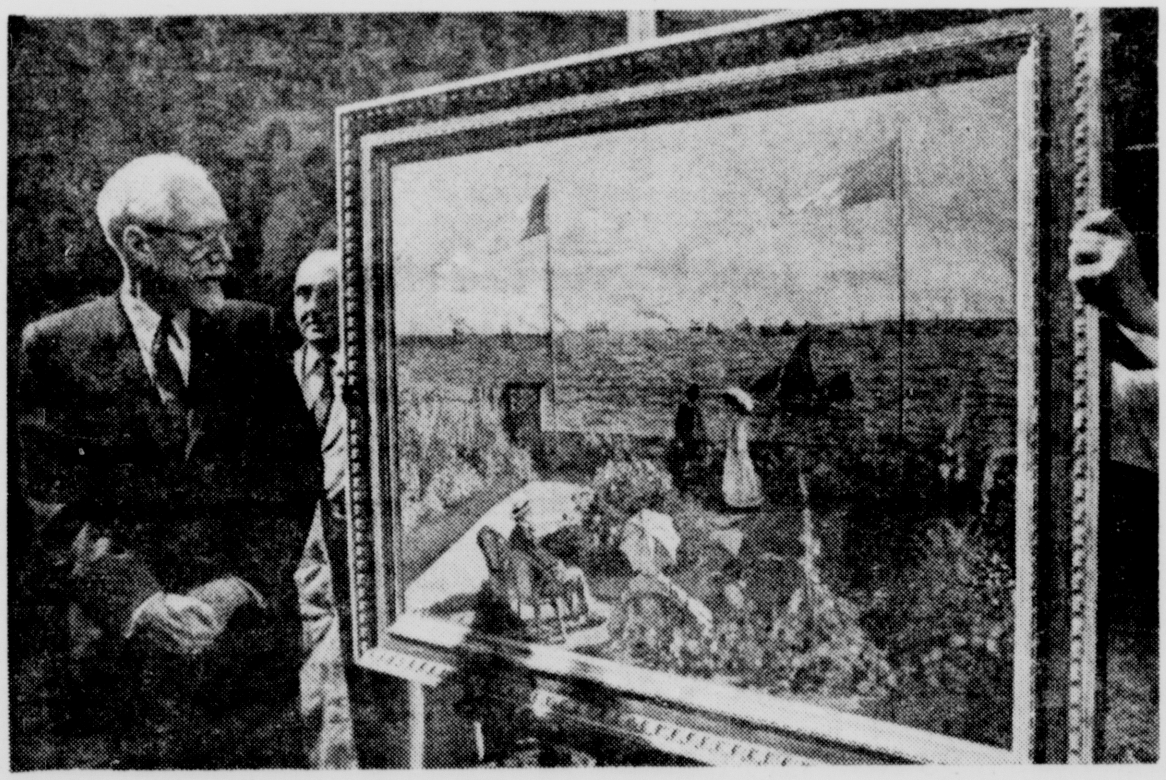

BESIDE AN OLD SPINNING WHEEL, Mrs. William Sacher coaches Helen and Marie Sacher for roles in Yule pageant based on St. Nick's ride—a ride which took place through the streets of Kingston this month. (Freeman photo by Haines)

LIVING NATIVITY CAST rehearsed inside Old Dutch Church for outdoor performance in churchyard from Dec. 19 to 24. Shepherds, Wisemen, and Christmas family included (first row) Stephen Gardiner, Karen Trowbridge, Mark Sonnenberg; (second row) Amy Millonig, Sam and Pam McCoubrey; (rear) Peter Gardiner, Burton and Diane Davis, Nancy McCoubrey, Leslie Sanford as Mary, Don Burnett as Joseph, Barry and Garry Boehm and John Camp as The Three Kings. CYNTHIA BELGRAVE, star of "The Trials of Brother Jero," now playing in New York, drew high praise from the critics. She appeared in and produced the drama in New Paltz earlier this season as a preview for SUNY'S Africa Festival; gave Ulsterites a rare opportunity to see a production that cosmopolitans are now standing in line to view and which will soon send a company to tour abroad.

BROUGHT RECORD PRICE—The Rev. Theodore Pitcairn, who has been a frequent visitor to Ulster County over the years at the showplace Hurley estate of his late industrialist brother, Raymond Pitcairn, poses with Monet masterpiece, "La Terrasse a Saint Adresse." He sold it in London this month for $1,411,200 (a record high for an impressionist work); had bought it for only $11,000 in 1926; and Monet, during a penniless period, had let it go for only $40.

DR. TIMOTHY LEARY LOOKED WESTWARD as he made news by portraying a sheriff in a psychedelic horse opera planned for distribution this spring. Movie was filmed at the Castalia Foundation in nearby Millbrook—and now that it's finished and the hot breath of the law has caught up with Leary again, the LSD high priest will close down his Dutchess mansion

Lloyd Gives Itself a Present

Gaily wrapped and distributed under the Christmas tree—or peeking out of stockings hung by the fireplace—in and around the Town of Lloyd this year will be a slim little volume bearing the imprint of Warren G. Sherwood. The book is his History of the Town of Lloyd, just published for the first time and covering the period encompassed from early times in the town to the turn of the present century.

It is sure to be a favorite for Christmas giving among local residents and for mailing to former residents now living elsewhere. Designated Volume II, it has been so-called since some of Mr. Sherwood's earlier writings were published in 1953, following a book of poems in 1947. Those who have read all three books say they present an interesting picture of life in this area in early days.

Sherwood spent his life in this part of Ulster County, was educated in local schools and at Cornell University, and taught school as one of several jobs held during his lifetime. His main interest was always local history and he recorded this in concentrated facts substantiated by authentic source material.

Compiler Beatrice Hasbrouck Wadlin, working with Lloyd Town Historian Myra Ball Van Demark and Plattekill Township Historian Clara Gaffney, chose to present Sherwood's material exactly as he wrote it in the late 1930's, adding only topic headings and an addendum of some of the present owners of old properties to which he made reference.

A virtual wealth of some 50 subjects is covered in the 133 pages of the tome, which is being sold for a nominal fee at the office of the Town Clerk in Highland. Copies are also available from Mrs. Van Demark, Mrs. Gaffney and Mrs. Wadlin. To augment this chronological material which ends about 1900, the committee of three plans a record of local history from 1900 to the present, both for its value to townspeople and as a tribute to author Sherwood.

Raley Record Has Pike Jacket

A record album of the poetry of Loker Raley has been made available at Catskill Bookshop and at the Juggler, in Woodstock. The album, which runs for nearly an hour, contains the epic works of the Woodstock poet, together with several of his shorter lyrics. Among the epics are:

Salute to the New-Born, the title piece of Raley's first book; Mors Dei, (The Death of God) which, in its two presentations at Carnegie Hall, preceded the current theological controversy; The Elegy of the Living, which deals with the artist as the archetype of man in a modern world of accelerating science and war; Blind Journey, our planet's trip to Nowhere, with its waking and sleeping cargo; Strange Lights, the soul's journey without a ship, into "three dominions."

The discs are being offered in Woodstock in a limited edition, autographed by the author, as a pre-Christmas feature, in advance of the regular, general release. Those who purchase this edition will also be supplied with the illustrated jacket by John Pike—when the general release appears. The Pike etching was especially created for Strange Lights, and originally appeared opposite the poem in Bluestone of which Raley is the editor.

Loker Raley has been heard on major networks and leading independent radio stations, but Strange Lights is his first record album in several years and contains much of his latest poetry.

Calamar Paints Scenes of Tour

Paintings by Gloria Calamar of Middletown may be viewed in the library at Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, until the end of December.

Miss Calamar originally hails from Woodstock; is married to Robert Redgate; resids in Scotchtown; and studied at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles, and Art Students League, New York. She is presently teaching Art History at Orange County Community College and an OCCC extension course in Art History at Mount Saint Mary. Both these courses will continue next semester apd will cover art from the Renaissance era to the Contemporary.

Miss Calamar has visited every museum in Europe, including those in the Soviet Union. As she traveled from place to place, she drew sketches and took pictures; painted her tour scenes upon return to her studio.

All mediums have been tried by Miss Calamar. Although much of her art has been in water color, she tends to find oil somewhat more challenging. Landscapes, portraits and compositions are her forte. Her art has been on exhibit in 35 one-man showings, including Santa Barbara and San Francisco museums. She is scheduled for a display in Paris next September.

The library will be open from 1 to 4 p. m. on Dec. 27, 28, and 29. The public is welcome to view the oils and water color paintings of Miss Calamar.

Rare Find

The temple guardian figure, about 40 inches high and 16 inches wide, has been donated to the college as a memorial to John L. Thompson.

The late Mr. Thompson, who was very much interested in India and studied there, was a member of the Dutchess faculty from September, 1960 to November, 1961.

Friends interested in "an appropriate memorial" donated money for the sculpture, which Lewis Krevolin, assistant professor of art, calls "of museum quality."

The work comes from Karala in southern India.

The Dutchess Community College Alumni Association has provided a plaque identifying the work.

Krevolin said it is a rare find to acquire Indian teakwood sculpture so old, and that it is a marvelous acquisition in Dutchess' permanent art collection.

"Visitors will notice not only the exquisite carving," Krevolin commented, "but also the weathered patina that gives the work added appeal."

A First Course

Add snippets of smoked salmon—lots of them—to sour cream along with capers and freshly ground pepper. Serve over mixed crisp cold salad green as a first course. Pass French bread and butter.

Once again, it is that time of the year when family and friends exchange the good wishes that fill their hearts. As we join in the rejoicing of the season, may we take this opportunity to thank you and yours for your patronage... and may we extend our wish for a very Merry Christmas.

Lloyd Gives Itself a Present

Gaily wrapped and distributed under the Christmas tree—or peeking out of stockings hung by the fireplace—in and around the Town of Lloyd this year will be a slim little volume bearing the imprint of Warren G. Sherwood. The book is his History of the Town of Lloyd, just published for the first time and covering the period encompassed from early times in the town to the turn of the present century.

It is sure to be a favorite for Christmas giving among local residents and for mailing to former residents now living elsewhere. Designated Volume II, it has been so-called since some of Mr. Sherwood's earlier writings were published in 1953, following a book of poems in 1947. Those who have read all three books say they present an interesting picture of life in this area in early days.

Sherwood spent his life in this part of Ulster County, was educated in local schools and at Cornell University, and taught school as one of several jobs held during his lifetime. His main interest was always local history and he recorded this in concentrated facts substantiated by authentic source material.

Compiler Beatrice Hasbrouck Wadlin, working with Lloyd Town Historian Myra Ball Van Demark and Plattekill Township Historian Clara Gaffney, chose to present Sherwood's material exactly as he wrote it in the late 1930's, adding only topic headings and an addendum of some of the present owners of old properties to which he made reference.

A virtual wealth of some 50 subjects is covered in the 133 pages of the tome, which is being sold for a nominal fee at the office of the Town Clerk in Highland. Copies are also available from Mrs. Van Demark, Mrs. Gaffney and Mrs. Wadlin. To augment this chronological material which ends about 1900, the committee of three plans a record of local history from 1900 to the present, both for its value to townspeople and as a tribute to author Sherwood.

Raley Record Has Pike Jacket

A record album of the poetry of Loker Raley has been made available at Catskill Bookshop and at the Juggler, in Woodstock. The album, which runs for nearly an hour, contains the epic works of the Woodstock poet, together with several of his shorter lyrics. Among the epics are:

Salute to the New-Born, the title piece of Raley's first book; Mors Dei, (The Death of God) which, in its two presentations at Carnegie Hall, preceded the current theological controversy; The Elegy of the Living, which deals with the artist as the archetype of man in a modern world of accelerating science and war; Blind Journey, our planet's trip to Nowhere, with its waking and sleeping cargo; Strange lights, the soul's journey without a ship, into "three dominions."

The discs are being offered in Woodstock in a limited edition, autographed by the author, as a pre-Christmas feature, in advance of the regular, general release. Those who purchase this edition will also be supplied with the illustrated jacket by John Pike—when the general release appears. The Pike etching was especially created for Strange Lights, and originally appeared opposite the poem in Bluestone of which Raley is the editor.

Loker Raley has been heard on major networks and leading independent radio stations, but Strange Lights is his first record album in several years and contains much of his latest poetry.

Ingrid to Paris

PARIS (AP) — Lars Schmidt, a leading European theatrical impresario and the husband of Ingrid Bergman, plans to star her here in Eugene O'Neill's "More Stately Mansions." She is currently in the New York production.

Also on Schmidt's schedule is staging of Rolf Hochuth's controversial play "Soldiers," Peter Shaffer's "Black Comedy" and possibly, "Fiddler on the Roof."

Music Sessions

Professor Marvin Feman, chairman of the music department at Orange County Community College, chaired two sessions at the 32nd annual conference of the New York State School Music Association held at the Concord Hotel, Kiamesha Lake, from Dec. 3-6.

Dr. Feman conducted meetings of the Association's two-year college section on Dec. 4 and 5. V. Robert Heisey, associate professor of music at OCCC, also participated in the Dec. 4 session as a panelist discussing "Music in the Junior College for the Non-Music Major." A panel on Dec. 5 considered "Recruitment and Continuation in Performance Groups."

Calamar Paints Scenes of Tour

Paintings by Gloria Calamar of Middletown may be viewed in the library at Mount Saint Mary College, Newburgh, until the end of December.

Miss Calamar originally hails from Woodstock; is married to Robert Redgate; resids in Scotchtown: and studied at Otis Art Institute, Los Angeles, and Art Students League, New York. She is presently teaching Art History at Orange County Community College and an OCCC extension course in Art History at Mount Saint Mary. Both these courses will continue next semester and will cover art from the Renaissance era to the Contemporary.

Miss Calamar has visited every museum in Europe, including those in the Soviet Union. As she traveled from place to place, she drew sketches and took pictures; painted her tour scenes upon return to her studio.

MICHAEL PARKS AND ULLA BERGRYD are Adam and Eve in Eden in John Huston's film interpretation of "The Bible." Huston paints his Paradise in poster colors as he brings his glimpses of Genesis to town for a local run. The Old Tetament emerges on screen successfully and with less pompouness and rhetorical excess than it usually receives when delivered in readings from the pulpit.

BUT WILL IT FLOAT? It will and it does. And a good thing, too. Otherwise, how would Noah have been able to save the animal life of the world and his family when the floods came. Scene is from the 20th Century-Fox spectacular, "The Bible," and this is the ark of the patriarch as it's currently being seen on screen at Kingston's Community Theatre.

FITZWILLY. It is Dick Van Dyke's self-appointed role in life to support his employer, Miss Vickie, in her customary style, as he goes about the task of playing Fitzwilliam in "Fitzwilly," currently on screen at Kingston's Mayfair Theatre. Since Miss Vickie (played by that great star of stage and screen, 78-year-old Dame Edith Evans) once lived in high style, but is now totally penniless, keeping roast duck and plum pudding on her table and seeing that her mansion is well-staffed with liveried and uniformed domestics is no easy task.

Still Fitzwilliam manages and comes close to amassing a fortune along the way. In the title role, Van Dyke plays a perfectly mannered but larcenous butler, consumed by a passion to help his kind, benevolent spinster boss, who has given all her money away to charity. He and the rest of her faithful staff conceal from her the fact that she is dead broke, and conspire together to keep her eating high off the hog and living like a lady.

That's more or less the basic plot of "Fitzwilly," and it's something of a different kind of comedy from the regular run of attractions of this sort. Directed by Delbert Mann, it also stars television's "Get Smart" girl spy, Barbara Feldon, making her film debut as a secretary who threatens to upset Van Dyke's applecart. Whether or not she exposes the butler and his ring of petty but lovable crooks, you'll have to find out for yourself by seeing the film.

Other old pros who lend their talents to the comedy are John McGiver as a guilt-ridden footman and Fitzwilly's top aide, Anne Seymour and Cecil Kellaway. Film was adapted from the novel, "A Garden of Cucumbers" by Poyntz Tyler.

Camera rambles through a New York mansion, Gimbel's department store, Lord and Taylor, Altman's and the snobbish Jensen's as Miss Vickie's errant benefactors romp their merry way to fame on a small-time crime spree that is both funny and entertaining.

THE BIBLE. Director John Huston has done a better job at filming the Bible than was ever accomplished by, say, Cecil B. DeMille. To attempt such a task is formidable to begin with, and it is not always true that one picture is worth many thousand words. In the case of the Bible, there are just too many pictures needed since the Great Book has more words than most.

Still, Huston has done admirably in delving into the domain of the Lord, and he has not relied on the usual Hollywood brand of extravaganza or sentimentality in the doing. And he has had an excellent helpmate in Christopher Fry, who wrote the screenplay spanning the first 22 chapters of Genesis. Almost three hours long, the film concentrates on Adam and Eve from Eden to Cain's murder of his brother; Noah and the ark; and Abraham from his entrance into Canaan to his offering of Isaac in the Moriah mountains.

And Huston himself has aided his own cause by turning in the best acting performance in the film. He serves as narrator and also portrays Noah. His readings from the Old Testament are moving during the narration and, as Noah, he does a charming scene of piping his zoo of animals into the ark in a column of twos. No actor has ever made such faith seem possible or such innocence so appealing.

The first seven days are left to the devices of art photography, but there is stark realism in such scenes as Cain (Richard Harris) fleeing the scene of his brother's killing; Adam (Michael Parks) and Eve (Ulla Bergryd) in their natural states; Abraham (George C. Scott) emoting with dignity in his cruisial scenes through a make-up job with beard that is a tribute to that particular art; and Sarah (Ava Gardner) showing a new restraint as Abraham's partner.

Orpheum's Bill

Two excellent films which have been around for a while are slated for screening in Saugerties' Orpheum Theatre during the coming week and those who missed them elsewhere should take cognizance. TO SIR WITH LOVE, Sidney Poitier's tailor-made vehicle, is playing tonight through Tuesday with the exception of Sunday night when the house will be dark for Christmas Eve. One of the best movies of 1967 or any other year, it has Poitier exuding charm as a teacher in a tough London school. Both he and his "students" turn in high caliber performances.

The Orpheum tosses a holiday party for the younger generation at its Sunday matinee, when Santa Claus Conquers the Martians will be seen, along with The Talking Bear. Later in the week, "Caprice," a Doris Day oldie but a fun one, takes over Wednesday night, with Richard Harris co-starred; and "The Professionals," a Lee Marvin opus with the talented actor as a hired gun rushing to the rescue of a kidnapped beauty, gets a Thursday screening. This one, we liked! (Reviewed by TOBIE GEERTSEMA)

Woodstock Trio In Khouri Show

Three woodstock artists have works on display at the newly opened Khouri Memorial Wing of the Norfolk Museum in Virginia, according to Helen Gerardia, who has just returned from the southern state. They are the late Milton Avery, Howard Mandel and Miss Gerardia, represented by a painting, Industrial Theme, and a print, Ascent.

The Woodstock and New York City artist was in Norfolk to give a demonstration of casein painting at the museum, under its sponsorship and that of the Tidewater Association of Art. While there, she visited the Khouri Memorial Collection.

Miss Gerardia, who won the Berne Memorial Prize of the National Association of Women Artists and an award from the American Society of Contemporary Arts, is also currently represented with a reproduction of her painting, Many Moons, in Prizewinning Painting Book Seven and Prizewinning Art Book Five, both published this year. She serves on the print jury of selection for Audubon Artists for its forthcoming annual and is juror of awards for the National Society of Painters in Casein. Her recent one-man shows include exhibits at Antioch, Clarke, Georgia Southern, Asbury and Nebraska State colleges. Her work is also in a three-man show being circulated by the Kansas State Federation of Art, and several other group shows.

ELECTRIC LIVING GUIDE

Off His Rocker?

"No I wouldn't say he's off his rocker, but the chap who goes off in all directions when he's house hunting is spinning himself an unnecessary web of confusion that he'll have to think his way out of sooner or later and pin-point what he wants. So I say, chart your course first. In other words draw up a list of what you need, what you want and what you can afford." That's the advice of a quality builder, who says he prefers dealing with quality-minded prospects, who go at the elimination and selection process in a systematic way.

By quality, he continues, he does not mean extravagance. Just the opposite in fact. "And that is why electric heat, to my mind, should top both the 'need,' as well as the 'want' list.

Electric heating, the builder notes, is "the quality heating system. Nothing that happened before, comes even close to the comfort it gives, to its ease of operation, to its durability, and year-in, year-out economy."

Having made his point about electric heating's number one position, the builder lists these as other guide points for "charting" a house hunt:

● Location: Note where you'd most like to live. List, too, areas which would be feasible from a commutation-to-work viewpoint. Then go do your territory scouting with an eye to convenience of stores, schools, churches. All other things being equal, these are the factors that might tip the balance of your final decision.

● Investment: Maybe you can afford a "better" house than you thought you could. And maybe it will prove less expensive in the long run if the price difference assures quality (there's that word again) construction. or one thing it keeps your fuel bills down. (And since electricity is 100% efficient to begin with, and since fuel costs now competitive, are expected to drop even lower, there's a recognizable saving right there). More important, though, the well-built house isn't going to look beat up in its "youth," it isn't going to need patching. Coupled with a complete electric heating system it adds up to unusually carefree, and comfortable, living.

QUESTION BOX

Qnestion: Is it true that electric heating doesn't need much servicing? How's that possible?

Answer: It's so true that some systems are never going to need the ministrations of the maintenance man at all. Others will require only minimal attention. And none of them need the annual professional kind of cleanup basic to older heating systems.

Answer: Not necessary, just nice and that reason with many styles of electric heating now an almost routine choice of many families. You see, the big advantage is that you don't have to overheat one room to get warmth into an adjacent room. In addition, separate thermostats let you vary temperatures from room to room according to your tastes. You can keep the children's room warmer, for example, and the dining room a few degrees cooler it that's how you like it.

Question: Is it expensive to convert an old house to electric heating?

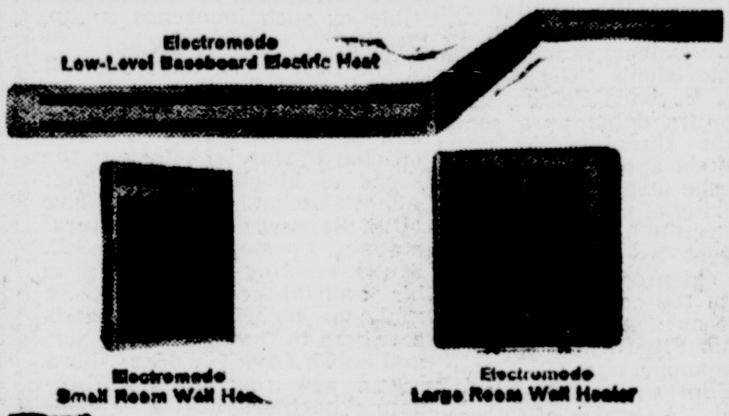

Answer: No, not as far as the installation of the electric heating system itself. What could increase the bill is upgrading insulation if it's under par. Of course, if it's under par to begin with, the sooner it's improved the better off you'll be anyway. As electric heating manufacturers figure it out, they can provide you 100% efficient heating; but even that can't make up for poor building with heat seeping out and cold blowing in.

Indeed it would! For heat that's clean, healthful, comfortable. For heat that's flameless, fumeless . . . soot and dirt-free. Low installation costs, too. No ducts, pipes, radiators, chimney or fuel storage space required. There is an Electromode electric heater or heating system to fit any remodeling plan. Let us help you choose the one best for you. Prime reason for the admirable performance of electric heating is that it does the job with few, or no moving parts. There's nothing to wear out.

Question: Is it necessary to have thermostats in each room with electric heat? Won't it work otherwise?

Answer: Not necessary, just nice and that reason with many styles of electric heating now an almost routine choice of many families. You see, the big advantage is that you don't have to overheat one room to get warmth into an adjacent room. In addition, separate thermostats let you vary temperatures from room to room according to your tastes. You can keep the children's room warmer, for example, and the dining room a few degrees cooler if that's how you like it.

Question: Is it expensive to convert an old house to electric heating?

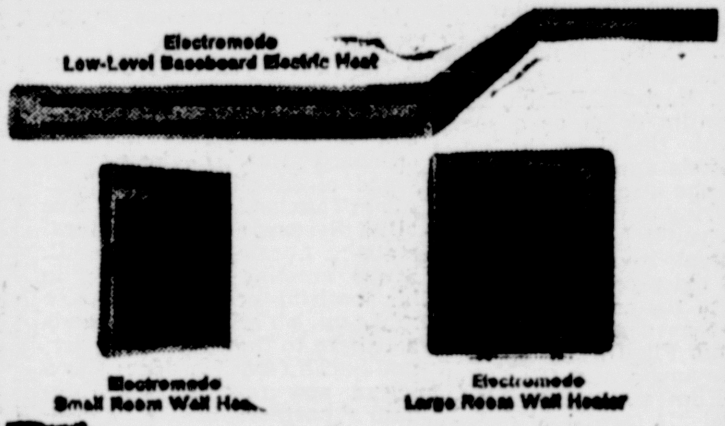

Answer: No, not as far as the installation of the electric heating system itself. What could increase the bill is upgrading insulation if it's under par. Of course, if it's under par to begin with, the sooner it's improved the better off you'll be anyway. As electric heating manufacturers figure it out, they can provide you 100% efficient heating; but even that can't make up for poor building with heat seeping out and cold blowing in.

Indeed it would! For heat that's clean, healthful, comfortable. For heat that's flameless, fumeless . . . soot and dirt-free. Low installation costs, too. No ducts, pipes, radiators, chimney or fuel storage space required. There is an Electromode electric heater or heating system to fit any remodeling plan. Let us help you choose the one best for you.
